

ENGLISH THE AMERICAN WAY:

A FUN ESL GUIDE TO LANGUAGE AND CULTURE IN THE U.S.

Sheila MacKechnie Murtha, M.A.

Jane Airey O'Connor, M.Ed.

- Sample dialogues show everyday American English in context
- Idioms, slang, useful phrases, and tons of vocabulary
- Cool tips, quizzes, and hands-on activities make learning fun!
- Plus audio to improve listening & speaking skills

With Audio (Embedded + Mp3)

ENGLISH THE AMERICAN WAY:

A FUN ESL GUIDE TO LANGUAGE AND CULTURE IN THE U.S.

Sheila MacKechnie Murtha, M.A.
Jane Airey O'Connor, M.Ed.

Research & Education Association
Visit our website at: www.rea.com

Research & Education Association

61 Ethel Road West
Piscataway, New Jersey 08854
E-mail: info@rea.com

English the American Way: A Fun ESL Guide to Language and Culture in the U.S.

Published 2015

Copyright © 2011 by Research & Education Association, Inc. All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reproduced in any form without permission of the publisher.

Printed in the United States of America

Library of Congress Control Number 2010937924

eISBN-13: 978-0-7386-0676-7

LIMIT OF LIABILITY/DISCLAIMER OF WARRANTY: Publication of this work is for the purpose of test preparation and related use and subjects as set forth herein. While every effort has been made to achieve a work of high quality, neither Research & Education Association, Inc., nor the authors and other contributors of this work guarantee the accuracy or completeness of or assume any liability in connection with the information and opinions contained herein and in REA's software and/ or online materials. REA and the authors and other contributors shall in no event be liable for any personal injury, property or other damages of any nature whatsoever, whether special, indirect, consequential or compensatory, directly or indirectly resulting from the publication, use or reliance upon this work.

All trademarks and product names cited in this publication are the property of their respective owners.

Cover Image © iStockphoto.com/mstaylor

REA® is a registered trademark of Research & Education Association, Inc.

A 14

Table of Contents

About the Authors
Letter from the Authors
Authors' Acknowledgments
How This Book Works
Symbols Used in the Book
About REA
Acknowledgments

Unit

1

New Friends

Hi There!

Meet the Neighbors

Those Crazy Kids!

GRAMMAR REMINDERS:

1. Verb to be—Affirmative Statements and Contractions
2. Verb to be—Questions and Negatives

Unit

2

Getting Around

Riding the Bus

Going Underground: The Subway

Hey, Taxi!

GRAMMAR REMINDERS:

1. The Present Simple Tense—Affirmative Statements
2. The Present Simple Tense—Negatives, and Questions with does
3. The Future Simple Tense—Affirmative Statements, and Negatives

4. The Present Simple Tense—Negatives, and Questions with do

Unit

3

Taking a Drive

Everybody Loves the DMV

Let's Go for a Ride!

Oops. Sorry, Officer

Grammar Reminders:

1. The Present Simple Tense—Short Answers
2. Comparatives
3. Superlatives

Review: Units 1–3

Unit

4

Dining in Style

Zipping Through the Drive-Thru

A Little More Upscale

Is This What I Ordered?

Grammar Reminders:

1. Stative Verbs
2. Would You Like or Do You Like?
3. Count/Noncount Nouns
4. More Count/Noncount Nouns!

Unit

5

Get Moving!

Play Ball!

Members Only! Joining a Gym Extreme Sports

Grammar Reminders:

1. Modal Verbs of Ability—Can
2. Modal Verbs of Ability—Could
3. Will Be Able to for future ability

Unit

6

Get Away from It All

Day Tripping

Going Wild

Fancy-Schmancy

Grammar Reminders:

1. The Past Simple Tense—Affirmative Statements, Regular Verbs
2. The Past Simple Tense—Affirmative Statements, Irregular Verbs

Review: Units 4–6

Unit

7

Home Sweet Home

To Buy or Not to Buy; That Is the Question

City Life or the 'Burbs

Nothing but Bills!

Grammar Reminders:

1. The Past Simple Tense—Negatives, Verb to be
2. The Past Simple Tense—Negatives, Regular Verbs
3. The Past Simple Tense—Negatives, Irregular Verbs

Unit

8

Ooh, Money, Money!

Stash the Cash! Get Started with Banking
Making the Big Bucks

Grammar Reminders:

1. The Past Simple Tense—Questions, Verb to be
2. The Past Simple Tense—Questions, Regular and Irregular Verbs

Unit

9

Shop 'Til You Drop

It's All at the Mall
Food, Glorious Food!
Saving Some Dough

Grammar Reminders:

1. Expressions of Quantity—much, many; few, less
2. More Expressions of Quantity!

Review: Units 7–9

Unit

10

Emergency 911

HELP!
HELP! FIRE!
HELP! HE'S NOT BREATHING!
HELP! STRANGER DANGER!

Grammar Reminders:

1. Modal Verbs of Necessity—Have to, Must
2. Modal Verbs for Requests—Can, Could
3. Modal Verbs of Advice, Possibility, Ability—Should, Would, Could

Unit

11

What's Up, Doc?

Under the Weather

Health Insurance: What's Up with That?

Grammar Reminder:

Modals Review

Unit

12

What's Up Now?

Open Wide

Let's See

WOOF!

Grammar Reminders:

1. The Past Simple Tense—Short Answers
2. Prepositions of Time

Review: Units 10–12

Unit

13

Around Town

Where Am I?

At Your Service

Grammar Reminders:

1. Prepositions of Place
2. The Present Continuous Tense—Affirmative Statements
3. More Present Continuous Tense

Unit

14

Culture Vulture

What's Happening?

See the Capital... and the Capitol

Grammar Reminders:

1. The Present Continuous Tense—Questions
2. The Present Continuous Tense—Negatives

Unit

15

Helping Out

Helping Hands, Giving Back

Good Citizen? Good Neighbor!

Grammar Reminder:

Even More Present Continuous Tense

Review: Units 13–15

Unit

16

The Better Half

The Dating Game

Will You Marry Me?

It's Over!

Grammar Reminders:

1. Phrasal Verbs
2. Suggestions and Proposals

Unit

17

That's Life!
And Baby Makes Three
That Bundle of Joy

Grammar Reminders:

1. Will and Going to
2. Used to

Unit

18

Full Circle
End-of-Life Issues
Funeral Customs

Grammar Reminders:

1. Making Suggestions
2. Expressions of Sympathy

Review: Units 16–18

Unit

19

Gadget Central
Hello? Hello? Can You Hear Me Now?
The Easy Way

Grammar Reminders:

1. The Past Continuous Tense with Past Simple Tense
2. The Past Continuous Tense—Affirmative Statements, Negatives
3. The Past Continuous Tense—Questions

Unit

20

9 to 5

The Perfect Job
Paperwork!

Grammar Reminders:

1. The Present Perfect Simple Tense—Affirmative Statements
2. The First Conditional
3. More Present Perfect Simple Tense

Unit
21

The Big Interview

Before During After

Grammar Reminders:

1. The Present Perfect Simple Tense—Questions
2. Present Perfect Simple Tense—Negatives

Review: Units 19–21

Answers to Review Activities

Appendices

Appendix A: Audio Dialogues

Appendix B: Common Irregular Verbs

Appendix C: Vocabulary

How to Use the Audio

About the Authors

Sheila and Jane have been colleagues and friends for... well, let's just say a long time 😊. As English as a Second Language (ESL) teachers, they worked together on lots of projects... and had lots of fun as they worked. A partnership was born!

Together, Jane and Sheila have teaching credentials in several states and two continents. With years and years... and years... of experience (they just don't want to count them all, ha!), they have taught ESL to little kids, big kids, university students, adults, company executives, and other teachers in the U.S. and Europe (both online and in regular classroom settings).

Both Sheila and Jane have served as members of the New Jersey Department of Education Advisory Committee for ESL/Bilingual Education. They've facilitated online ESL training courses for teachers through the NJ DOE professional development program. Sheila has held several leadership positions scoring teacher candidate responses for an international testing company, and Jane has written ESL test questions and rated English as a Foreign Language exams for another internationally recognized testing company. (They teach, they test, they score!)

They have won many awards for excellence in teaching, including two Teacher of the Year awards, and corporate citations for excellence. They've given numerous presentations and have written curriculum and syllabi for diverse ESL populations. Add to this some fun teaching projects in Spanish, public speaking, drama, writing... and, we're not kidding, even soccer skills (okay, not our finest moment)... and you've got two writers who know how to have a good time writing a book!

Jane is now the Director of ESL Services for Emory College of Arts and Sciences in Atlanta, Georgia. Sheila is a lecturer in the English Language Program at the University of Pennsylvania, and continues to teach, write and consult in New Jersey and New York. Although they live several states away, both are happy to find time to work together on fun projects... like this book!

A Letter from the Authors

Hi there! Thanks for choosing our book. We think it shows just how smart you are 😊.

We had a lot of fun writing this book, and we hope that you'll have a lot of fun reading it. Well, have fun, but also learn a lot about the English language and American culture.

We've always loved English—the sound of the words, the fun of the idioms, and the interesting way the words work together. We also know that learning all this stuff can be a challenge to English language learners. And that's where our book comes in!

English the American Way: A Fun ESL Guide to Language and Culture in the U.S. is your very own ... well, guide, to... yes, American language and culture 😊. You'll find tons (a lot!) of vocabulary, all of it used in real-life ways. We've included tons of informal language—the stuff you really hear every day. And we take a look at American customs—birth to death, and everything in-between!

We hope this book will be a help in your adventure learning English.

Good luck!

The image shows two handwritten signatures side-by-side. The signature on the left is "Sheila" and the signature on the right is "Jane". Both signatures are written in a cursive, fluid style.

Authors' Acknowledgments

Sheila says: Thanks to Erin, who said, “You really should write a book”; to James, who gave her something to write it with; and, of course, to Jim, who happily mastered the art of the peanut butter and jelly sandwich.

Jane says: Thanks to Mum and Dad for always knowing what to say and what to do. (And what not to say and what not to do!) You are the best! I hope I am as good a parent to Charlotte as you have been to me.

How This Book Works

This book has 21 units packed with language and culture!

Each unit has a main topic divided into two or three cultural readings. In these readings and the dialogues that follow, you'll find real English, not the simplified language you find in most ESL books. The units are full of vocabulary and informal language—tons of idioms, phrasal verbs and slang—bold within the text, then listed at the end of each section with a simple explanation. Listen to the audio for native speaker pronunciation of the dialogues, then play it again to practice!

Look for grammar reminders, idiomatic expressions, culture tips, and fun facts. Oh, and don't forget to check your understanding (and memory ☺) with the special review sections. You'll find them after every three units.

Good luck, and have fun!

Symbols used in the book:

TIP, no, not the money kind of tip 😊. These tips are useful things to know. They give special information about things Americans do and say.

Look for this symbol ⓘ in our vocabulary lists to find informal language. These expressions are used commonly by native speakers, and we'll help you learn the meanings, beyond the actual words themselves.

Our Pronunciation Pointers and Dialogues help you say words and phrases using American pronunciation. Listen to the audio as you read by pressing the play button ➤ seen throughout the book. Want to listen to the audio on your computer or mobile devices? Head to www.rea.com/etaw for a quick download of the audio content.

Fun Facts are sure to bring a smile... and some wacky information!

Are you on your toes (paying attention)? See if you notice more examples of language tips we've already discussed.

About Research & Education Association

Founded in 1959, Research & Education Association (REA) is dedicated to publishing the finest and most effective educational materials—including study guides and test preps—for students in middle school, high school, college, graduate school, and beyond.

Today, REA's wide-ranging catalog is a leading resource for teachers, students, and professionals. Visit www.rea.com to see a complete listing of all our titles.

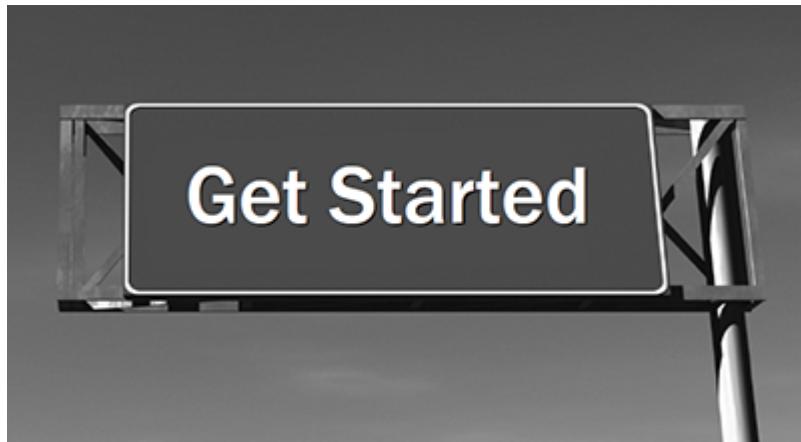

Acknowledgments

In addition to our authors, we would like to thank Pam Weston, Publisher, for setting the quality standards for production integrity and managing the publication to completion; Larry B. Kling, Vice President, Editorial, for his overall direction; Michael Reynolds, Managing Editor, for project management; Christine Saul, Senior Graphic Artist, for designing our cover; and Stephanie Phelan Design for designing and typesetting this edition.

Unit

1

New Friends

Hi There! — :

New country? New friends! But how do you meet them?

Making new friends is an exciting part of moving to a new place, but sometimes it's hard to know just how formal to be with new people. Americans are usually very casual. They're also very friendly. This is a good thing, but it can be tricky. Everyone knows that good old basic English phrase, "Hello. It's nice to meet you." Oh, yeah, we bet you were ready for that. Well, you may be ready, but then you may be surprised to learn that you won't hear that phrase very often. "Hello. It's nice to meet you" is okay for first-time introductions, but when friends meet socially, the conversation will probably sound more like this:

DIALOGUE 1: TRACK 2

— :

ALAN: Hey, Lia! It's good to see you.

LIA: You, too. I haven't seen you in a few days. How are you? How's it going?

ALAN: Not bad. I'm so busy with the classes I'm taking. How about you?

LIA: I'm okay. I know you're busy with classes. My job's really hectic this time of year, too. What's new with you?

ALAN: Nothing much. I'm on my way to the mall. I need some time off! Do you remember Lana? She's there. Ha! She's always at the mall! I think a lot of our friends plan to just hang out at the mall tonight.

LIA: Who? Oh yeah. I remember Lana. She's the one with the scary-looking dog. I don't want to hang out with that dog!

ALAN: Ha! You aren't afraid of that little tiny dog, are you? Well, I'm sure Rover isn't at the mall.

LIA: Actually, I'm headed to the mall later, anyway. There's a huge sale going on. I think they're open extra late.

ALAN: Great! Maybe I'll see you there.

LIA: Sounds good. We're both good shoppers! If I get there before you leave, maybe I'll see you. After all, we aren't leaving until we see all the sales. And I'm not leaving until I have some cute new shoes!

When people ask, “How are you?” they are really just saying, “Hi.” This is not a good time to talk about your health!

The mall isn't just for shopping. Many young people go to the mall to hang around with friends. In a city, however, the place to be might be downtown.

VOCABULARY

- casual: simple, not formal
- ① hang out (also hang around): just spend time with friends, with no special activity
- ① headed: going
- hectic: very busy
- ① hey: hi; also a word to get someone's attention
- huge: very, very, very big
- mall: a large shopping center with stores and restaurants
- sale: a short time of lower prices in a store
- time off: relaxation time for yourself, away from your work
- ① tricky: seems simple, but is a little complicated

PRONUNCIATION POINTER

- In spoken English, we often drop the -ing ending of words. This means that how's it going will sound like how's it goin'. Nothing sounds like nothin'.
- Another very common spoken difference is the word you, which is usually unstressed and sounds like yuh. How are you doing will sound like How yuh doin'.

GRAMMAR REMINDER 1: Verb to be Affirmative Statements and Contractions

Of course, our first grammar reminder just has to be about the verb to be. It may be a little tricky, but it also may be the most important verb in English.

Most speakers use contractions (the short forms) rather than full forms of the verb in affirmative statements. To really sound like a native speaker, practice, practice, practice using contractions! Notice the contractions of the verb to be in the dialogue:

- I'm on my way. (I am)
- You're busy. (You are)
- It's good to see you. (It is)
- She's there. (She is)
- There's a huge sale. (There is)
- We're both good shoppers. (We are)
- They're open extra late. (They are)

GRAMMAR REMINDER 2: Verb to be Questions and Negatives

For questions using the verb to be, put the question word first, then the verb to be in its correct form, and then the subject.

Correct Examples:

How are you?

What's new with you?

Not:

How you are?

What with you is new?

To make a negative, just add n't (or not) to the form of to be. Isn't that easy?

Examples:

You aren't afraid of that little dog.

Rover isn't there.

We aren't leaving.

Meet the Neighbors

:

Although Americans are very friendly, they are also rather private. You may be surprised to know that very often people don't even know their neighbors. In a big city, it's very possible that people living in the same apartment building won't know the people next door. In the suburbs, it's not unusual for neighbors to wave from their cars or to say "Hi" across their yards, but not to know their neighbors' names. Have you noticed how many houses have fences around them? It may seem strange, but it's really just an example of how much Americans value a sense of privacy, especially at home. Friendly, but private—now that's tricky! Of course, some neighbors just like to party all the time. Hoo, boy! That can be a problem.

DIALOGUE 2: TRACK 3

:

LIA: Hi. I'm Lia Chen, your neighbor from around the block. We're having a barbecue Saturday, and we thought you might like to come. Lots of the neighbors will be there. Jae and Ramon are coming, too. They're your neighbors across the street.

ALAN: It's nice to meet you, Lia. I'd like to come, but I'll be working all weekend on a big project for my job.

LIA: Well, if you change your mind, come on over. You're welcome to come, and I think it will be fun for you to meet all the neighbors.

ALAN: Thanks. By the way, I've been meaning to talk to you. I hope my dog's barking doesn't bother you.

LIA: Actually, I wanted to talk to you about that. When you're gone during the day, the dog barks all the time. It's driving me nuts.

ALAN: I'm really sorry! I'll keep the dog in the house when I'm gone.

LIA: Thanks so much. I hope you'll come over for some burgers and dogs on Saturday. And drop by our house to visit anytime!

TIP 3 → When people are trying to be friendly, they may ask you to "drop by anytime." Don't believe it! This is a way of being friendly, but most people don't like unexpected visitors to drop by. It's always a good idea to call first and ask if the person is busy.

TIP 4 → If you are invited to a party or barbecue, it's polite to bring something. Before you go you can ask, "What can I bring?" Even if the host says, "Nothing," you should bring something. It can be a special food treat from your culture or some flowers. Other kinds of gifts are not usually given.

VOCABULARY

- barbecue (also called a cookout): an outside party where food is cooked on a grill
- barking: dog talk!
- block: in a neighborhood, the area from street to street
- ① burgers and dogs: hamburgers and hot dogs
- change your mind: make a different decision from your first one
- ① driving someone nuts (or going crazy): doing something very annoying (or being annoyed)
- ① drop by: go to someone's house without an invitation
- host: person who invites others to a party
- ① lots of: many
- meaning to do something: intending or planning to do something
- next door: the apartment or house right next to yours
- suburbs: neighborhoods just outside the city
- value: think something is very important
- yards: small gardens around houses

Fun Fact!

Many neighborhoods have a “block party” during the summer.
All the neighbors bring some food and drinks to share, and everyone has a great time.

Those Crazy Kids! | (Just for fun)

:

It's probably the same in the country you come from, but teenagers here sometimes sound like they speak a different language. Everyone uses some slang, sometimes, but it seems that teenagers use their own slang all the time! You may not expect to have a conversation like the next one, but you'll probably hear one, and it's fun to know what these crazy kids are talking about.

DIALOGUE 3: TRACK 4

— :

LIA: Say! Wassup?

JAE: Nothing much. What are you up to?

LIA: Nothing really. We're just chillin'.

JAE: Hey, you're really rocking those cool jeans! You're really stylin'.

LIA: Thanks a bunch. They're from the mall. There's a huge sale at that cool store we really like. But, hey, I can't talk now. I gotta run.

JAE: Later, dude.

LIA: Catch you later.

TIP 5

It's fun to know what kids are talking about, but people who aren't teenagers sound funny using this slang. No kidding, dude.

TIP 6

Exclamations are fun! They don't really have a special meaning, but they add excitement to what you're saying. Here are some examples of common American exclamations: Hey! Wow! Yikes! Hoo, boy! Man! Oh, brother! Oh, boy!

VOCABULARY

- ① a bunch: a lot, many
- ① chillin': just relaxing
- ① crazy: this can mean insane, but it's often used to mean funny or silly
- ① dude: guy (man); girls use this to refer to each other, too
- ① gotta run: I don't have time to talk right now; I have to go
- ① kidding: joking
- ① later/catch you later: I'll see you later
- ① rocking: wearing something well
- ① say!: a greeting, like *hey!
- ① stylin': looking very fashionable
- ① teenagers: people from thirteen to nineteen years old
- ① wassup, what're you up to: What's up? What are you doing? What's going on? What's new? What's happening? These expressions are all ways of saying Hi, how are you?

Did you notice the contractions of the plural forms for the verb to be?

- We're just chillin'. (We are)
- You're really stylin'. (You are)
- They're from the mall. (They are)

MORE FUN WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS: Greetings

- How's tricks?: How are things?
I haven't seen you in a while. How's tricks?
- Where have you been hiding?: Where have you been?
Wow, Susan, I haven't seen you in two months? Where have you been hiding?

- welcome with open arms: be very happy to see someone.
When his sister came home from college, his parents welcomed her with open arms.
- tied up: busy
Hey, Sara, I'm glad you called! I'd love to join you for coffee, but I'm tied up until lunchtime.
- What's happening?: What's new?
It's good to see you, Marcus. What's happening?

Unit

2

Getting Around

Riding the Bus

:

No car? No problem!

There are plenty of ways to get around. Most cities and towns have an efficient mass transit system; that is, they have buses or trains to get you where you need to go.

Often, you may need to take a bus to the train station. Sometimes it can be complicated to figure out which bus or train will take you where, but there is help! Most cities have a special department just to provide that information. You can call the transit company to ask. When you call the company, you will need to tell them where you are and where you need to go. You can also ask if you need exact change for the bus. Drivers usually can't accept cash.

DIALOGUE 1: TRACK 5

— :
TRANSIT OFFICE: Good afternoon. Unionville Transit System. This is Stanley speaking.

COMMUTER: Hi. I need some travel information. I need to go to 52nd Street and Broadway. I live on 8th Street, near Fifth Avenue.

TRANSIT OFFICE: Well, you can take the B12 bus to Mercer Street. Then you'll have to catch the B9. You can take the subway, too.

COMMUTER: I live near a bus stop, so I prefer to take the bus. What time does it come?

TRANSIT OFFICE: The buses run about every 15 minutes. Bus schedules are posted at the bus stop. You can also check our website.

COMMUTER: How much does it cost?

TRANSIT OFFICE: You'll need $2 in change. The driver won't take dollar bills, and he won't give you change. Make sure you have exact change.

COMMUTER: Okay. Thanks for the help. Have a good day.

Most bus systems offer a transfer. If you need to take more than one bus to get somewhere, you can get a free transfer to the second bus or train. Ask the driver!

Many companies have an 800 number. An 800 number is a telephone number that will not be charged on your phone bill. Yay! We like free phone calls!

VOCABULARY

- bus stop: the place you must go to wait for a bus (They are several blocks apart. They are usually marked with the bus route and have posted schedules.)
- commuter: someone who travels to and from work on the bus or train, or by car
- complicated: not easy to understand
- efficient: smart and fast
- exact change: the correct number of coins
- mass transit: a transportation system provided by a city
- provide: give
- run: come, on a schedule
- subway: an underground train system
- take/catch the bus or train: get on a bus or train

PRONUNCIATION POINTER

- Even though it looks funny when you write it, the word buses is pronounced busses. In fact, some people spell it with two s's, just like it's pronounced. (Sometimes in English a word may have two correct, but different, spellings or pronunciations.)
- Have to* sounds like hafta in spoken English.

GRAMMAR REMINDER 1: The Present Simple Tense—Affirmative Statements

The present simple tense is used to talk about things that happen all the time or usually. The verb is used in its base form.

Don't forget to add the letter s in the third person (he, she, it)!

Examples:

- I live
- You live
- He, she, or it lives
- We live
- They live

GRAMMAR REMINDER 2: The Present Simple Tense — Negatives, and Questions with does

For present simple third-person questions (except that wacky verb to be), don't forget to use does and the base form of the verb.

Questions — Correct Examples:

What time does it come?

Not:

What time does it comes?

How much does it cost?

How much does it costs?

To form the negative, just add the contraction form of not between does and the base verb.

- It doesn't come late.
- It doesn't cost too much.

GRAMMAR REMINDER 3: The Future Simple Tense Affirmative Statements, and Negatives

Use will (or the short form/contraction) for the future simple tense when talking about a fact.

- You'll have to catch the B9. (You will have to . . .)
- You'll need $2 in change. (You will need . . .)

Use the short form of will not (won't) for the negative.

- The driver won't take dollar bills and he won't take change.

Stay tuned! There will be more reminders about will later on!

Going Underground: The Subway

Large cities have very efficient subway systems. Taking these trains can get you just about anywhere in the city, and you don't have to wait outside in the rain! At some stations, there may be people singing or playing a musical instrument. This can be an entertaining way to wait for the train—unless the singer isn't very good, haha. For most subway systems, you will need a token or farecard. You can buy these right at the station, either at the token booth or at the ticket machine. You can put dollars or credit cards right into the machine. It will give you a farecard in the amount you choose. To get onto the platform, slide the card into the card reader or put a token into the slot.

Then push through the turnstile and hop on the train!

DIALOGUE 2: TRACK 6

ALAN: I need some tokens, please.

TRANSIT WORKER: One way or round trip?

ALAN: Round trip. And I'd like a few extra ones, please.

TRANSIT WORKER: Most people aren't crazy about carrying around a lot of tokens. Maybe you should just get a farecard. It's better than a pocketful of tokens, and you can use it anytime.

ALAN: Thanks. That's a good idea. Do I need exact change for a farecard?

TRANSIT WORKER: No, the machine can take bills, and it will give you change.

ALAN: Thanks for the tip. Now can you tell me where I get the train to Broadway? And where do the trains arrive?

TRANSIT WORKER: Sure. Catch the train right over there. Just follow the signs for Northbound/Uptown trains. You'll have to change at 34th Street for the D train.

ALAN: Thanks. And can you tell me where the restroom is?

TRANSIT WORKER: Right over there on the left.

In some cities like New York City, you can buy a FunPass. This is a special farecard that you can use all day. It usually costs about the same as two trips, but you can use it as many times as you like. It's a real bargain!

Americans rarely ask where the toilet is. Instead they use the word restroom or bathroom. Careful! These public restrooms are not places to take a rest or a bath! These terms are just polite ways of saying toilet.

VOCABULARY

- ① crazy about: really like a lot!
- entertaining: amusing, fun
- farecard: a prepaid card that you can use instead of a token
- ② hop on: get on; jump on
- platform: the place in the station beside the train tracks where you wait for your train
- restroom: toilet
- round trip: there and back again!
- ③ stay tuned: pay attention for more information; don't go away!
- token: used in place of a coin to pay a fare
- token booth: a place in the station where you can buy tokens, and where a transit worker can help you
- turnstile: a machine that lets people go through one by one
- wacky: silly, crazy, complicated

GRAMMAR REMINDER 4: The Present Simple Tense Negatives, and Questions with do

For questions using I, you, or plural subjects, use do and the base form of the verb. To form the negative, just add the contraction form of not between do and the base verb.

Examples:

- Do I need exact change? (I don't have exact change. You don't need exact change.)
- Where do the trains arrive? (They don't arrive on this platform.)

Usage Reminder: I would like is a more polite way of saying I want. It's often shortened to I'd like.

Hey, Taxi! — :

If the train and bus won't take you where you need to go, or if you're in a hurry, you can call a cab. In larger cities, you can hail a cab on the street. Just step off the sidewalk into the street (watch for cars and buses!) and raise your arm. You can also call out, "Taxi!" In cities, the fares are posted right in the cab, and the rates are set by a group that regulates taxi companies.

If you need a ride in a smaller city or town, you can call a car service. This is a private taxi company that usually does not have cars driving around the streets. Drivers wait in the office until someone calls, and then a manager will dispatch a car. You can also call in advance and arrange to be picked up on another day.

DIALOGUE 3: TRACK 7

— :

CAR SERVICE: Little Apple Car Service. This is Larry speaking.

LIA: Hi. I need a car to take me to the airport at 5:30 p.m. tomorrow.

CAR SERVICE: Do you need to be there at 5:30, or is that when you want us to pick you up?

LIA: I need to be at the airport at 5:30 or I'll miss my flight.

CAR SERVICE: That's right in the middle of rush hour. Traffic will be a nightmare at that time. I'll have a car get you at 4 p.m. What's your address?

Tip 5 → Tipping (everyone loves a tipping tip)! Drivers of buses and trains do not get a tip; however, tipping is expected for taxi drivers. The usual tip is 15% to 20%. There is no extra charge for singing cabbies!

VOCABULARY

- arrange: make a plan for something
- ① cab: taxi
- ① cabbie: taxi driver
- dispatch: send
- fare: the cost of the trip
- ① hail a cab: signal that you want a taxi
- in advance: before the time
- ① nightmare: a very bad situation
- ① pick up: get, collect
- rate: how the fare is calculated

- ① rush hour: the very busy traffic times (morning and evenings) when most people are traveling to and from work

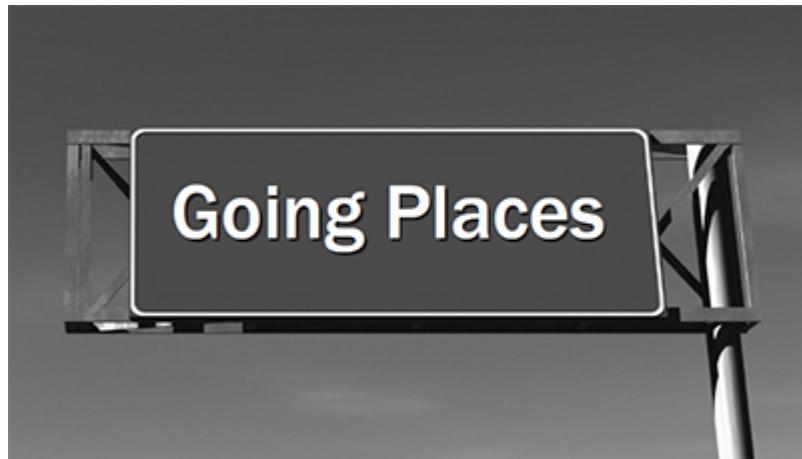

MORE FUN WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS: Transportation

- off track: off the subject
The meeting got off track when Juan began talking about his family's vacation.
- lose track: forget or lose
I lost track of where I put my glasses. How will I be able to read the paper?
- one-track mind: thinking of only one thing
They couldn't make any progress at the meeting because the boss had a one-track mind and could only talk about his golf game that afternoon.
- miss the boat: miss an opportunity
When the salesman came, he offered all the workers free coffee, but Stephen missed the boat because he was chatting on the phone.
- in the same boat: in the same situation
They're both in the same boat: neither of them remembered to do the homework.

Unit

3

Taking a Drive

Everybody Loves the DMV

— ::

Are you fed up with hanging around, waiting for buses and trains? They go everywhere, but waiting at that bus stop gets pretty chilly in the winter. Cabs are really convenient, but they sure can be expensive. What's the perfect solution? Drive! I know, I know. You may not have a car. The good news is that it's cheaper to get a license than to get a car. Ha! And although you can't borrow a driver's license, you can rent a car. But watch out for those crazy drivers! You'll need to make sure you know the rules of the road. Each state has all the information and rules about getting a license on its DMV website. “DMV” stands for Division or Department of Motor Vehicles. The bad news: there is usually a test!

DIALOGUE 1: TRACK 8

— :

LIA: Hi. I'd like to get a New Jersey driver's license.

DMV WORKER: Do you want to renew a New Jersey license or apply for a new one?

LIA: I don't have a New Jersey license, but I have my license from my country.

DMV WORKER: You can't use that here. Do you have an application?

LIA: No, I don't.

DMV WORKER: You'll need to fill out an application. Do you have the required picture ID?

LIA: Yes, I do and I have my passport. Do I need anything else?

DMV WORKER: You can check this list of required documents. If you have all the paperwork, you just need to take a vision test and the written test. When that person is finished, you can go to booth number 9 and have your picture taken.

LIA: Yikes! Can I skip the picture? I'm having a bad hair day!

DMV WORKER: Sorry. Our state requires a photo-license.

Rules for getting your license can be different in each state. Before you go, make sure you check what documents you need. It can be very frustrating to wait on line, then find out you don't have the right documents. You can find out on the DMV website when you check the office hours. This is not a place anyone likes to visit more than once!

TIP 2 → It's a good idea to take a newspaper with you (you can practice reading English). The long lines at the DMV are famous (and not in a good way!). Don't go on a bad hair day. You'll be stuck with that license photo for a long time.

VOCABULARY

- apply: to fill out documents asking to get something
- ① bad hair days: times you just don't look your best
- ① bad news: unpleasant situation
- booth: a small space with a table and, sometimes, a computer
- chilly: a little bit cold
- convenient: easy
- DMV: Division of Motor V- ① fed up (also had enough): tired of something
- frustrating: annoying, making you angry or upset
- GPS: short for Global PSystem; the signal from a satellite that shows exactly where you are
- ① hanging around: just waiting
- paperwork: forms and documents (ugh!) that must be filled out
- picture ID: an Identification D

- renew: bring your old license up-to-date
- required: necessary
- ① skip: omit, leave out
- ① stuck with: required to keep
- vision test: a simple eye test (to be sure you can see that truck behind you!)
- written test: a test taken in the DMV office to test driving knowledge; usually taken on a computer

Fun Fact!

Most big city taxi cabs have a GPS screen in the back. You can watch the crazy turns as you travel to your destination.

GRAMMAR REMINDER 1: The Present Simple Tense—Short Answers

To give a short answer to present simple questions, you don't repeat the verb. Simply say: Yes, I do. Or No, I don't. We usually use the contraction in short answers. In the third person use does and doesn't.

Examples:

- Do you have the required picture ID? Yes, I do.
- Do you have an application? No, I don't.
- Does he have a picture ID? Yes, he does.
- Does she have the paperwork? No, she doesn't.

Remember: The answer will be different with that wacky verb to be!

Examples:

- Are you a good driver? Yes, I am.
- Is he a good driver? No, he isn't!

Let's Go for a Ride!

So you'd like to take the family for a drive in the country. A train might take you there, but it's so much easier to see the sights by driving around in a car. Maybe it's time to rent a car. It's always a good idea to check many car-rental companies to find the best price. You can search on the Internet or call the company's 800 number. What kind of car do you want? You'll need to decide on a type: economy, midsize, or luxury. You can choose the car that fits your needs. Be prepared to pay more for larger cars. You'll also need to buy insurance, just in case a bear in the country decides that your compact car is lunch!

DIALOGUE 2: TRACK 9

LIA: Hello. I'd like to rent a car for the weekend.

FRIENDLY RENT-A-CAR: Do you have your driver's license with you?

LIA: Yes, I do.

FRIENDLY RENT-A-CAR: If you want an economy car, we have a nice compact outside.

LIA: Is it a four-door?

FRIENDLY RENT-A-CAR: No, it isn't. It's a two-door, but it has a hatchback. And it has a sunroof!

LIA: Do you have anything bigger and faster?

FRIENDLY RENT-A-CAR: Well, we have a midsized convertible, but the compact is more economical.

LIA: How about a big van? I have a large family.

FRIENDLY RENT-A-CAR: Sure, we have a van. It's very roomy. It's the biggest and most expensive of the three.

LIA: Well, I'd like the convertible for myself, but I guess I'll take the van. Maybe next time...

When you rent a car, you'll be asked to buy insurance. This is a good idea. If anything happens to the car while you have it, the insurance will pay for any damage. If you use a credit card to rent the car, you may already have insurance coverage. It's a good idea to check with your credit card company first; you can save a few bucks!

VOCABULARY

- ① bucks: dollars
- compact: the smallest size car
- convertible: a car with a special soft roof that folds completely down (Driving with the top down can be great in the summer—not so much fun in the rain!)
- country: far from the city, an area of trees and farms
- damage: harm or injury to a person or to a car
- economy: having to do with saving money
- hatchback: a door at the back that lifts up and out for loading
- luxury: very special, with extra conveniences

- midsized: a medium-sized car, usually with four doors
- rent: pay money to use something for a limited time
- I see the sights: visit attractions in a new place
- sunroof: a window in the roof of the car that can be opened. Be careful in the rain!
- van: a very large vehicle that can carry up to 12 passengers

GRAMMAR REMINDER 2: Comparatives

To compare two short adjectives, use the comparative form. Just add the letters -er to the short adjective.

Examples:

- A midsized car is faster.
- The luxury car is bigger. (Note: sometimes the consonant is doubled.)

To compare longer adjectives, use more.

Example: The smaller car is more economical than the van.

Do not use both more and -er! Do not say more faster.

GRAMMAR REMINDER 3: Superlatives

To compare three or more things with short adjectives, use the superlative form. Use the and the letters -est.

Example: A midsized car is the fastest.

To compare three or more things with longer adjectives, use the and most.

Example: The luxury car is the most comfortable one of all.

Do not use both most and -est! Do not say the most fastest.

Oops. Sorry, Officer

Oops. What are those flashing lights behind you? Oh, no! Were you careful to watch the speed limit signs along the road? Those flashing lights don't mean a party this time; they mean the police officer would like to have a little chat with you. Maybe you shouldn't have rented that fancy car after all.

The flashing lights on a police car usually mean the police officer has noticed a moving violation. If a cop pulls you over, move to the shoulder of the road right away, as safely as you can. Be careful of traffic on the highway! It's important to be respectful to the officer, even if you're not sure why he or she is stopping you.

DIALOGUE 3: TRACK 10

STATE TROOPER: Good morning, sir. I pulled you over because the speed limit is 50 miles per hour. You were driving much faster than that. You were doing 70.

ALAN: I'm sorry, Officer. I didn't notice the sign, but I thought I was driving slower than that.

STATE TROOPER: I need to see your license and registration.

ALAN: I don't have my license with me. I think I left it home.

STATE TROOPER: You need to have license and registration with you in the car at all times, sir. I am going to issue you a ticket for speeding and another one for not having the proper documents. You can call the clerk's office to find out the amount of the fines.

ALAN: Can I just pay you now?

STATE TROOPER: Sir, police officers aren't allowed to take money. You have to call the clerk's office. You can go there to pay in person, or you can mail it in.

ALAN: This is my first speeding ticket.

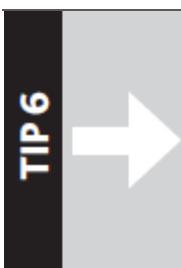

STATE TROOPER: Have a nice day, sir.

Know what documents you need to keep in your car.

If a police officer pulls you over, don't get out of the car. Wait for the police officer to come to your window.

Be polite. Those police officers have had a tough day!

VOCABULARY

- allowed: permitted

- chat: a casual conversation
- ① cop: police officer
- fine: the amount of money you must pay for certain violations
- flashing: shining brightly on and off, very quickly
- in person: going yourself to do something directly
- issue: give out
- moving violation: a motor vehicle law that's broken while driving, such as speeding
- notice: see
- Officer: the respectful title for a policeman or policewoman
- ① pull over: move the car to the side of the road
- registration: a document showing the owner of a car
- shoulder: space on the side of the road, usually marked by a line, where a car can park if there's a problem
- speeding: going faster than the speed limit. This is a no no!
- state trooper: member of the state police force
- ticket: a document showing a road law you've broken; it requires payment of a fine
- ① tough: difficult
- traffic: a lot of cars in the same place on the road

MORE FUN WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS: Cars

- get a lot of mileage out of something: be able to use something for a long time
Even after five years, the sweater looked great. She was happy she got a lot of mileage out of it.
- road hog: a driver who takes up space in more than one lane on a road

She knew she would be late when she got stuck driving behind a road hog on the way to work.

- get the show on the road: get started with something
He spent the whole day packing for his trip, and now he just wanted to get the show on the road.
- traffic jam: many cars stuck on a road without being able to move
He didn't care about being stuck in the traffic jam; he was happy to listen to his new CD.
- lemon: a car (or other item) that continues to have problems even after it's been repaired many times
He was nervous about buying a used car from a stranger. "With my luck," he said, "I'll get a lemon."

Review: Units 1–3

VOCABULARY

Fill in the blanks. Use the words below.

sale
apply rush hour yard skip fine tricky platform sunroof
fare

1. Hey, let's go to the mall today. There's a great _____, so we should be able to get some vacation clothes at a really good price.
2. There's Bob, working in his _____ again. He's always cutting the grass and watering the flowers.
3. The train for New York will depart from _____ number 4.
4. I need to _____ for a New Jersey driver's license.
5. I love a car with a(n) _____ I can open, but my wife complains it messes up her hair and gives her a bad hair day!
6. Dad, can you help me with my math homework? This problem is really _____; I just don't understand it.
7. Let's take the bus; I'm not sure I have enough cash for the taxi _____.

8. The worst time to drive around a city is during _____. There are too many cars and buses crowding the streets.
9. I'm so hungry; I was late getting up this morning and had to _____ breakfast so I wouldn't be late for work.
10. I got stopped by the police for speeding, and now I have to pay a _____.

Answer Key

INFORMAL LANGUAGE

Can you explain these expressions? Try using them in a sentence.

11. headed
12. drive someone nuts
13. hang around
14. fed up
15. pull over
16. change your mind
17. catch the bus
18. see the sights
19. a nightmare
20. hail a cab

Answer Key

GRAMMAR

Choose the correct answer.

21. Hi, how _____ doing?
 - a. you are
 - b. are you
 - c. you is
 - d. is you

22. What time _____ the bus come?
- a. is
 - b. do
 - c. are
 - d. does
23. What time _____ you go to school?
- a. is
 - b. does
 - c. do
 - d. has
24. You'll _____ to take bus number three.
- a. to have
 - b. having
 - c. have
 - d. nothing needed
25. I'm sure it _____ rain tomorrow.
- a. don't
 - b. doesn't
 - c. won't
 - d. isn't
26. Do you like coffee?
- a. Yes, I do.
 - b. Yes, I am.
 - c. No, I do.
 - d. No, I aren't.
27. Does your husband like coffee?
- a. No, he don't.
 - b. No, he doesn't.
 - c. No, he isn't.
 - d. No, he does.
28. It _____ cold near the equator.
- a. isn't

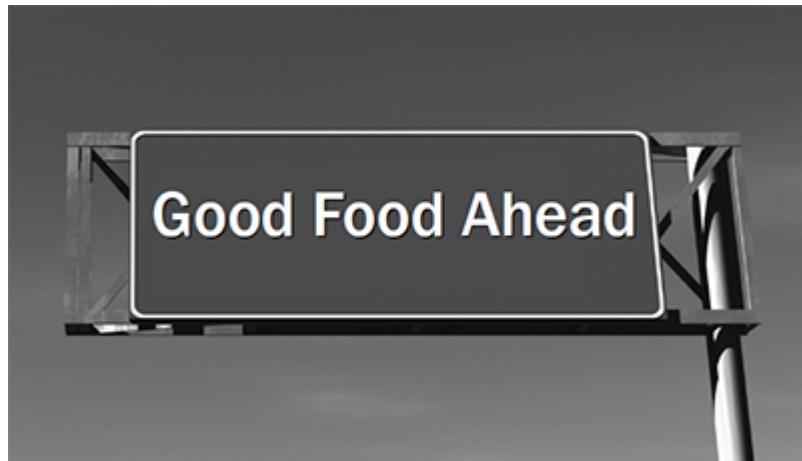

- b. doesn't
 - c. don't
 - d. won't
29. A luxury car is usually _____ than a compact car.
- a. big
 - b. biggest
 - c. bigger
 - d. more big
30. Many cars are more economical, but a big luxury car is _____ of all for a long drive.
- a. the more comfortable
 - b. most comfortable
 - c. the comfortablest
 - d. the most comfortable

Answer Key

Unit

4

Dining in Style

Zipping Through the Drive-Thru

— ::

I don't know about you, but I'm exhausted! All that waiting for the bus and hailing taxis has made me hungry.

Hungry? Yes. In the mood to cook? No way! Hmm. The hard part is deciding where to go and what to eat. Restaurant choices are endless: steaks, vegetarian meals, burgers, pizza, and ethnic cuisine from just about every country on earth. Even the picky eaters will be happy! But I think some takeout is just what the doctor ordered. There's nothing like fast food after a busy day. Ha—fast food for when you're feeling slow.

But don't let fast food's bad rap fool you. It's more than just burgers and fries with a chocolate shake. With people becoming more health conscious (and conscious of those extra pounds!), restaurants are providing more and more healthy choices: salads, water, lean proteins, and whole grain breads. In fact, many restaurants now post the calorie counts of their menu items. I'm not sure I want to know that my mega-cheeseburger lunch has more calories than I need for an entire day!

Once you have your dream dinner in mind, you can just hop into your car and head to the nearest drive-thru. Sure, it may seem a little strange telling a machine that you want a mega-burger with cheese, but when you continue to the window to pay, the cashier will have your juicy burger order all ready to go. Ah, I can taste the fries already...

DIALOGUE 1: TRACK 11

MACHINE GUY: Can I take your order, please?

LIA: Hmm. A burger sounds good. I think I'll have a mega-burger with cheese, extra pickles, no mayo.

MACHINE GUY: Anything to drink with that?

LIA: I'd like a Coke. Extra large.

MACHINE GUY: Anything else?

LIA: Yes, a kids' meal with chocolate milk and chicken nuggets.

MACHINE GUY: Would you like fries with that?

LIA: Hmmm. The fries smell great, but do you have fruit instead?

MACHINE GUY: Sure. You can have an apple or fruit cup.

KID: Mom, you know I like fruit cup, but I'd like to have the apple. But only if they put a pie around it!

TIP 1  Most places will fix the food to order. Just ask if you want something a little different from the usual preparation.

TIP 2  Although fast food places offer many choices, don't expect a gourmet meal. There's a reason it's called fast food!

VOCABULARY

- ① bad rap (also called a bum rap): an unfair bad opinion
- cashier: the person who takes the money when you buy something
- chicken nuggets: small pieces of chicken, covered in a batter and deep fried (come on . . . we know you love them!)
- conscious of: aware of, thinking about
- ① dream: anything that is just PERFECT! (a dream job, a dream vacation)
- ① drive-thru: Yep! a lane outside the restaurant you drive right through; order your food at one end, and pick it up at the other
- ethnic cuisine: cooking styles from different cultures
- exhausted: really, really tired
- to fix the food to order: prepare exactly as you would like it
- fruit cup: a serving of mixed fruits
- gourmet: very special food, often expensive

- health conscious: concerned about things that are good for your health
- ① hop into: get into
- ① in the mood: wanting to do something
- ① just what the doctor ordered: something that will be perfect for what you need
- ① kids: children
- ① mayo: short for mayonnaise, a white spread made from eggs and oil
- ① picky eaters: people who don't like many different kinds of food
- pie: a pastry treat, usually prepared with fruit
- post: show clearly
- takeout: pretty much what it says. You buy the food, and take it with you to eat at home
- ① thru: a short way to write through
- vegetarian: without meat products
- whole grains: grains (for example, oat and wheat) that are not processed

PRONUNCIATION POINTER

:

Don't forget to connect your words and phrases like native speakers do.
Hop into sounds like hoppinto.

GRAMMAR REMINDER 1: Stative Verbs

Some verbs (called stative verbs) are usually only used in the simple form. They refer to states or conditions. Examples of stative verbs are verbs of the senses (for example, smell and taste) and verbs of feeling (for example, love, like, hate, and want).

Can you see the stative verbs in the dialogue above?

- The fries smell great.
- I like fruit cup.

GRAMMAR REMINDER 2 : Would You Like or Do You Like?

Should you say what would you like or what do you like?

You remember that I would (I'd) like is a more polite way to say what you want than I want. However, someone may just want to know, in general, what you like. Then you may hear, “What do you like?” You might answer that, in general, you like something: “I like coffee because it helps me wake up.”

If someone asks you what you would like, they are asking what you want to eat or drink at that moment. If they ask you what you like, it is a general question about your preferences.

Examples:

What would you like, tea or coffee?

I'd like a coffee, please; I'm feeling really sleepy so I need something to wake me up.

What do you like: tea, coffee, or soda?

I like coffee best, but the caffeine keeps me awake.

A Little More Upscale

:

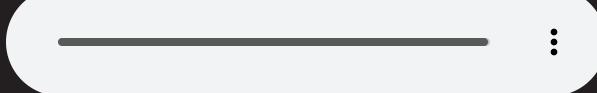

Maybe you've decided that a table near a window sounds better than a front seat near a windshield. It may be time to splurge on a nice dinner out. It's easy to find a nice sit-down restaurant without breaking the bank. Especially in a tough economy, restaurants will do almost anything to get your business. Lots of places offer a Restaurant Week menu all year. Take advantage of the early-bird special. You can have a fancy dinner at a much lower price.

Many restaurants are chain restaurants; this means they have restaurants of the same name and type in many towns or cities. At many places, you can call ahead and make a reservation, and they will save a table for you at a certain time. They'll ask what time you'd like to eat, and how many will be in your party. Some restaurants won't take a reservation. For those places, you check in at the hostess station when you arrive. The hostess will write down your name and call you when a table is free. Some very popular restaurants have a very long wait for a table. The hostess may give you a cool little gadget to hold while you wait in the bar or outside. When a table becomes available, the gadget buzzes and vibrates and little lights start flashing. (This can be very entertaining!) The flashing lights mean that your table is ready. The wait is no fun, but the little gadget sure is.

DIALOGUE 2: TRACK 12

SERVER: Hi. Welcome to the Farkel Family Restaurant. I'll be your server today. You're just in time for our early-bird special, so you can choose from that menu or from the regular menu. Can I start you off with some appetizers and something to drink?

ALAN: I think I may have a beer. What do you have on draft?

SERVER: We have Statler Lite and Orange Cow on tap.

ALAN: What's your house wine?

SERVER: The house red is a Napa Valley cabernet, and the house white is a chardonnay from Mendoza, Argentina.

ALAN: I'll have a glass of cabernet.

SERVER: And for you, ma'am?

LIA: I'm driving so I'll just have an OJ.

SERVER: Would you like any appetizers?

ALAN: No, I think we'll just have the entree. I'll have the filet mignon.

SERVER: Sure. How would you like it?

ALAN: I'd like it rare. And hold the mushrooms.

SERVER: And for you, ma'am?

LIA: I'll have the seafood combination with rice.

SERVER: The dinner comes with a vegetable. What would you like?

ALAN: I'll have broccoli and a side salad.

LIA: And I'll have some sautéed onions with the seafood.

TIP 3 → Steak is usually prepared to order. If you like your meat very lightly cooked, order it rare. More cooked, but still pink is medium. Cooked for a longer time with no pink is well done.

TIP 4 → A party in a restaurant is not necessarily a birthday party, although it could be. Confused? A party is simply the number of people in a group wishing to share the same table.

TIP 5 → The law is very clear: Don't drink and drive! Many people have a “designated driver” when they go out. This person will not drink any alcohol, and he or she will be responsible for driving.

VOCABULARY

- appetizer: a small dish of food served before the main meal
- ① breaking the bank: costing too much for your budget
- ① check in: let the staff know that you would like a table
- dinner out: Yes! Eating anywhere but home
- ① early-bird special: a lower-cost menu, usually offered before 6 p.m.
- entrée: the main meal
- filet mignon: a very tender cut of steak
- flashing: going on and off very quickly
- free: available; can also mean at no cost
- gadget: a cool little device that has some special use
- ① hold: don’t include something
- hostess station: usually at the front of the restaurant, where the staff will take your name
- house wine: the brand of wine a restaurant serves if the customer doesn’t want something particular
- how would you like it?: how you would like your meat cooked (rare, medium, or well done)
- ① just in time: arrived right before it’s too late
- Napa Valley: a famous wine region in California
- ① OJ: Orange Juice:
- on draft, on tap: pulled from a keg, rather than served in a bottle
- party: the people who are joining you for dinner
- Restaurant Week: a week when fancy restaurants offer a special menu at lower cost
- sautéed: fried quickly in an open pan

- seafood: various types of fish
- server: also called a waiter or waitress
- side salad: a small salad served with or before the entree
- ① sit-down restaurant: a nicer restaurant with tables and waiters who will serve you
- splurge: spend a little extra money for a special treat
- upscale: a little fancier; more special
- windshield: the large front window of a car

GRAMMAR REMINDER 3: Count/Noncount Nouns

Count nouns (things you can count, for example, one glass, two glasses... you get the idea!) will take the verb that goes with the number. However, noncount nouns (things you can't count, for example, wine, sugar, and water) take a singular verb.

Note: Count nouns are sometimes called countable nouns and noncount nouns are sometimes called uncountable nouns. It's the same idea, no matter what they're called: some things you can count, and some things you can't!

Examples:

Water is the healthiest beverage. (noncount)

The house wine is delicious. (noncount)

Some scientists say that sugar is not good for your health. (noncount)

Two glasses (of wine) are expensive. (count)

A cup (of coffee) is a nice dessert. (count)

Remember: A noncount noun (for example, beer, coffee) acts like a count noun if you put it into a container: a bottle of beer; a cup of coffee. In fact, if you simply say a beer or a coffee, people will know what you want. See how Lia asks for a Coke in dialogue 1 and Alan asks for a beer in dialogue 2.

Is This What I Ordered?

We know what you're thinking: I'm having a lovely dinner out, why should I complain? American restaurants place a top priority on excellent service. Because people have so many choices when dining out, if a restaurant's service isn't perfect, it can lose customers. The waiters and waitresses know that great service equals great tips, so they'll do their best to be sure you have an excellent meal. But, let's face it: everyone has a bad day. You may have a beef about something if the food or service is not right.

Servers are not surprised if a customer has a legitimate complaint. For example, it is absolutely unacceptable for anything in the place setting to be dirty. Your server should apologize and immediately replace the item with one that is spotlessly clean. Although this is not fast food, if the service is too slow or if the waiter doesn't ask often enough if there's anything you need, then you can complain. If the food is not hot when it arrives, you can complain. If you don't get the dish that you ordered, you can complain. Of course, the best way to complain is to be very polite.

If there has been a problem and if you're polite when you mention it, the restaurant staff will usually try their best to correct their mistake. There's an expression in English: "You can catch more flies with honey than with vinegar." This means that if you are polite, people will try to make you happy. If you are rude, they may not try their best.

DIALOGUE 3: TRACK 13

ALAN: Miss... Excuse me, but my glass has a smudge on it.

SERVER: I'm terribly sorry sir. I'll get you a clean one right away.

 Some time later ***

ALAN: Miss, I'm still waiting for a clean glass, and we still haven't received our salads. We've been waiting a long time for our food.

SERVER: I am SO sorry! We're a little busier than usual tonight, and we're short-staffed. I'll bring it immediately. I'll also bring more water.

 A few moments later ***

SERVER: Here you are, sir, and I've brought you another glass of wine, on the house. The manager would also like to give you a dessert of your choice, also compliments of the house. We're so sorry for the mix-up. Sorry you had to wait.

ALAN: Thank you very much.

TIP 6

A polite way to address a man you don't know is sir. Use ma'am for a woman.

TIP 7

Another tip about tips: You should tip in restaurants. For many servers, tips make up most of their pay. Usually the tip is 15% to 20% of the bill. If the food/service is exceptionally good, you may like to leave a little more.

PRONUNCIATION POINTER

:

We get the word ma'am from the formal word madam. You may never hear the word madam, but you will surely hear ma'am, pronounced mam, as in dam or Sam.

VOCABULARY

- absolutely: completely
- apologize: say you are sorry for something
- backstroke: you guessed it... a swimming move done on your back!
- ① bad day: a day when you seem to have a lot of problems
- ① beef about: complain
- correct: fix; to make something right
- ① face it: accept the truth
- immediately: at once; right away
- legitimate complaint: a good reason for mentioning a problem
- lovely: very nice
- mention: say
- ① mix-up: a mistake
- ① on the house, compliments of the house: it's FREE!
- place setting: dishes, glasses, and silverware on the table
- server: waiter or waitress
- short-staffed: not enough people working
- smudge: a dirty mark
- spotless: perfectly clean
- top priority: most important

Fun Fact!

Restaurant jokes are popular. Here's one:

Customer: Hey, waiter, what is this fly doing in my soup?

Waiter: I think it's doing the backstroke!

GRAMMAR REMINDER 4: More Count/Noncount Nouns

More tips for count/noncount nouns:

Singular count nouns take articles (a, an, the). Noncount nouns are usually considered singular, but they do not take articles.

Example:

- I would like an apple. (count)
- I think I'll have a glass of beer. (count)
- The glass is dirty. (count)
- Rice is a good choice with seafood. (noncount)
- Sugar is good in coffee. (noncount)

MORE FUN WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS: Food

- chew the fat: have a casual conversation
After the meeting, Tom and Susan stayed a few minutes to chew the fat.
- in a nutshell: a summary
The park ranger gave a very long report about the dangers of forest fires. In a nutshell: Be careful with your campfires!
- a piece of cake: easy!
Lina was so relieved about her driving test. She had expected it to be tricky and hard, but it was a piece of cake!

- take it with a grain of salt: don't believe it completely Because the study was done by a company that wants to sell the product, people should take the results with a grain of salt.
- butter someone up: say nice things to someone to win his or her favor
Ellen was hoping for a promotion at work, so she tried to butter up the boss with compliments about how nice she looked. (But we bet the boss took the compliment with a grain of salt!)

Unit

5

Get Moving

Play Ball!

— : —

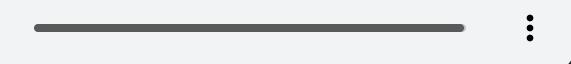

Sometimes it may seem like it, but eating, and waiting for the bus aren't the only fun (!) activities that Americans enjoy. Americans love their sports. They play sports, and they watch sports; their kids play sports, and they watch their kids play sports... you get the idea. Organized sports make it easy for adults and children to join local teams and play their favorite sports competitively. Local towns have sign-ups each season for various teams. Heck, our husbands think they're superstars of the over-40 soccer team! (They still think they're 21, but that's a topic for another book.) Many companies sponsor teams, and their employees practice and play after work. On weekends, lots of people love to catch a game, either on TV or at the stadium.

Although Americans enjoy almost every sport, major league baseball is often considered the all-American sport. Couch potatoes enjoy watching every game on TV. The season's high point is the championship series between the top two professional teams. Yes, even though the teams only come from the U.S. or Canada, the championship is called the World Series. I guess the baseball "world" is smaller than the real world.

When the seasons change, so do the sports. Soccer (yes, we know the rest of the world calls it football) is becoming very popular, and a pickup game of basketball is always fun. Some U.S. presidents even shoot hoops on the White House basketball court. But in the winter, Americans love their football! (Yes, we know the rest of the world calls it American football.) And what could be better than combining two favorites: football and food. The concession stands at any sports activity are always crowded. No health food here; the favorites are hot dogs, fries, hot pretzels, peanuts, and beer. In fact, the last football game of the season, the Super Bowl, is a hugely popular event with lots of parties and, of course, plenty of junk food. Yum!

DIALOGUE 1: TRACK 14

LIA: Wow, look at that guy. He can really move!

ALAN: What's the big deal? I can do that!

LIA: Ha! You want me to believe that you can run like a football player?

ALAN: You don't think I can? Of course I can! Okay, maybe I can't. But I sure could run when I was in high school. I was a star of the school track team.

LIA: Wow, you can remember all the way back to high school? Well, let's just watch the pros. Woo hoo! Touchdown!

JAE: I don't know about anyone here running, but both of you sure can eat. You're hogging all the snacks. If you guys don't stop pigging out, there won't be any left for the next half. Pass the nachos.

LIA: Here, dig in.

ALAN: Not me! I guess that's a hint that I should watch my weight, haha!

During the Super Bowl is the perfect time to go to a restaurant or go shopping. The place will be empty! Everyone will be home watching the game.

VOCABULARY

- ① big deal: something important
- ① catch a game: watch a game
- competitively: playing to win
- concession stand: place to buy snacks at a game
- ① couch potato: someone who prefers to relax and watch TV
- ① dig in: eat and enjoy!
- ① he can really move: an expression of admiration at someone's ability to run
- ① heck: another exclamation; just for fun
- hint: a gentle suggestion
- ① hogging: keeping most of something for yourself

- ⑩ junk food: food that tastes great but isn't good for you (Come on, we know you love it!)
 - major league: professional baseball; also an idiom meaning “really important”
 - nachos: a snack of crispy tortilla chips, melted cheese, and salsa
 - organized sports: local teams that meet on a regular basis
 - pickup game: an unscheduled, informal game that happens when people just start playing at a park or other place
- ⑩ pigging out: eating greedily
 - pretzels: a popular salty snack, sometimes soft, sometimes crunchy, in a twisted shape
 - pro: professional sports player
- ⑩ shoot hoops: play basketball
 - sign-ups: when people join a local team
 - stadium: an arena, or place where a game is played
 - touchdown: scoring six points in football (Yes, we mean American football!)
 - various: different
 - watch one's weight: be careful about diet and avoid gaining extra pounds

GRAMMAR REMINDER 1: Modal Verbs of Ability – Can

Can is what we call a modal verb. It's followed by another “regular” verb in its base form (without any other changes made to it). Can is used to show (among other things) ability in the present. When you use a modal verb, do not add the letter -s on the third-person singular form.

Correct Examples:

I can swim/He can swim.

Not:

He cans swim.

I can't swim.

Can you swim?

He can swims.

Fun Fact!

Some sports events begin with eating contests! (We are not making this up.) People will see who can eat the most hot dogs or chicken wings. (burp!)

PRONUNCIATION POINTER

:

The verb can is pronounced ken or kin depending on the stress. This is important to make your meaning clear. Listen carefully to the dialogue to hear how the different stress affects the sound of the word.

GRAMMAR REMINDER 2: Modal Verbs of Ability—Could

To express ability (can) in the past, we use could.

Examples:

I could play soccer when I was young but I can't anymore.

I couldn't swim when I was a kid, but I learned as an adult.

Could you keep track of your finances before computers?

Members Only! Joining a Gym

:

So you've decided that watching TV sports is fine for Saturday afternoons, but instead of becoming a couch potato, you'd like to do something active to stay in shape. Maybe you prefer building muscle strength to improving your grip on the snack bowl... If you can't work a sports team into your schedule, you can always join a gym. There you'll find all the fitness equipment you need to work out. Most gyms have special pricing plans that allow you to come in as many times as you'd like. You can do your own thing or join classes.

You can even get a personal trainer to help with an individual plan. Many gyms even have a pool, and, of course, they all have locker rooms for changing and storing your stuff, as well as showers. Believe us: the people sitting next to you on the bus will be very happy you took a shower after your workout!

DIALOGUE 2: TRACK 15

— :

LARRY: Hi. Fitness World Gym. Larry speaking. How can I help you?

LIA: Yes, I'd like some information on your gym memberships, please.

LARRY: Sure. We have two different types of membership: You can pay as you go, where you pay $5 every time you want to use the facilities and $5 for every class you attend. Then there's the monthly plan where you pay a flat rate of $45 per month. With the monthly plan, you can come in as often as you want and go to as many classes as you want. Both plans require an annual fee.

LIA: Sounds good. What equipment do you have?

LARRY: All the usual stuff. We have a cardio room with treadmills, ellipticals, all that kind of stuff; a weight room with all sorts of weight machines and free weights.

LIA: What classes can I take?

LARRY: We have yoga, pilates, aerobics . . . There's a whole bunch of them. Check out our website for information on the class schedules.

LIA: Is there a pool?

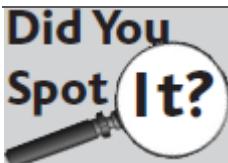

LARRY: No, but we do have a sauna, café, and babysitting facilities.

LIA: That's great! What about the hours?

LARRY: We're open every day from 6 a.m. to 11 p.m. Would you like me to schedule a tour for you?

LIA: Hey great. Can you throw in a free day pass too?

LARRY: Sure. Drop in anytime, and I'll give you a day pass.

There's that polite phrase I'd like again.

Lots of places will give you a free day pass to try out their facilities. Just ask!

When thinking about a gym membership, remember to read the fine print in the contract. You may find out that there are penalties if you decide to quit before the contract is over.

VOCABULARY

- ① all sorts of: a variety
- annual fee: a yearly fee in addition to other fees
- cardio: activities geared toward keeping the heart strong
- ① check out: look at
- ① do your own thing: do something independently, without a group
- drop in (also drop by): come in, visit
- ellipticals: exercise machines
- fine print: the small words in a contract that usually contain all the exceptions to the deal
- flat rate: a payment plan where one fee includes all activities
- grip: grasp on an object
- ① kind of stuff: things of a similar type
- ① lots of: a lot of; many
- pay as you go: a plan where you pay only for what you use
- schedule: make an appointment
- stay in shape: maintain (keep) a healthy body through diet and exercise
- ① stuff: things
- ① throw in: add something for free
- treadmills: exercise machines
- ① whole bunch, lots of: many
- ① work out (v.): exercise
- ① workout (n.): an exercise session

Extreme Sports

:

Are TV sports and fitness workouts still too tame? If you have an adventurous streak, you'll be able to find something more exciting. In fact, you'll be able to find just about any exciting adventure you can imagine. How about scuba diving or sailing? Many rivers are perfect spots for whitewater rafting or tubing through the rapids. There are commercial operations where you'll be able to take helicopter flights or rides in a small plane over popular attractions. Have you ever thought about a soaring adventure? A glider plane will quietly drift high over a scenic area. Maybe a ride in a hot air balloon at dawn is just what you need for a special relaxing experience. For the opposite of relaxation, try skydiving—just don't ask us to jump out of that plane with you. In some mountain areas, you'll be able to take a cable car ride to the top of the mountain. And who doesn't want to jump off a bridge? Bungee jumping is just the thing. In many forested areas, you'll be able to enjoy a zipline above the trees. We don't know about you, but a nap on the couch is sounding better and better . . .

DIALOGUE 3: TRACK 16

LIA: Hey, do you guys feel like heading up the Delaware River next weekend? The weather should be great, so we'll be able to go canoeing.

ALAN: You know me; I'm up for anything.

LIA: Cool. My brother has a boat on a lake nearby. We'll be able to spend a day on the river and then go waterskiing the next day.

JAE: A boat? Count me out. I get really seasick.

LIA: Oh, don't be such a chicken. It's a small boat on a small lake.

JAE: Seriously, if it moves on the water, and I'm in it, I will throw up!

ALAN: Okay, Lia, it looks like it's just you and me for waterskiing. Do you think you'll be able to handle it?

LIA: What, put two pieces of wood on my feet and glide across the water? Of course I can!

JAE: Sorry I won't be able to join you, though I bet it will be pretty funny to watch! Maybe I'll just watch a game on TV.

ALAN: It's your loss! You'll miss seeing your two friends water-ski like pros!

TIP 4 There's a reason some of these are called "extreme" sports. They can be dangerous. Companies that provide the experiences are very serious about safety precautions. Always follow the safety rules.

TIP 5 A gift certificate for an adventure experience is a great idea for a special holiday occasion for a very special person.

VOCABULARY

- adventurous streak: the part of your personality that wants excitement
- attractions: interesting or fun places to see
- bungee jumping: jumping from a very high place, connected only to an elastic cord
- chicken: a coward; someone who is afraid of something
- count me in: plan on doing something or being included in something
- count me out: plan on not doing something or not being included in something
- dawn: very early morning before sunrise
- drift: float
- feel like: want to

- glide: move easily
- glider: a special light plane with no engine that sails on air currents
- ① handle it: be able to do something
- hot air balloon: a balloon for traveling through the air (A basket holds the people and the balloon is powered by heated air.)
- nap: a short sleep
- operations: businesses
- precautions: things to do to keep safe
- rapids: fast-moving parts of a river
- scuba: self-contained underwater breathing apparatus (for the tank that supplies oxygen); deep sea diving
- skydiving: jumping out of a plane for fun! AAAACKKK!!!
- tame: calm, easy
- ① throw up: a yucky (eeew!) phrase meaning to be sick to your stomach
- tubing: going down a river in a special float shaped like a tire tube
- ① up for: ready to do something
- whitewater rafting: going down a fast-moving river in a special raft
- ① your loss: a way of saying you'll be sorry you didn't do something
- zipline: a cable connected to pulleys that lets you slide across

GRAMMAR REMINDER 3: Will Be Able to for Future Ability

Can expresses ability in the present, and could is for the past. For future ability, use will be able to.

Examples:

We'll be able to go canoeing.

Do you think you'll be able to handle it?

Usage Reminder: Feel like is a really informal way of saying would like to do something.

- Hey, I feel like ordering a pizza. Do you want some?
- Yeah, I feel like a pizza, too. Count me in.

MORE FUN WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS: Baseball

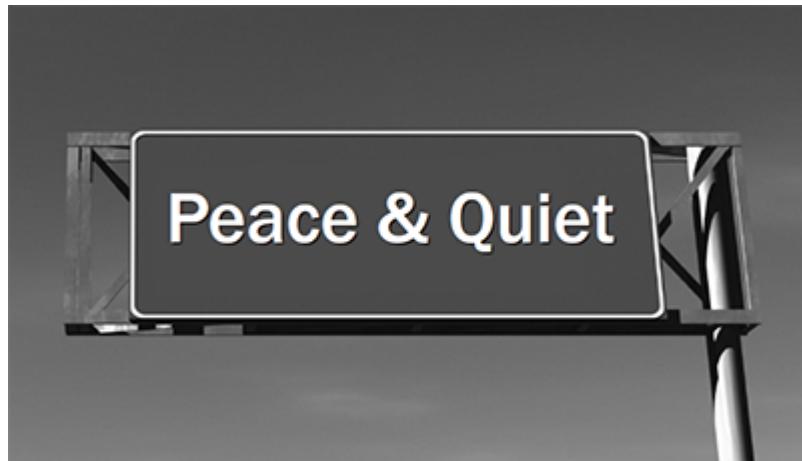

Lots of idioms are based on sports. Here are a few common ones from baseball:

- hit a home run; knock it out of the park: excel at some task
Susan was nervous about performing the song in front of an audience, but she knocked it out of the park!
- the home stretch: coming to the end of a project
After spending all summer on the business proposal, the team was in the home stretch by the time the deadline got close.
- a ball park figure: an estimate
When they started to plan the party, they didn't know exactly how many people would come, but they had a ballpark figure.
- throw a curveball: face an unexpected complication
Just when Irina thought she had all the expenses for the trip planned, the airline threw her a curveball by charging a fee for her extra suitcase.
- cover all the bases: make sure there are no problems at any part of a project
Although she saved her project document on the hard drive of her computer, she decided to cover all the bases and save the project to a flash drive too.

Unit

6

Get Away from It All

Day Tripping

You've spent all that time working out and getting into shape. You must be exhausted! It's the perfect time for a vacation. There are vacation options for any style and to suit any pocketbook. Give me a five-star hotel in a fancy resort. But my buddy prefers a small tent and a backpack full of camping gear. (Eew! Bugs!) Let's take a look at some of the choices.

Maybe you're on a tight budget. (Maybe you spent too much for that gym membership!) Or you may have a crazy schedule at work, and you can't take too many days off, but you'd still like some R&R. There's a perfect solution, and even a new word to describe it: staycation. Instead of going away, you stay right at home and do fun vacation things nearby. These day trips can be as much fun as a fancy vacation. Consider a trip to the art museum, or attend a concert. Pack up the kids, pack the car, and head to the beach for a day of sun, sand, and surf. Places like New York City have ferries you can ride for free. These boats will make you feel like you're on a fancy cruise—well, a fancy cruise without waiters and fancy meals . . . ha! (In New York City, the ferry to Staten Island gives you a spectacular view of the Statue of Liberty, and it's free!) Feeling seasick? Go to a nearby park where you can enjoy a nature hike through the woods. (Watch out for the skunks.) Many local parks have wilderness trails with signs that identify trees, plants, and animals you may see along your walk. For a day that's a bit more expensive, you might try a kid-friendly place like the zoo, an amusement park, or a water park. Don't forget the sunscreen!

DIALOGUE 1: TRACK 17

ALAN: You have a sunburn, Lia. I think you enjoyed your vacation a little too much.

LIA: Actually, we just stayed home. We took day trips, and we discovered places we didn't even know about right in the neighborhood. We even visited the zoo. It was great fun!

ALAN: Wow! What a great idea. I finished painting the house. It was not great fun.

LIA: I printed out some new recipes and cooked some interesting ethnic meals, too. After we cleaned up, we walked around the neighborhood and chatted with the neighbors. And one day we traveled to the beach and practiced our beach volleyball skills. I think that's my new favorite sport. The whole week really was a fun staycation.

Watch out for hidden extras you may not have thought about. You may have to pay to park your car or pay to go on the beach in some places.

Depending on how ““wild”” your wilderness trail is, you may have to keep an eye open for critters and bugs (eeew!). And we don’t even want to think about snakes. AAAACKKKK!

If there’s a fun attraction near where you live, look into a season pass. This will allow you to go as many times as you want all year. It’s usually a pretty good deal.

VOCABULARY

- ① buddy: friend
- ① critter: fun word for small animals
- day trips: short trips that last about —you guessed it— a day
- ① deal: bargain, a good price
- ferry: a medium-size or large boat that just goes short hops, back and forth from one place to another
- ① give me: I prefer
- hidden extras: expenses that aren’t included in the main cost
- ① keep an eye open: be alert
- kid-friendly: designed to appeal to kids

- odor: a bad smell
- ① pack up the kids: gather the kids and their stuff
- ① R&R: Rest and Relaxation; a vacation
- skunk: a small black animal with a white stripe that makes a terrible odor when it's frightened
- spectacular: wonderful
- ① staycation: term for a vacation when you stay at home and do local things
- suit any pocketbook: be a cost you can afford
- sunburn: Ouch! It's that redness of the skin from being in the sun too long
- sunscreen: lotion to protect skin from the sun
- surf: waves and sea; the beach
- ① tight budget: not a lot of money to spare

(Not Very) Fun Fact!

If your dog gets sprayed by a skunk (eeew!), giving the dog a bath in tomato juice may remove the odor.

GRAMMAR REMINDER 1: The Past Simple Tense Affirmative Statements, Regular Verbs

We love the simple past tense of regular verbs; just add the letters -ed. Can you find all the regular verbs in the dialogue?

PRONUNCIATION POINTER

:

Remember that the -ed ending of the simple past tense can be pronounced three different ways:

- After a voiced sound (you can feel the vibration of your vocal cords), or in verbs ending in a vowel, it's pronounced d (like dog).

Examples: called = calld; involved = involvd

- After a voiceless sound (no vibration), it's pronounced t (like top).

Examples: picked = pickt; stepped = stept

- After a verb ending with the letter d or t, we hear the syllable id.

Examples: granted = grant id; started = start id; needed = need id

Going Wild

:

You love adventure! You love the outdoors! You love cooking hot dogs over an open campfire! We have just the vacation for you: camping! Yes, for the brave soul who's not afraid of critters, bad weather, and bad food, this is another fun vacation choice. Camping requires a lot of very careful advance planning. You'll need to have gear for hot weather and cold, for rain and sunshine, and for grassy fields and rocky riverbanks. If you're in the middle of nowhere, you'll need to carry your own food for all your meals, pots to cook it in, plates to serve it on, and utensils to eat it with. That means a big (and heavy) knapsack. You'll also need to carry around your own little hotel—a tent—and the equipment to put it up. Don't forget a sleeping bag. I'm exhausted just thinking about it! People who love camping say there's nothing as wonderful as sleeping under the stars. We don't know about you, but we're thinking that would make us bear bait. No, thanks! We don't want a bear to eat us for a snack before we can even eat our own trail mix! People tell us that camping can be fun, but we'd rather stay at a fancy hotel.

DIALOGUE 2: TRACK 18

— :

LIA: Our camping trip was sure a surprise.

ALAN: Uh-oh. What happened?

LIA: Well, it started out fine. We planned the trip carefully and found exactly the right snacks. We packed all our stuff, and we bought brand-new hiking boots. We pitched our tent right beside a small lake.

ALAN: That sounds good.

LIA: It sounded good to us, too . . . until we finished our hike the first day. We forgot to break in the new boots! Our feet were sore and blistered. Then we noticed the big black clouds, and disaster struck! It poured all night. When we woke up in the morning, the tent was collapsed around us, and we were lying in a huge puddle.

ALAN: Ha, ha! I guess next time you'll stay in a hotel!

TIP 4

Don't overpack! Remember you'll be toting that stuff for the whole trip!

TIP 5

It's very important to be careful with campfires. Thousands of acres of a World Heritage Site National Park in Chile burned when a tourist was careless with a campfire.

If you bring it in, bring it out! Don't leave any trash where you camp.

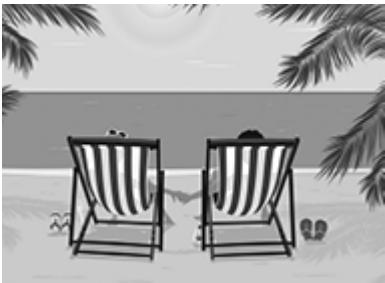

VOCABULARY

- advance: before you go
- bait: a food attraction for animals
- blister: a sore on the foot from rubbing against a new shoe
- brand-new: very new
- brave soul: someone who is not afraid
- ⓘ break in: wear a bit to make them softer
- campfire: a small fire made from sticks and leaves
- gear: equipment; stuff you need
- knapsack: a large backpack
- ⓘ middle of nowhere: a remote place far from any towns
- outdoors: woods, fields, wilderness; outside
- overpack: put too much stuff in your bag
- pitched: put up
- pour: rain very hard
- puddle: pool of water left by the rain
- riverbanks: the sides of rivers
- sleeping bag: a padded blanket that zips around the body for sleeping
- tent: a portable shelter made of cloth
- tote: carry
- trail mix: a special high-energy snack with fruit, grains, and nuts
- under the stars: outside

- utensils: cutlery: knives, spoons, and forks

Fancy-Schmancy

Now we're talking about our favorite vacation! Camping is fun if you like sleeping in a tent. In the rain. With bugs. But give us a high-class resort any day! These can be very expensive, but they're fun to dream about even if we can't go. The amenities at a five-star resort can make you feel like royalty, so even if the weather is bad, you'll have a great time. An all-inclusive resort is perfect if you can't be bothered keeping track of your expenses. The price includes all meals, drinks, and entertainment. Golf or tennis, the fitness center, and children's activities are also included. The rooms are often larger, with king-sized beds. Some places have all suites, so you can really spread out. And the hotel usually has a concierge who can arrange many extra excursions in the local area, like chartering a boat to go deep-sea fishing, or planning a parasailing adventure. Be aware that these excursions are not included in the cost. Other amenities that may not be included are the spa, a salon, and other trips to nearby attractions. Be sure to know in advance exactly what fun activities are included. The downside to an all-inclusive plan is that you may decide not to explore the local town restaurants. After all, you've already paid for your meals at the hotel. On the other hand, if you're in heaven, who wants to leave anyway?

DIALOGUE 3: TRACK 19

ALAN: Wow, we had a great time on vacation!

LIA: Yeah, Susan told me you went to a really cool place.

ALAN: Yeah, it was an awesome, all-inclusive resort. We paid for the hotel, and everything we wanted to do was included.

LIA: Tell me more.

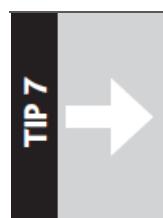

ALAN: Well, the kids spent lots of time in the arcade. Susan and I were happy because they had a beautiful golf course. And of course we spent hours on the beach. It was heaven—just sitting in beach chairs and watching the ocean.

LIA: What about water sports?

ALAN: Oh, it was so cool! We dove for shells one day and water-skied another day. The camp counselors taught the kids how to make paper boats—they thought it was awesome! We even brought some little boats home for souvenirs.

LIA: Wow. You were busy.

ALAN: Yeah, we sure were! But I think we ate and drank a little too much. It's time for a diet.

Check to see if the gratuity is included in the cost. Tips could be a hidden extra!

You can request in advance the type of bed you'd like. A room will usually have either one king-sized bed or two queen-sized. You can request a roll-away cot if you need an extra bed for the kids.

VOCABULARY

- all-inclusive: (almost) all activities and food are included in the price
- amenities: things the hotel provides
- arcade: a special area for games and prizes
- awesome: great! fantastic! fabulous!
- can't be bothered: not wanting to waste time doing something
- chartering: renting a boat or bus for a special trip
- concierge: a worker in a fancy hotel who helps you make plans
- counselor: a person in charge of fun activities at a camp
- downside: disadvantage
- excursion: special trip
- fancy: a little extra special, nicer than usual
- fancy-schmancy: funny way to describe something fancy
- fitness center (also called a gym): a place to exercise
- five-star: top rated
- gratuity: tip
- high-class: deluxe, very special
- in advance: before you go
- in heaven: in a perfect situation
- king-sized: an extra-large bed
- on the other hand: thinking about the other side of an issue
- parasailing: soaring in a parachute that is pulled by a fast boat
- queen-sized: a large bed (smaller than a king)
- resort: a special hotel with restaurants and fancy attractions
- roll-away cot: a small bed that can be brought into a hotel room
- royalty: kings and queens
- salon: a business providing hair and nail care services
- souvenir: something special you buy to remind you of your vacation

- spa: a place for massages and skin treatments; a sauna; a steam bath
- ① spread out: enjoy lots of extra space
- suite: a small group of rooms

GRAMMAR REMINDER 2: The Past Simple Tense Affirmative Statements, Irregular Verbs

Maybe they aren't so lovable or easy, but "irregular" past tense verbs aren't so bad, once you practice with them. How many irregular past tense verbs can you spot in the dialogue? (See appendix B for a list of some commonly used irregular verbs.)

MORE FUN WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS: Vacations

- a happy camper: content with a situation
When Michael heard that he could leave work early, he was a happy camper.
- the boonies: a very rural (country) location, far away from everything
They loved the city, so they were not happy campers when they had to move to the boonies.
- travel light: pack very few things when you travel
Because they knew they'd need space in the car for gifts, they decided to travel light and bring only one suitcase.
- on vacation: away from work
She couldn't get an answer about her application because the boss was on vacation.
- a last resort: a last choice
He tried to contact the company by letter, phone, and e-mail. As a last resort, he went to the office in person.

Review: Units 4–6

VOCABULARY

Fill in the blanks. Use the words below.

cashier

gourmet

sunburn

sunscreen

dawn

gadget

couch potato

spotless

vegetarian

party

1. I don't eat meat. I'm a(n) _____.
2. Can you see where the is? I need to pay for this.
3. I'd like to invite Tom over for a meal but he's a _____ chef. I'd be embarrassed by my simple cooking style.
4. Welcome to The Happy Apple Restaurant. How many people are in your _____?
5. My husband has a for everything! His little devices help him do just about everything, from cooking to fixing things. (I just wish he'd put them away when he's finished!)
6. I see you've cleaned the house for our visitors tomorrow. It is _____. Great job!
7. I'm a real _____. I hate exercising but I love watching it on TV.
8. I'm the total opposite. I get up at _____ every morning to go for a run.

9. Don't forget to put on _____ if you are going out in this hot sun!
10. If you lie on the beach without suntan lotion, you could get a bad
_____.

Answer Key

INFORMAL LANGUAGE

Match the expressions to their meanings. Try using them in a sentence.

- | | |
|--------------------------|--|
| 11. break the bank | a. content with a situation |
| 12. beef about something | b. watch a game |
| 13. catch a game | c. do something independently, without a group |
| 14. a piece of cake | d. cost too much for your budget |
| 15. dig in | e. pack very few things when you travel |
| 16. stay in shape | f. really easy |
| 17. do your own thing | g. maintain a healthy body through diet and exercise |
| 18. keep an eye open | h. be alert |
| 19. a happy camper | i. complain |
| 20. travel light | j. eat and enjoy |

Answer Key

GRAMMAR

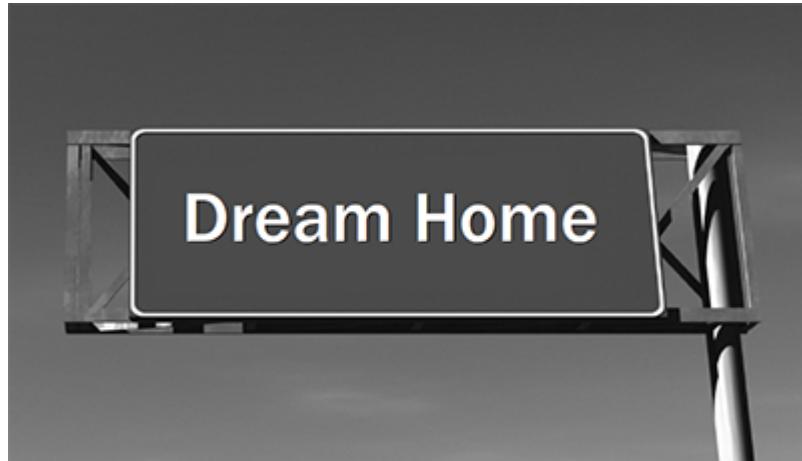

Look at the following sentences.

- ✓ Put a check next to the sentences that are correct.
✗ Put an X next to the sentences that are not correct. Can you highlight the error and explain why it's wrong?

21. Wow, this burger is smelling great.
22. What would you like: tea or coffee?
I like coffee.
23. Do you like coffee?
Yes, I really like coffee, but the caffeine keeps me awake.
24. Wine is expensive.
25. Two glasses of wine is very expensive.
26. A rice is a good choice with seafood.
27. He cans swim well.
28. I can played soccer well when I was younger.
29. It was cloudy all day yesterday, and then it poured last night.
30. I loved my teacher in first grade. She teached me many wonderful things.

Answer Key

Home Sweet Home

To Buy or Not to Buy; That Is the Question

— ::

Deciding on a place to live isn't always easy. Although the traditional American Dream has typically included buying a house with a yard and a white picket fence, world economies don't always consider traditional dreams. People need to weigh their options when deciding whether to rent an apartment or buy a house. There are many things to consider, and both options have their pros and cons.

Probably the biggest advantage to renting is flexibility. Although you'll need to sign a lease agreement, this can be for a short term—sometimes less than a year—which is handy if you think you may be relocating soon. Remember to read the fine print on that contract! It will probably include rules about keeping pets and how much advance notice you need to give the landlord before you move out. You'll need to put down a security deposit, which is usually equivalent to one month's rent. Sometimes utilities are included in the rent, but you may need to pay those separately. Very often the utility companies will charge a hookup fee. Of course, you're on your own if you want cable TV and high-speed Internet connections.

A big consideration for renters is parking. You're usually out of luck if you choose a big apartment building in a city. However, some apartment complexes in the suburbs provide parking areas. Be careful: this could be a hidden extra. The biggest advantage to renting is that if anything goes wrong, you're off the hook—it's the landlord's responsibility to fix it!

Buying a house is always a tempting choice. The upside is that instead of paying money to a landlord each month, you pay off the mortgage and own your own home. Of course, the downside is that you'll need a big chunk of change for a down payment. In addition, you'll need to pay closing costs and realtor fees, as well as buying homeowners insurance. Is renting starting to look better and better to you? Most towns have rules about what you may do with your lot. For example, you'll need to get a permit to put up a fence, and there are rules about how high the fence can be, and where on the property line it must go.

And let's not forget what American Founding Father Benjamin Franklin said: "In this world nothing is certain but death and taxes." Ah yes, another good reason to rent: no property taxes! Although towns provide convenient services like trash collection and recreation, they get the money for these services from a homeowner's property taxes.

DIALOGUE 1: TRACK 20

— :

ALAN: Hey, Lia, what did you think about the apartment you looked at this morning?

LIA: Oh, boy. I was pretty disappointed.

ALAN: Really? I'm surprised. I thought you'd love the neighborhood.

LIA: Yeah, that was the upside. The neighborhood is away from the city, so the yard was beautiful. But here's the downside: there wasn't a subway anywhere near the place! It would take forever to get to work.

ALAN: Could you take a bus?

LIA: It wasn't on the bus route that goes to my office. And besides, there weren't any appliances. The building had a laundry room in the basement, but I really wanted one in the apartment. And I couldn't believe it didn't even have a microwave! How would I zap my popcorn every night?

ALAN: You could always rent appliances or even buy them secondhand.

LIA: I guess so. But anyway, it had only one bedroom. We have three kids, so that's just not enough space. There were just too many downsides for me to rent that place.

ALAN: What's that old proverb? "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again." I guess you'll just have to keep looking to find your dream apartment.

Chores are small household tasks done in the home. These include doing laundry, washing dishes, cleaning, and taking out the trash.

Errands are tasks that are done outside the house. These are things like going to the bank, going grocery shopping, going to the post office, and going to the dry cleaner.

VOCABULARY

- advance notice: telling someone about something before you do it
- appliances: large machines for household chores
- ① chunk of change: a large amount of money
- consider: think about
- down payment: the money required to begin the buying process
- ① downside: disadvantage; con
- equivalent: about the same as
- flexibility: ability to change easily
- Founding Fathers: the men who formed the country and wrote the Constitution of the United States
- ① handy: convenient
- hookup: connection
- lease agreement: a rental contract
- lot: the property
- ① off the hook: not held responsible for something
- options: choices
- ① out of luck: don't have a chance
- pretty: as an adjective this means attractive; as an adverb, it means rather or quite
- property line: boundary
- pros and cons: advantages and disadvantages
- realtor: person whose business is to help people buy and sell homes
- recreation: activities for fun and relaxation
- relocating: moving
- secondhand: used items that can be purchased inexpensively

- security deposit: money kept in an account in case the apartment is damaged
- short term: for a small amount of time
- ① take forever: take a very long time
- tempting: makes you want something
- typically: usually
- ① upside: advantage; pro
- utilities: electric, water, gas, and cable
- weigh one's options: think about choices
- white picket fence: a painted wooden fence with small slats
- ① you're on your own: it's your responsibility
- ① zap (also nuke): cook in a microwave oven

PRONUNCIATION POINTER

:

Remember to join your phrases. Prepositions are not usually stressed. Chunk of change will sound like chunka change. Out of luck will sound like outta luck.

GRAMMAR REMINDER 1: The Past Simple Tense—Negatives, Verb to be

To form the negative past simple of the verb to be, use was or were and not. Remember that most speakers will use the contraction. Look at these examples from the dialogue.

Examples:

There wasn't a subway anywhere near the place!

There weren't any appliances.

City Life or the 'Burbs

Before you settle down in any new place, you need to take a look at your lifestyle. Are you a city person? Do you like to be within walking distance of everything you need? If you enjoy a quick walk down the block to buy a newspaper and coffee, and you like being with lots of people, then urban life may be for you. The upside of life in the city is convenience. It's nice to be close to all the things you enjoy: museums, shopping, movies, libraries . . .

and work. And the mass transit system in a city makes it simple to get around.

On the other hand, life in the suburbs is often part of the white-picket-fence American Dream. Suburbs are areas just outside the city where homes are usually larger, and there's more open space. Instead of stores within walking distance, there are shopping malls you drive to. Homes often have large yards for flower and vegetable gardens. Many houses have patios to enjoy outdoor living.

Apartments in the suburbs are usually larger, too, and there are often areas for playgrounds, parking, and cooking out. Suburbs where there are many commuters who travel to jobs in the city are sometimes called "bedroom communities." People work in the urban areas, but they return to their suburban homes to sleep. The upside of suburban life is the space and privacy from nearby neighbors. The downside is that people often need a car to get around.

If you really want to get away from it all, you may decide that life in the country is for you. Picture the rolling hills and miles of farmland. Listen to the sounds of birds. Ahh, peace and quiet! But unless milking cows is your idea of the dream job, you may want to think carefully about living in the country.

DIALOGUE 2: TRACK 21

— :

ALAN: Lia, since that apartment in the 'burbs wasn't what you're looking for, have you thought about trying to find a place a little closer to the city?

LIA: I really think that's what I need to do. The suburbs are beautiful, but there wasn't one store nearby. The kids couldn't easily walk to a friend's house—we'd have to arrange play dates. And I think getting to work would be a huge headache.

ALAN: Yeah, the city really is great for kids to make lots of friends. They just walk outside! We didn't worry about play dates when I grew up in a big city.

LIA: It would be nice to have a big garden, but there are too many downsides to the suburbs.

ALAN: I think you've decided already. You're a city person!

LIA: Yeah, I think I am.

ALAN: I guess this means you haven't thought about life in the country with mooing cows and clucking chickens?

LIA: Well, you never know what kind of neighbors you'll have in a big city apartment!

Because kids in the suburbs often can't walk to a friend's house, their parents arrange a specific day and time for a visit. It's considered polite to take turns hosting the kids: One week it's her turn, at her house; the next week it's your turn, at your house. (We know which one we prefer!)

Each language has its own way to describe the sounds that animals make. In English, onomatopoeia is the term used for writing a word that is the sound it makes (for example, cluck, moo, and buzz).

VOCABULARY

- ① 'burbs: suburbs
- ① city person: someone who is most comfortable in a city
 - country: an area with farms, few homes, and lots of open space
- ① get away from it all: leave responsibilities and relax
- ① headache: something complicated and annoying
 - lifestyle: the way people choose to spend their time
 - mooing and clucking: sounds made by cows and chickens, respectively
 - open space: land in its natural state
 - patio: an area outside a house, often paved, for relaxing
- ① peace and quiet: a calm environment
 - play date: an arranged play time for children
 - rolling hills: an area of small hills and fields
- ① settle down: become established, start a new normal life
 - specific: exact
 - urban: having to do with the city
 - within walking distance: easy to walk to

GRAMMAR REMINDER 2: The Past Simple Tense — Negatives, Regular Verbs

To form simple past negatives of regular verbs, use the verb in its base form (no changes) and add didn't. Remember: don't put the letters -ed on the end of the verb for the negative. Look at these examples from the dialogues.

Correct Example:

We didn't worry about play dates.

It didn't even have a microwave.

Not:

We didn't worried about play dates.

It didn't even had a microwave.

Nothing but Bills!

No matter where you decide to live, one thing is certain: you'll be paying bills—lots of bills. Big bills and little bills. Bills, bills, bills! The mailboxes may look different, but what's inside is the same everywhere. If you're lucky, there will be some fun mail—a letter or card from a friend far away. But if you're like most Americans, you'll be opening . . . bills!

It's great to move to a beautiful new place, but everything has a cost. In English we have a saying:

“There's no such thing as a free lunch.” You'll need to pay for gas, electricity, water, telephone, Internet connection, and cable or satellite television service. It seems the list of bills goes on and on.

Most companies send a bill every month. It's important to pay on time—late payments can affect your credit rating. Most places encourage you to pay bills online. That means less paper (and less mail). And although a landlord is responsible for repairs in an apartment, as a proud new homeowner, you'll have the fun of paying those expenses for your new house.

Don't forget the dreaded Murphy's Law! Sometimes it just seems that everything is on a timer to break at the same time. One poor homeowner moved in one year, and the next year the washer, dryer, stove, and dishwasher didn't work. That's Murphy's Law! (Some days we're just happy to get junk mail.)

DIALOGUE 3: TRACK 22

— :

LIA: Anything interesting in the mail?

ALAN: Just the usual: junk mail and bills, bills, bills!

LIA: Uh-oh.

ALAN: What's up?

LIA: The credit card bill was due yesterday . . . and I didn't pay it.

ALAN: Don't worry about it. You still have a grace period before you get slapped with a late fee.

LIA: I guess so. But I may need to buy a car next year. I want to make sure my credit rating is good.

ALAN: You shouldn't have a problem if you pay it right away. Ha ha—I didn't think you'd need a timer to remind yourself about bills!

When people move into a new home, they often have a housewarming party. Friends will bring a gift for the house as a way to wish the new homeowner good luck.

You can remove your name from junk mail lists by sending a letter to the Direct Marketing Association. Don't fill out contest entry forms at the mall. Often these are just tricks to get new addresses!

VOCABULARY

- bill: a statement of how much money you owe

- credit rating (also called a credit score): an evaluation of how good your credit is, based on your payments
- dreaded: worrisome, not wanted
- due: expected (and sometimes required)
- grace period: a time period after the due date when you can pay a bill without a penalty
- ① junk mail: advertising and papers that you haven't requested
- late fee: money the company charges if you don't pay on time
- ① Murphy's Law: a famous saying: "Anything that can go wrong, will go wrong."
- on time: when it's due; not late
- ① slapped with: charged for
- timer: a small device that buzzes after a set time has gone by.

Fun Fact!

Okay, we admit it. There are no fun facts about bills!

GRAMMAR REMINDER 3: The Past Simple Tense—Negatives, Irregular Verbs

To form simple past negatives of irregular verbs, use the verb in its base form (no changes) and add didn't. Remember: don't make any changes to the main verb. Look at these examples from the dialogue.

Correct Examples:

I didn't pay it.

I didn't think you'd need a timer.

Not

I didn't paid it.

I didn't thought you'd need a timer.

MORE FUN WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS: The House

- on the house: something given for free by a restaurant
*When the waiter realized it was my birthday, he said dessert was on the house.
- hit the roof: get really angry
Lauren hit the roof when she found out her brother borrowed the car without asking her.
- drive someone up the wall: drive someone nuts/crazy
*The Smiths make noise late at night. Their parties drive the neighbors up the wall.
- bring down the house: have an audience become very excited
*It was a good concert from the beginning, but when the band played its biggest hit, they brought down the house.
- go through the roof: become very high in value
*When the new mall was built in town, prices of homes went through the roof.

Unit

8

Ooh, Money, Money!

Stash the Cash! | Get Started with Banking

Okay, you've found a place to live and a job that will pay the bills. As all the money comes rolling in, you'll need a safe place to save it. A bank account is important for establishing a credit rating, too. You'll also need an account if you want direct deposit from your employer. It's easy to open a bank account, and the people at the bank will be happy to help. (Of course they will; they'll be holding your money!) Speaking to a representative at the bank is a good idea because there are so many types of accounts. Do you want to share a joint account with someone in your family? Do you want a checking account, so that you can pay for things by check? Do you want a savings account to put aside extra money? You can usually earn a little more interest with a CD, which is short for “certificate of deposit.” To open an account, you’ll need to provide ID and proof of your address. (You got that apartment just in time!)

Here’s another time when you need to watch for hidden fees. Some accounts may require you to maintain a minimum balance. If the funds in the account fall below a certain level, you may have to pay a monthly fee. Some “free checking” accounts can be very expensive! Most banks offer free use of their ATMs, but be careful of the double whammy! If you use a different bank’s ATM, that bank may charge a fee, and your bank may charge another fee. (Are you doing the math with me? That’s two fees!) If your account is overdrawn—you guessed it—a fee! If you bounce a check—say it with me—a fee! I guess there’s a reason banks have enough money to name so many sports arenas . . .

The convenience of having a bank account makes it worthwhile to learn about all the options. Most bank cards can be used at stores (so you don’t have to carry cash), and you can even get cash back from your purchase. Many banks have drive-thru banking, so you don’t even have to get out of your car. Hmm . . . drive thru the bank, and then head to the burger drive-thru for lunch? Lots of Americans love online banking, so you can have fun paying those bills 24-7, even in your PJs!

DIALOGUE 1: TRACK 23

LIA: I finally did it. I opened a bank account yesterday.

ALAN: It's about time! Didn't you hate carrying all that cash around?

LIA: Yeah, it was a hassle. And I want to establish a credit rating, too. Besides, with all the ATMs around, it's easy to get cash if I want some.

ALAN: Was it easy to open an account?

LIA: It sure was! I guess they're happy to get my money, ha, ha. Just make sure you have ID with you and proof of residence.

ALAN: Were the people nice?

LIA: Yeah, they were pretty friendly. I felt very comfortable asking questions.

ALAN: So now that you have a bank account, I guess you'll be buying a new car?

LIA: Don't get carried away! I'll be happy if I can pay the electric bill!

Banking is big business. Check around. Different banks may offer different interest rates to get your business. There are also Internet-only banks that are sometimes a good deal.

VOCABULARY

- ① 24-7: 24 hours a day, 7 days a week; always open
 - ATM: Automated Teller Machine
 - balance: the amount of money in your account
- ② bounce a check: write a check when there isn't enough money in the account
 - cash back: with certain bank cards, you can pay and get extra money back from your account at a store

- CD: Certificate of Deposit
- checking: an account that comes with checks to pay for things
- direct deposit: system that allows your company to put your pay right into your bank account
- ① double whammy: two problems at the same time
- fees: costs
- funds: money, usually in an account
- ① get carried away: get too excited
- ① good deal: a plan with many advantages
- ① hassle: a problem; a complicated situation; a “headache”
- interest: the amount of money the bank pays you to hold your account funds
- ① it's about time: we've waited a long time for this!
- joint account: an account that more than one person can access (use)
- Maintain: keep
- minimum: the least amount
- overdrawn: you have taken out more money than you actually have in the account
- ① PJs: PaJamas (night clothes)
- ① put aside: save
- representative: someone who works for the company, whose job it is to help you
- residence: where you live
- ① stash: put away for future use

PRONUNCIATION POINTER

:

Was is pronounced differently, depending on the stress. Unstressed, it sounds like wuz and is connected to the words around it: Wuz it easy to open an account? (unstressed)

In its stressed form, it sounds like woz: It sure woz. (stressed)

GRAMMAR REMINDER 1: The Past Simple Tense — Questions, Verb to be

For past simple questions using the verb to be, the question word comes first (if you are using one). The past form of the verb to be comes next, before the subject. Look at the examples from the dialogue.

Examples:

Were the people nice? (How were the people?)

Was it easy to open an account?

Making the Big Bucks

Place to live? Check! New job? Check! And now for the best part: the paycheck! The long lines at the bank's drive-thru will tell you that Friday is the traditional payday. But you can outsmart the people in line. Most companies offer direct deposit of paychecks. This means that your money is automatically transferred into your bank account on payday. Direct deposit has many advantages, but the best one is that you don't have to wait in line to cash your check. Yay! (You've probably noticed that Americans don't like to wait.) It also gives you extra time for yourself; you don't have to add a trip to the bank to your list of errands.

Now that you're bringing home the bacon, you know that American money takes some getting used to. The bills look very similar in size and color. The change comes in a lot of denominations.

You also need to learn the many common slang words that refer to money. Moolah, dough, bread, cabbage, and lettuce are not referring to a meal, but to the money that buys the meal! The slang descriptions of money may leave you thinking you're learning a third language! One dollar bills are often called singles. Occasionally, a five-dollar bill is called a fin and a ten dollar bill is a ten-spot. The real fun, however, comes with the big bills. A C-note is a one hundred dollar bill. (We'd like several of those, please. ☺)

Although some money nicknames seem to make no sense, this one is logical: the Roman numeral for 100 is C. American Founding Father Benjamin Franklin has made it into the slang world, too. A one hundred dollar bill (featuring Franklin's picture) is also called a Benjamin. How are your math skills? Ten Benjamins equal a grand. We love those Gs. That's a lot of smackers!

DIALOGUE 2: TRACK 24

LIA: I really love my new job! It feels great to be bringing home the bacon!

ALAN: No kidding. Payday is my favorite day. Too bad it only comes twice a month.

LIA: Don't you get paid every week?

ALAN: No, twice a month. In fact, I think most companies do payroll twice a month; usually on the 15th and the 30th.

LIA: Hey, I think you're right. But I have direct deposit, so all I care about is that when I pay a bill, there's money in the bank! And I'm saving for a car, so I like that the money is already in the bank.

ALAN: Wow—a car? Won't that cost a fortune?

LIA: You're not kidding. I was looking at used cars, and even they cost at least 5K. It's crazy!

ALAN: Speaking of crazy . . . I'm still trying to figure out the crazy change here. I know that four quarters equal a dollar. But did you ever notice that a nickel is bigger than a dime? Does that make sense to you?

LIA: Ha! Now that you mention it, a penny is bigger than a dime, too.

ALAN: I learned an interesting fact the other day. Did you know it costs more to make a penny at the mint than it's worth? Crazy!

LIA: I guess it's fun to think about change, but I'm glad my paycheck is in big bills!

TIP 2 At stores, many people don't even bother to take their change if it's only a few pennies. Some stores have a small cup near the cash register where customers can put their pennies. Other customers are welcome to take pennies from the cup if they need them for their purchase.

TIP 3 “Keep the change” is a way of telling a waiter that the change from the restaurant bill is the tip.

VOCABULARY

- big bills: large denominations of money
- big bucks: a lot of money
- bills: paper money

- ① bringing home the bacon: earning a salary
- ① cabbage, lettuce: green leafy vegetables; also, slang for money
- cash your check: get real money for the company check
- change: coins; also, the money you get back when you pay with a big bill
- ① check: done; completed; a mark on a list to indicate you have finished a task
- ① C-note: a one hundred dollar bill
- denominations: values
- dime: ten cents
- ① fortune: a really high price; a lot of money
- ① grand: a thousand dollars
- ① Gs: thousands
- ① K: one thousand
- line: a queue; people standing in turn
- make no sense: not seem logical
- mint: the place where money is made
- nickel: five cents
- ① no kidding: another way to say I agree
- outsmart: be more clever than
- payday: the day your employer pays you for your work
- payroll: the money to be paid to employees
- penny: one cent
- quarter: twenty-five cents
- ① smackers: money
- speaking of: while we're talking about the subject
- take some getting used to: need to become accustomed to

Fun Fact!

American bills are green. Cabbage is green. Lettuce is green. Some money slang makes sense (or is it “cents” ha ha)! . . .

GRAMMAR REMINDER 2: The Past Simple Tense—Questions, Regular and Irregular Verbs

For past simple questions using both regular and irregular verbs, the question word comes first (if you are using one). Did comes next, then the subject and the base form of the verb. Remember: the word did shows that the question is in the past, so the verb does not need to change.

Correct Examples:

- What did you notice?
- Did you notice?
- How did you know?
- Did you know?

Not:

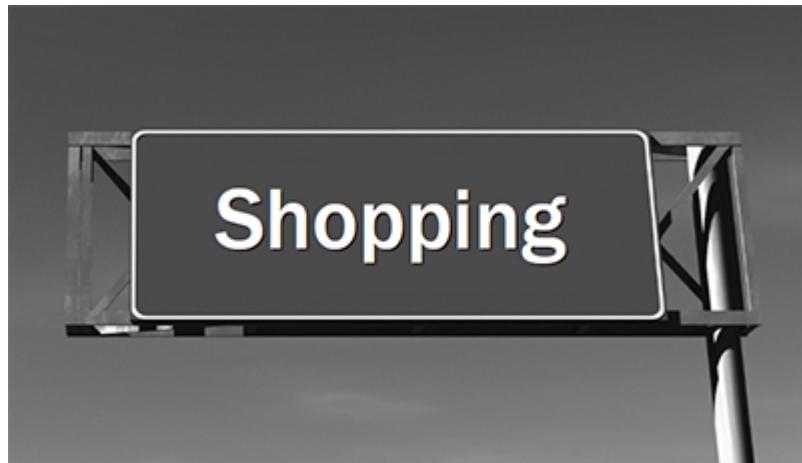

- What did you noticed?
- Did you noticed?
- How did you knew?
- Did you knew?

MORE FUN WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS: Money

- have money to burn: have a lot of extra money
Since she got her new job, she spends like she has money to burn!
- pay through the nose: pay a lot for something You'll pay through the nose if you go to that fancy new restaurant.
- break the bank: be so expensive that it costs almost all you have Karen searched the Internet to find a vacation that wouldn't break the bank.
- feel/look like a million bucks: feel/look great
*When Lily's boss loved her project, she felt like a million bucks.
So she bought a new dress, and she looked like a million bucks.*

- make a mint: make a lot of money
The kids made a mint selling lemonade on a hot day.

Shop 'til You Drop!

It's All at the Mall

— ::

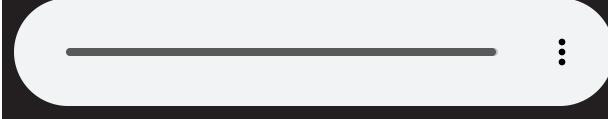

Okay, raise your hand if you love shopping. What? No men? In the American stereotype, women love spending a day shopping at the mall, while men sit glumly on a bench, holding the bags. (And we thank them for that. ☺) A large mall is a shopper's dream come true; there are specialty stores for everything! There are stores for kids and stores for kitchens; stores for makeup and stores for men; bookstores and shoe stores and toy stores and drugstores . . . well, you get the idea. Malls have at least one anchor department store. This is the place to head if you prefer shopping for everything in one store. These large stores carry everything from clothing to housewares. Want to smell like a million bucks? Stop at the perfume counter for a free sample of your favorite fragrance. And that's the main advantage of a department store or big indoor shopping mall—you can shop for everything in one place. There are no worries about bad weather. Even your car can stay dry and warm in the mall parking garage! (Raise your hand if you've ever lost your car in a parking garage. "But I was so sure I parked right . . . here . . .")

Although the large, enclosed malls bring people from all over, the suburbs also have smaller, local malls. These strip malls usually have convenience shops where people can take care of their errands. The stores are lined up next to each other, and the front doors open onto an outdoor walkway. Strip malls usually have a small takeout restaurant, a dry cleaner, a bank branch, and a drugstore. Parking is right in front of the stores, so people can hop out quickly and run in for what they need. In bad weather this may not be fun, but it's much quicker than parking in a large garage at the mall. And it's easier to find your car!

DIALOGUE 1: TRACK 25

LIA: Hey, look outside. Very bad weather . . . very good mall day!

ALAN: No! Not the mall! Anything but the mall!

LIA: Calm down. You won't have to go into every store with me. I just want to do some window-shopping. Besides, the sporting goods store is having a great sale on sports equipment. You might find the tennis racket you've been looking for. Look at this ad from the paper: "Super sale! Many rackets to choose from!"

ALAN: Yeah. I really do need a new tennis racket. Okay, if I go, how much time will we have to spend there? I'd like to watch the game this afternoon.

LIA: We don't have to stay very long. There are a few things I'd like to look at in the department store, so that will take less time than walking around the whole mall.

ALAN: Going to the sporting goods store is a great idea. Actually, if there aren't too many stores you plan to visit, then I don't mind going with you. In fact, maybe we could stop at a big box store on the way home. I could use some garden supplies.

LIA: Sure! If we make a day of it, we could have lunch at the food court.

ALAN: I'd rather stop at the strip mall in town and get fried chicken takeout.

LIA: If you come with me to the mall, we can have anything you want for lunch!

TIP 1 → Shopping malls have a customer service area where you can get information about the stores in the mall. They have strollers to rent and, at holiday times, offer gift wrapping of your purchases. You can also buy gift cards at customer service.

VOCABULARY

- ① ad: short for advertisement; information about an item for sale
- anchor store: a large store at a mall to attract many shoppers
- ② big box store: huge warehouse-type store (There are home supplies stores and electronics stores, among others.)
- branch: an office of a large company or bank

- carry: keep in stock; offer for sale
- department store: a very large store with many departments or sections that offer different types of merchandise
- drugstore: pharmacy (You can get prescriptions for medicine filled here, but you can also buy many other general and personal items.)
- enclosed mall: a center with many stores and inside walkways
- food court: the area of a shopping mall where the fast food shops are located
- gift card: a prepaid card that works like a credit card (When a person uses the gift card for a purchase, the amount is deducted from the balance.)
- ① glum: unhappy
- housewares: items for the home
- main: most important
- mind: object to
- ① run in: go into a store quickly for just an item or two
- sample: a small size of an item to try. Free! No cost!
- souvenir: a special purchase of something to remember your visit
- specialty store: a store that carries just one kind of merchandise
- stereotype: a belief that may not be accurate about an entire group of people
- strip mall: a line of shops along a street
- stroller: small carriage or cart you can use so small children don't have to walk
- ① window-shopping: looking at things in stores, but not buying anything (yeah, right, haha).

Fun Fact!

In Washington, D.C., the Mall is the large, grassy open area from the U.S. Capitol Building to the Lincoln Memorial. Besides some of the most important museums in the country, there's shopping here, too, with vendors selling souvenirs.

PRONUNCIATION POINTER

:

In the United States, Americans pronounce mall as mawl, like the words tall, small, and fall.

GRAMMAR REMINDER 1: Expressions of Quantity—much, many; few, less

- Use many and how many for count nouns. Use much and how much for noncount nouns. See Unit 4 for explanation of count/noncount nouns.
- Use few for count nouns; use less for noncount. Look at the examples from the dialogue.

Examples:

Count

“Super sale! Many rackets to choose from!”

There are a few things I'd like to look at in the department store . . .

Noncount

How much time will we have to spend there?

That will take less time than walking around the whole mall.

Food, Glorious Food!

:

Recreational shopping at the mall is one thing, but basic grocery shopping is a fact of life. There are many choices when it comes to buying food. The largest and most convenient place to shop for food is the supermarket. At these huge stores, you can find plenty of choices for whatever item you need. Need peanut butter? You can find creamy or crunchy, reduced fat or reduced salt, natural style or processed, small jar or large, with jam or without. Each aisle offers great practice for developing your decision-making skills! And to help you decide, the store will often have a sampling station where you can taste (for free!) many of the special products they sell. This is usually done on a weekend when lots of people are in the store. “If you try it, maybe you’ll buy it!” It’s a great way to introduce you to new products, but remember they are just samples! The store expects customers to try only one. (Okay, maybe two . . .) But if you do it right, you can visit every sampling station in the store, and you won’t need lunch when you get home!

Despite all the choices at a big supermarket, however, farmers’ markets are also very popular. As people become more and more conscious of where their food is coming from and how it’s grown, farmers’ markets offer an opportunity to buy directly from the farmers who are on the spot to answer any questions. Often the markets are set up in public squares in large and small cities, usually on weekends. At the market, local area farmers bring in their produce and arrange it on tables for sale. Home bakers will offer fresh-baked cakes and pies made with homegrown fruit. There are people selling homemade jams, too. Lots of vendors will offer samples of their goods. They may have small squares of bread and small pieces of cheese for you to try. There may be plates of cookies or samples of jams. The vendors hope that you’ll enjoy the sample so much that you’ll buy some to take home. And why not? Although baked goods and produce from the farmers’ market may cost more, they’re delicious and fresh from the farm!

DIALOGUE 2: TRACK 26

— :

LIA: Do you have any peaches today?

FARMER: Oh, boy! I have lots of peaches! The weather has been great for peaches this year. They got plenty of sun and a lot of rain when they needed it.

LIA: Ha! I guess that's why there are so many peach pies for sale. They look delicious!

FARMER: Several people have mentioned that. My wife will appreciate the compliment. She baked them.

LIA: I'll definitely take a couple of pies. I'm going to a neighbor's barbecue this afternoon, and I want to bring something special for dessert.

FARMER: Well, I have some nice organic herbs, too. And the corn on the cob is really sweet this year. We can husk it here for you, if you like.

LIA: I'm so glad your vegetables are organic. I've been trying to be careful about the foods I feed my family. I've decided that I'll buy only organically grown produce whenever I can.

FARMER: I've been farming organically for 10 years now. No pesticides. No artificial fertilizers. Just pure nature!

LIA: Great! I'll take two peach pies, a dozen ears of corn, and some basil for pesto. I'm making myself hungry already!

Farmers' markets are also good places to find crafts. People who make quilts, special soaps, or little toys often have a space at the market to sell their things. Fun!

VOCABULARY

- aisle: the walkways in the store with shelves of items on both sides
- artificial: human-made, not natural
- basil: an herb
- compliment: something nice or admiring that is said about someone or that person's handiwork.
- crafts: special decorations or things that are made by hand
- creamy: smooth
- crunchy: with bits of nuts
- dozen: twelve
- ears of corn: corn still on the cob (base)
- ① fact of life: something you can't avoid
- farmers' market: fresh produce market
- fertilizer: a substance to make plants grow better
- glorious: wonderful, fabulous, really good.
- groceries: food items
- herb: a plant used for flavor in cooking
- homegrown: not grown on a large commercial farm
- homemade: not commercially made; made by hand
- husk (also shuck): remove the outer leaves
- jam: jelly made from fruit
- mentioned: said
- ① on the spot: right there
- organic: no chemicals, all-natural
- pesticide: chemicals used to kill insects
- pesto: a sauce made from basil, garlic, oil, cheese, and pine nuts. Yum!
- produce: farm-grown fruits and vegetables
- quilts: thick blankets with beautiful designs made by hand from small pieces of cloth

- recreational: for fun
- reduced: less
- sampling station: a place in shops where a person offers you a free taste of a product
- vendor: someone selling an item

Fun Farm Fact!

Three U.S. states have produce nicknames.

Georgia is called The Peach State. New Jersey is called The Garden State. Nebraska is called The Cornhusker State. It's a pretty big country to have only three farm nicknames!

Saving Some Dough

Everyone loves a bargain! There's something exciting about buying what you need and want, but saving money while you buy is even more exciting! Businesses know this, and they use a lot of creative ways to attract customers who want to save money. Stores know that if they want to sell something to make room for newer stuff, they should have a sale. The older items are “on sale!” Department stores have one-day-only sales and doorbusters. Grocery stores put coupons in the local newspaper or online, or they send them through the mail. (This is junk mail we can use!) Coupons can save a lot of cash. For example, if a store has a certain item on sale, you get it at a reduced price. If you also have a coupon for that item, you get the sale price, plus the extra money off. Woo, hoo! Time for a vacation with all that extra moolah! But you need to read the coupons carefully. They usually have an expiration date, and they may only be good for certain sizes or flavors of a product. Some of these sales are so great that everyone wants to take advantage of the savings. When this happens, a store may run out of an item.

Aaackkk!!! But it's not bad news. Stores don't want unhappy customers, so if something is sold out, they'll offer a rain check.

Stores and food companies aren't the only ones who want to attract customers with bargains. Lots of appliance and electronics manufacturers will offer rebates on big ticket items. With this plan, you pay the full price, but if you mail in lots of forms and receipts, you'll get some money back. It's nice to save the money, but sometimes rebates can be a hassle. You need to follow the instructions exactly and send in a special form or enter it online. If you lose a receipt, or if you send in the wrong number from the box, you won't get your money back. But if you do follow all the directions, and you mail everything in by the deadline, the manufacturer will send you a check for the rebate amount. The upside of a rebate is that it's always nice to get money in the mail with all of those bills, bills, bills!

DIALOGUE 3: TRACK 27

LIA: Hey, how do you like my new shoes?

JAE: They're awesome! Where did you get them?

LIA: I got them at Shoe City. They're having a great sale. It's BOGO.

JAE: Who's Bogo?

LIA: Ha! BOGO isn't a person! It's a really cool sale. You buy one get one. In other words, if you buy one pair of shoes, you get one pair free!

JAE: Wow, that's a steal! I think Shoe City is at the strip mall in town, and I have a 15% off coupon for the pizza store there.

LIA: Let's go shopping!

JAE: And let's eat!

Sometimes a group of sale items says “as marked.” This means that the discount has already been taken. Other times you will get the discount when you pay for the item at the register. Be sure to read the signs.

The price on the ticket is not the exact final price. In most states, you'll need to add sales tax to the total. Each state has a different rule on this: Delaware has no-tax shopping; New Jersey has no tax on clothing. See you in Delaware!

VOCABULARY

- ① bargain: a very good price
- ① big ticket item: a very expensive item
- coupon: a form offering money off the price of certain items
- deadline: last day something will be accepted
- doorbusters: special huge sales on certain items to attract a lot of shoppers
- expiration date: the date a coupon must be used by, or it won't be accepted
- manufacturer: maker of something
- on sale: at a special low price
- rain check: a form that allows you to get the special price when the item becomes available again
- rebate: money back after you have purchased something
- receipt: the form that says how much you paid for something and when you bought it
- ① run out: use up; have no more left

- ① steal: a great price; often the cost is less than the item is actually worth

GRAMMAR REMINDER 2: More Expressions of Quantity!

Expressions of Quantity for Count Nouns

A couple of peaches
Several peaches
A few peaches

Expressions of Quantity for Noncount nouns

A little rice

Expression of Quantity That Work for Both

Some peaches/rice
Most peaches/rice
Lots of peaches/rice
A lot of peaches/rice
Plenty of peaches/rice

Look at the examples from dialogue 2:

I have lots of peaches!
They got plenty of sun and a lot of rain when they needed it.
Several people have mentioned that.
I'll definitely take a couple of pies.
Well, I have some nice organic herbs, too.

MORE FUN WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS: Shopping

- like a bull in a china shop: very clumsy; likely to break things
Her husband felt like a bull in a china shop when he dropped and broke a glass in the restaurant.

- go window-shopping: look at things in the stores without buying
She was saving her money for a new car, so they just went window-shopping at the mall.
- a steal: a very good price
She only planned to go window-shopping, but the shoes were a steal at the sale price, so she bought them.
- shop around: compare prices at many different places
A computer is a big purchase, so she decided to shop around before she bought one.
- talk shop: talk about work when you're not at work
Because their husbands worked at the same office, the wives always went into the kitchen when the guys started to talk shop in the other room.

Review: Units 7–9

VOCABULARY

Match the words to their meanings.

- | | |
|-------------------|--|
| 1. rain check | a. values of money |
| 2. appliances | b. a very good price |
| 3. settle down | c. advertising and papers that come in your mail
(that you never asked for) |
| 4. stereotype | d. small carriage or cart for small children |
| 5. direct deposit | e. become established, start a new life |
| 6. stroller | f. a form that allows you to buy an item at a special price when it becomes available again |
| 7. bargain | g. moving your home and work |
| 8. denominations | h. a belief (that may not be accurate) about a group of people |
| 9. junk mail | i. system that allows your company to deposit your pay directly into your bank account |
| 10. relocating | j. large machines for household chores |

Answer Key

Now fill in the blanks using the words above.

11. Hi Tom. It looks like you're selling your house. Yes, we're _____ to Florida for my job.
How exciting!
12. Angie, I hear you're getting married!
Yes, I decided it was time to _____.
Congratulations.

13. Washing machines, dryers, and stoves are all types of _____.
14. Anything interesting in the mail today?
No, just the usual _____. It can all go straight into the trash can.
15. Do you get paid by check?
No, I prefer _____. Then the money goes straight into my bank account.
16. I'd like to withdraw $200 from my bank account.
Is it okay in two $100 bills?
No, thanks. I'd prefer different _____. Can you give me five $20 bills and ten $10 bills?
17. Are all doctors in the United States men?
No, that's a(n) _____. There are plenty of women doctors.
18. It's a lovely day. Let's put the baby in the _____ and go for a walk in the park.
19. Look, there's a sale at my favorite store. Maybe if we go early, we'll get some great _____.
20. Hi, I see you've sold out of the chicken that's on sale. Can I get a _____ so I can buy it next time I'm here?

INFORMAL LANGUAGE

Look at how these expressions are used in a sentence. Can you explain what they mean?

21. I'm sorry Alfredo, but you're out of luck. You can't have a day off right now; we're much too busy.
22. I'll let you off the hook about coming to work late if you promise not to do it again.
23. I'm exhausted! I really need a vacation to get away from it all for a few days.
24. Wow! Look at Fred's new car. He must be making some big bucks!
25. Are you going on vacation again? You must have money to burn!

26. Living in a new country takes some getting used to.
27. Julia, you look like a million bucks in that dress today!
28. I took my new girlfriend to that expensive new restaurant last night. It was great, but it cost me a huge chunk of change!
29. I love my new job, but it's a real headache getting there through all the city traffic.
30. You have to stop talking to your mother for so long every week. I'm worried that we'll get slapped with a huge bill.

Answer Key

GRAMMAR

Underline the errors in this conversation. What should the person say?

CARRIE: Hi, Mike. Did you enjoyed your vacation?

MIKE: Vacation? It weren't a vacation. Everything possible went wrong.

CARRIE: Did it rained?

MIKE: Yes, it rained all the time. I spent most of the time drinking coffee in cafés!

CARRIE: Did you visited many places?

MIKE: No, I didn't went anywhere. It was just too awful to go out. We wasn't happy campers.

CARRIE: Well, was it a nice hotel?

MIKE: No, it was really old and very expensive.

CARRIE: How many money did you paid?

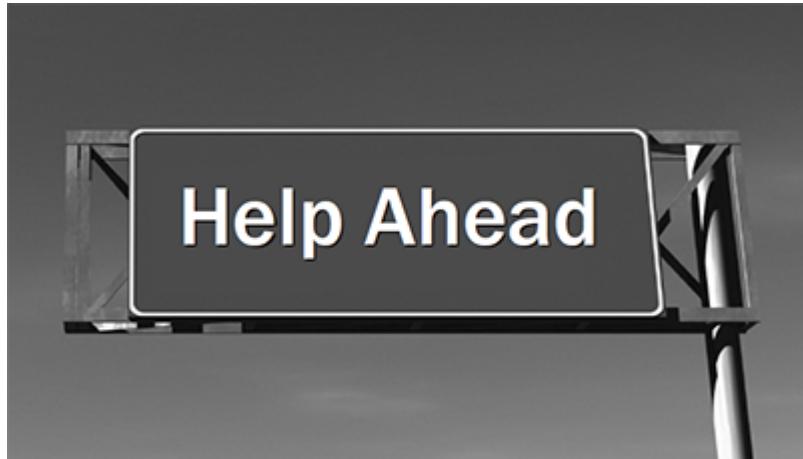

MIKE: You don't want to know. Way too much! The only good thing is I spent fewer money than if we was able to go out!

Answer Key

Unit

10

Emergency 911

HELP! — :

If you own a television, you've seen them: amazing rescues from burning buildings, victims rescued from the bad guys, and lives saved in hospital ERs. From the comfort of your couch, you've seen the TV versions of real-life drama. The downside of these TV dramas is that they make emergencies seem very simple. Unlike in real life, TV problems are resolved in just an hour. But the upside of emergency shows is that people see what they have to do to get help.

The most important information to know in an emergency is a very simple phone number: 911. Even schools teach this number to small children at an early age. There are plenty of stories of kids as young as three years old making a 911 phone call that has saved a life.

The phone number is the same for fire, medical, and police emergencies: 911.

The phone number is the same from both landlines and cell phones: 911.

When a landline call comes in, the emergency dispatcher may be able to see the phone number and the exact location of the call, but not always. Calls from a cell phone may not display the same information. The most critical thing to remember when making an emergency call is to remain calm. It's a matter of life and death. You must be understood when making this call. Because everyone tends to speak very quickly and excitedly when they are nervous or afraid, it can be even more difficult to understand second language speakers in an emergency. For this reason, it's vital to remember the following instructions:

- ✓ Stay calm.
- ✓ Speak slowly and clearly.
- ✓ Know what information the operator will need.

The operator will ask many questions so that she can get a good picture of the problem and send exactly the right kind of help. She'll ask for essential information like: Who? What? Where? When? It's important to answer all the questions slowly and clearly. Don't worry; she's not wasting time. Even while you're answering her questions, the operator is contacting the right emergency system. You must stay on the line with the operator until help arrives. Do not hang up!

The 911 dispatchers are specially trained to ask very clear questions about the emergency. The dialogues below are examples of the kinds of conversations you may have. Remember, the operator will ask different questions as he or she learns about your emergency.

HELP! FIRE!

DIALOGUE 1: TRACK 28

— : —

DISPATCHER: 911. What is your emergency?

CALLER: HELP!HELP!MYHOUSEMYHOUSE!HURRY!HELPME!

DISPATCHER: Ma'am, I can't understand what you're saying. Please calm down. What is your location?

CALLER: My house. It's burning! There's a fire in my house! Can you send a fire truck? Help!

DISPATCHER: What is the address?

CALLER: 123 Peach Street! Can you send a fire truck? Please help!

DISPATCHER: Help is on the way, ma'am. What room is the fire in?

CALLER: It's in the kitchen. The curtains caught fire when I was cooking. HURRY!

DISPATCHER: Are you still in the house?

CALLER: Yes! Yes! I'm in the bedroom.

DISPATCHER: You must get out of the house right away. Can you do that?

CALLER: Yes, the door is right here.

DISPATCHER: Ma'am, go outside, but stay on the line with me.

CALLER: Okay, okay. I'm outside now. PLEASE HURRY!

DISPATCHER: Is there anyone else in the house?

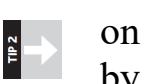

CALLER: MY DOG! MY DOG! My dog is in the house!

DISPATCHER: Ma'am—Do NOT go back into the house. The fire trucks are on the way. The firefighters will find your dog.

CALLER: I hear the sirens! I can see the truck! They're here! They're here!

TIP 1 There is no charge for 911 calls. They are free calls from landlines or cell phones.

Mistakes happen. If you dial 911 by mistake, do not just hang up. Stay on the phone until the dispatcher answers, and just say, “Sorry, I dialed by mistake.” If you just hang up, they may think there is an emergency at your house.

VOCABULARY

- ① caught fire: went into flames
- cell phone: mobile phone
- critical (also vital, essential): extremely important
- dispatcher: person who sends police or other services where they are needed
- display: show
- ER: short form for a hospital Emergency Room, where emergency victims go
- ① get a good picture: understand clearly
- ① hang up: end a phone call after you've called a number
- ① landline: a home (wired) telephone
- location: place
- ① matter of life and death: a situation of extreme importance
- on the line: on the phone; do not hang up
- on the way: traveling to the destination

- operator: a person who answers phone calls for an agency or company
- rescue: save from danger
- resolved: settled
- siren: the loud noise that goes with the flashing light on the top of an emergency vehicle
- version: type, kind
- victim: someone who is hurt in some way

PRONUNCIATION POINTER

:

The letter groups augh and ough are very tricky in English. They sound like aw. Caught sounds like cawt. Bought sounds like bawt. Taught sounds like tawt.

GRAMMAR REMINDER 1: Modal Verbs of Necessity: Have to, Must

Have to shows that something is necessary. Don't have to means that something is not necessary. Have to can be used in the past, present, or future.

You have to stay calm. (present)

You'll have to give your address when you call. (future)

We had to call 911. (past)

Must also shows that something is necessary. It's stronger than have to. You won't hear must so much in spoken English, but you'll often see it written.

The negative is must not, which expresses that something is not allowed. It can be used in the present or future sense only. Its form does not change.

You must stay on the line. (present)

You must call later. (future)

You must not hang up if you call 911 by mistake.

GRAMMAR REMINDER 2: Modal Verbs for Requests: Can, Could

You can use can and could to ask for something. Can may be more common, but could is a little more polite.

Can you send a fire truck, please?

Could you send a fire truck, please?

HELP! HE'S NOT BREATHING!

DIALOGUE 2: TRACK 29

OPERATOR: Paramedic 128. What's the address of your emergency?

CALLER: HELP! HELP! I need an ambulance!

OPERATOR: Okay, sir, what's the address?

CALLER: I'm not sure. I'm outside. It's . . . it's . . . I think it's Taylor Road. It's Lawrenceville. I need an ambulance!

OPERATOR: Sir, we'll get help right away. What's the phone number you're calling from?

CALLER: Um, it's my cell phone. It's 555-1006. Please hurry. There's a guy here . . . Hurry! Can you send an ambulance?

OPERATOR: Okay, sir, what's the nature of the emergency?

CALLER: There's a guy lying here. He's not conscious. He's not breathing! He's not breathing!

OPERATOR: Okay. He's not breathing? He's unconscious?

CALLER: Right.

OPERATOR: Okay, sir, an ambulance is on the way. But I need you to start CPR right now. I'll help you over the phone until they get there.

CALLER: The neighbor is doing CPR, but the guy isn't responding. He's not responding! He's not moving and he's not breathing.

OPERATOR: Okay, sir, the ambulance is on the way. They'll be there in minutes. Did you witness what happened to the man?

CALLER: No, I didn't see what happened.

OPERATOR: Okay, sir, I've dispatched all this information to the paramedics. Keep up the CPR until they get there. They're just a few blocks away.

CALLER: Thank you! This guy isn't responding to anything!

OPERATOR: Okay they should be there.

CALLER: Yeah, here they are! Thank you, sir, thank you.

OPERATOR: Okay, sir, call us back if you need any help.

Tip 3 Many public libraries, schools, and hospitals offer free first aid and CPR classes. It's always good to know what to do in an emergency, while you're waiting for help to arrive.

VOCABULARY

- CPR: Cardio Pulmonary Resuscitation; pressing on a person's chest, breathing into his mouth to try to get his heart started again
- conscious: awake; aware of surroundings
- nature: kind, type
- paramedics: specially trained people who can do first aid and some medical treatments in an emergency
- responding: reacting
- unconscious: not awake; not aware of anything; no reaction of any senses
- witness: see

GRAMMAR REMINDER 3: Modal Verbs of Advice, Possibility, Ability—Should, Would, Could

These will all be followed by the verb in its base form.

Should is used when giving strong advice to do something.
You should teach children about emergency calls.

Would is used to express what you might do in a certain situation.
I would volunteer at the firehouse if I had more time.

Could expresses possibility and the ability to do something in the past.
There could be a problem if they don't get enough volunteers.
I could run four miles when I was younger.

PRONUNCIATION POINTER

:

Another tricky string of letters is ould. The letter l is not pronounced, so ould sounds like ood. Could sounds like kood. Should sounds like shood. Would sounds like wood.

Grammar Fun Fact!

Americans sometimes use a funny expression to say that they wish they did something differently. They say, “shoulda woulda coulda.” Think things through before you do them, and you’ll never have to say, “shoulda woulda coulda”!

HELP! STRANGER DANGER!

DIALOGUE 3: TRACK 30

:

OPERATOR: 911. What’s the exact location of your emergency?

CALLER: Hi, um, well my address is 2495 Cary Street. But it’s across the street. I don’t know the address.

OPERATOR: Okay, ma’am. I didn’t get that. Are you on a cell phone? Tell me that address again.

CALLER: Yeah, um, it's . . . I don't know, it's 2495 Cary, but it's across the street.

OPERATOR: Okay, that's fine. Is that where you're calling me from, ma'am?

CALLER: I'm calling you from my cell phone. I think I need the police.

OPERATOR: Okay, ma'am. What's the nature of the emergency?

CALLER: Well, I'm across the street. I'm not sure . . . My neighbor's away, and, um, um, there are two guys. I think they're breaking into the house. Um, it looks like there are two guys. HEY! THEY JUST BROKE A WINDOW! One guy just ripped through the screen door! They're looking around to see if anyone saw them! Can you get the police here? Hurry!

OPERATOR: Okay, ma'am, we'll have someone there right away. Do you recognize the people at all?

CALLER: No, not at all. It's not my neighbor; they're away. I have no idea who these guys are, but they just broke the window and kicked in the door! I think you need to get the police here fast.

OPERATOR: Can you describe the men, ma'am?

CALLER: They're inside now. I don't know. I don't know. To be honest with you, I didn't really notice what they were wearing or anything. Um, I think one guy was pretty tall. He was wearing some kind of baseball cap, I think. And, uh, the other guy entered through the window before I got a good look at him. All I know is these guys broke into the house! Can you get the police here?!

OPERATOR: Ma'am, they're on their way. Do you know if the guys have a weapon?

CALLER: I don't know; I couldn't see from my angle. They had a hard time trying to kick in the door. Um, but, um, they smashed the window with a bat, I think. A baseball bat.

OPERATOR: Okay, ma'am, they're on their way. Don't hang up until they get there.

CALLER: Okay. Thank you. Wait, okay, here they are! Thank you!

If you want to speak with a police officer, but it is not an emergency, you should not call 911. You can find the phone number of the local precinct in your phone book.

VOCABULARY

- all I know is: a strong way to say this is the important fact
- breaking in: forcing one's way in
- entered: went in
- ① had a hard time: had difficulty with something
- ① I have no idea: a stronger way to say I don't know
- ① kick in: hit with one's foot and smash open
- precinct: local police station
- screen door: an outer door that allows air into the room, but not the bugs!
- ① smashed: broke suddenly and noisily
- ① to be honest with you: a way of saying really
- weapon: something that is used to hurt someone

MORE FUN WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS: Fire

- You're fired!: bad-news words for when you lose your job You've been late every day for the last two weeks, and you haven't finished one project. You're fired!
- Holy smokes!: Wow!

Holy smokes, my neighbor just won a thousand dollars!

- old flame: a former boyfriend or girlfriend
Susan was not happy when her boyfriend kept talking about his old flame.
- out of the frying pan and into the fire: going from a bad situation to a worse one
She thought it was a bad day when the bus splashed her new skirt, but it was out of the frying pan and into the fire when she spilled hot coffee and burned herself.
- fire off: write something quickly and send it off immediately
When she read the article in the newspaper about the animal shelter, she wanted to fire off an e-mail to her friends to ask them to help.

Remember: could is also used for ability in the past.

In this example, couldn't means was not able to see.

Example: I couldn't see from my angle.

What's Up, Doc?

Under the Weather

:

Aaah-choo! Oh, boy, that stuffy nose you've had all week is getting worse. You're sneezing, you have a headache, you're achy all over, and your throat is sore. These symptoms can mean only one thing: time to head to the doctor. But who? For most common problems like colds and flu, a general practitioner should be your first choice. These doctors are also called family doctors because they treat patients of all ages, and they take care of most common illnesses. For some more serious problems, the GP may suggest that you see a specialist. The GP will be able to make a recommendation, and she will provide a referral if your health insurance plan requires one.

But if you're new in the neighborhood, you may not know what general practitioner to call. Sometimes the best way to find a doctor is to ask someone you trust. Ask a neighbor or a friend at work. Your employer will help you find a list of doctors who participate in your health plan.

DIALOGUE 1: TRACK 31

ALAN: Hi, Lia. I haven't seen you for a few days. Where have you been?

LIA: I haven't been hiding. I haven't been feeling well for a couple of days, so I've been trying to get lots of rest. I don't think it's working because I still feel sick.

ALAN: Wow, maybe you should get checked out by a doctor.

LIA: I think so, too, but I don't have a family doctor yet. Can you recommend someone?

ALAN: We love our GP. She's very patient, and she'll answer every question you ask. She doesn't rush you. You should call for an appointment. In fact, if you're really sick, she'll squeeze you in right away, even without an appointment.

LIA: But what if it's not a cold? What if it's serious? What if I need to see a specialist? What if I need a hospital?

ALAN: Calm down. It's probably just the flu. Call Dr. Patelli. I'm sure you'll feel better after you talk to her.

TIP 1

Many doctors have this sign at the reception desk: "Payment must be made at time of service." If you can't pay, the doctor will help you with a payment plan.

TIP 2

Bring something to read! Sometimes there is a long wait at the doctor's office. There are usually magazines in the office, but they could be old or boring. Plus, sick people have been touching them!

VOCABULARY

- achy (also ache): a dull body pain (an achy feeling is different from a sharp pain)
- ⓘ checked out: examined, looked at
- employer: the person or company you work for; the boss
- flu: an illness that makes you sneezy and just feel really bad and achy all over
- general practitioner: a type of doctor who sees people with the most common illnesses
- GP: short name for a General Practitioner
- health plan: an insurance benefit provided by some employers for employees (and sometimes their family members) who become ill
- patient: someone who is receiving health care
- reception desk: the counter or window where you sign in to see the doctor
- recommendation: a suggestion
- referral: a doctor's recommendation of another doctor
- rush: hurry
- sneezing: aaah-choo!
- sore: hurting

- ① squeeze someone in: make time to see someone, even if they don't have an appointment
- ② stuffy nose: a feeling that you can't take in air through your nose
- symptoms: signs of illness

Health Insurance: What's Up with That?

Although every country tries to find the best way to provide health care for its citizens, it seems there is no one system that is perfect for everyone. In the United States, health insurance is a huge issue. How can we be sure everyone has access to excellent health care? How can we help people pay for doctors and expensive treatments? What will a family do if someone becomes seriously ill and needs hospitalization?

Medical care in the United States can be very expensive, and no one wants people to suffer because they can't pay.

Most large companies and some small businesses offer health insurance benefits to their employees. This means that they participate in a health insurance plan and cover some of the costs. Other costs for the plan will be deducted from the employee's paycheck. This is usually the best option for employees, but there are many plans and many rules, so it's important to get all the information from the human resources department at your job or from your employer. A very important thing to remember is that, if you have health insurance through your job, you usually must use a doctor in the insurance network. Many insurance companies have arrangements with certain doctors to charge only a certain amount for care. In most cases, your insurance will only pay for doctors in the network. If you choose a doctor who is not in the plan, you will have to pay most of the costs for service yourself.

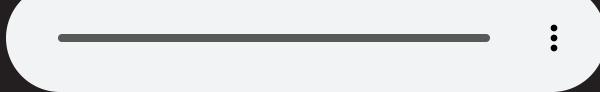

Many health insurance plans say that you must choose a primary care physician. This is the doctor that you will see first whenever you have a problem. If the doctor feels that you need more specialized care, the health insurer may require a referral to the specialist. This isn't as complicated as it sounds. Most doctors are very knowledgeable about insurance rules.

Doctors often have a staff member whose only job is to deal with the insurance companies.

Once you see the doctor, it's possible that she may prescribe a medication for your condition. She will write the name of the medicine and the dose on a special form. Take the prescription to the drugstore. The pharmacist will ask for your insurance card and fill the prescription. He may substitute a generic drug unless your physician specifically requests a name brand. If you have prescription coverage in your health plan, you'll only need to pay a co-pay. The insurance will pay the rest of the cost. Insurance plans are complicated, but it's worth taking time to figure them out!

DIALOGUE 2: TRACK 32

LIA: Hi. My name is Lia. I called a little while ago. My neighbor recommended that I come in to see Dr. Patelli.

RECEPTIONIST: Yes, of course. First, I'll need you to fill out this form with your health history. It's for your chart. While you're doing that, I'll make a copy of your insurance information.

LIA: Oh, no! I didn't bring any information with me! What do you need? Do I need to call my job?

RECEPTIONIST: No, it's okay. You don't have to call them now. But didn't you get an insurance card with your group number?

LIA: Oh! I think I have a little card that has my name and a bunch of numbers on it. Is that what you mean?

RECEPTIONIST: Exactly! That's all the information I need. We'll process all the insurance claims for you if we have those numbers.

LIA: Whew! I think worrying about this insurance was making me sicker than my illness! Will it take a long time for me to see the doctor?

RECEPTIONIST: Well, we know patients sometimes have to wait a long time for lots of doctors. Dr. Patelli tries to be respectful of her patients. She won't make you wait unless there's an emergency and she has to squeeze someone in. The nurse will take you in and take your vital signs, and then Dr. Patelli will come in to examine you. After she makes her diagnosis, she'll write a prescription if you need one. But she will always leave time for you to ask questions. She wants you to understand exactly why she thinks a certain medicine will help.

LIA: I think I like this doctor already!

 Once you've received your prescription, you can drop it off at the drive-thru and pick up the medicine later. Yes, many pharmacies have a drive-thru. But you won't be getting a cheeseburger at this drive-thru!

 TIP 3

Hundreds of specialists deal with only one kind of problem. Here is a list of some of them:

- cardiologist: heart problems
 - dermatologist: skin problems
 - OB/GYN (obstetrician/gynecologist): pregnancy, childbirth, and women's health-care issues
 - oncologist: cancer treatment
 - orthopedist: bone-related problems
 - pediatrician: children's illnesses
 - plastic surgeon (also called a cosmetic surgeon): improving the appearance of the body
 - psychiatrist: mental concerns or illnesses
-

VOCABULARY

- access: ability to use
- benefits: something special the employer offers
- chart: your health record and diagnosis
- condition: illness
- co-pay: the amount you must pay before the insurance company pays the rest of the cost
- cover: pay for
- deal with: handle all the communication with
- deducted: taken out of
- diagnosis: the decision about what your illness is
- dose: the amount of medicine you must take and how often you take it
- employee: the worker
- generic drug: medicine that has the same formula as a name-brand drug, but it is made at a smaller company
- group number: identification of your company so the insurance company knows exactly what to pay
- health history: a list of any illnesses you've had in the past, which helps the doctor understand your problem
- health insurance: a plan that will pay for your medical bills
- hospitalization: being placed into a hospital for treatment
- human resources department (also called personnel): the department that deals with the workers
- ill: sick
- insurance claim: a form that tells the insurance company what your illness is and how much they should pay the doctor for your costs
- knowledgeable: knowing a lot about something
- little while: a short amount of time
- medication (also called medicine or drug): something that will help you get well

- name brand: made by a well-known company
- network: a group
- pharmacist: specially trained professional who will prepare your medicine according to the doctor's prescription
- prescribe: write a note for a medicine
- prescription: a special form with your name and the dose of the medicine you must take
- primary care physician: the doctor, usually a GP, whom you will see first for any illness
- specialized: dealing with only one kind of problem
- specifically: specially
- staff member: office worker
- substitute: use to take the place of
- treatment: care
- vital signs: usually your height, weight, blood pressure, and heart rate
(These are usually checked at each visit.)

GRAMMAR REMINDER: Modals Review

Here are those modals again! See how useful they are?

Check in this unit for all of these examples:

- should for giving advice
- must to show a strong obligation
- could for possibility

Fun Fact!

English has lots of health-based sayings. Here are two common ones:

- Early to bed, early to rise, makes a man healthy, wealthy, and wise.
- An apple a day keeps the doctor away.

So, eat lots of apples and get lots of sleep. Just don't eat the apples while you sleep!

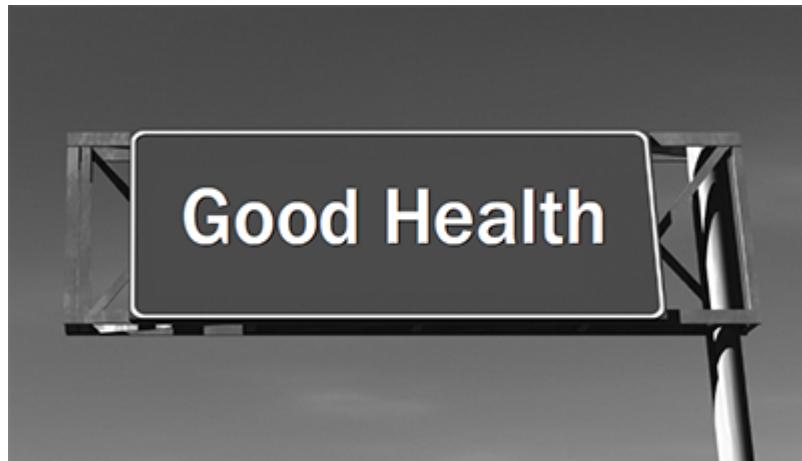

MORE FUN WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS: Health

- be/feel under the weather: feel a little sick
He woke up with a sneeze and felt under the weather.
- take a turn for the worse: have an illness that gets more serious
Later that day, he took a turn for the worse, so he called the doctor.
- in bad shape: in very bad health
The doctor said that he was in such bad shape that he should go straight to bed.
- clean bill of health: information that one's health is excellent
He took some medicine and got lots of rest. After a few days, the doctor gave him a clean bill of health.
- the picture of health: in excellent health
Now he looks well rested and the picture of health.

Unit

12

What's Up Now?

Open Wide

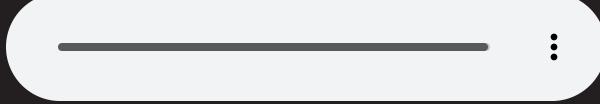

————— :

Eew! The dentist! No one likes going to the dentist in any language! We don't want to offend dentists out there, but we bet even dentists don't like going to the dentist. Still, it's one of those things that must be done. Most dentists recommend a checkup every six months. The hygienist will do a cleaning, and the dentist will check for any problems and make sure the mouth looks healthy. But you know it's bad news when you wake up with a throbbing headache and a pain in your mouth. What a nightmare! There's no time to wait for your regular checkup appointment; you need to have it checked out immediately. Oh, come on; it's not so bad. Don't think of it as 20 minutes you're spending with your mouth wide open, while someone puts sharp instruments in it and pokes around. Think of it this way: you're spending 20 minutes in a big comfy chair while someone else is home taking care of the kids! (Somehow, we think you're not buying that . . .)

DIALOGUE 1: TRACK 33

DR. SMILEY: Hi, Lia. What seems to be the problem today?

LIA: I hope you can tell me! A chunk of my tooth broke off yesterday.

DR. SMILEY: That's not good. Did you bite something hard?

LIA: No, I didn't . . . that's the weird thing. It just kind of fell out.

DR. SMILEY: Did it hurt when it broke?

LIA: Yes, it did, just a little; but it started to hurt like crazy this morning.

DR. SMILEY: I think we'd better take a full set of X-rays . . . Okay, open wide. Let me take a look. Oh, boy. Yes, it looks like you've exposed the root on your left molar.

LIA: rgscht rfghsh!! ghs gtfhhkj?

DR. SMILEY: Sorry. I'll be done in a minute. I'm afraid you'll have to have a root canal. I can put in a temporary filling, but you'll have to come back in two weeks for the procedure.

LIA: Do I have to have a root canal? My tooth doesn't really hurt too much.

DR. SMILEY: If we don't take care of this quickly, it may become infected, and it will hurt a lot. I'll tell Dina to set up an appointment, and I'll see you back here in two weeks, on Tuesday, the 14th, at 3 p.m.

LIA: Will the procedure hurt?

DR. SMILEY: I'll give you medication so that you won't feel any pain. Relax! It's not so bad!

Regular visits to the dentist can prevent problems from happening.
The dentist is your friend! Yes, really!

VOCABULARY

- ① bet: be pretty sure
- checkup: an examination to be sure everything is healthy
- ① chunk: a big piece
- cleaning: removing anything that is on the teeth
- ① comfy: comfortable
- exposed: open
- filling: substance put into a hole in the tooth to protect it
- ① freebie: something special you get without paying
- ① have something checked out: have something looked at or examined
- hygienist: professional who cleans your teeth with special tools
- ① I'm afraid: unfortunately
- infected: filled with bacteria and very sore!

- instruments: special tools
- ⑩ like crazy: A LOT!
- medication: medicine
- molar: large tooth in the back of the mouth
- ⑩ not buying: not believing
- offend: cause someone to feel angry or upset
- ⑩ oh, come on: really!
- ⑩ open wide: open your mouth (so I can get these dental tools in there and find the problem!)
- poke: touch, in a sharp way
- procedure: process of repairing something
- root: the base part of the tooth, under the gums (mouth tissue)
- root canal: dental procedure removing material around the root of the tooth
- temporary: for a short time
- throbbing: aching, almost vibrating
- ⑩ we'd better: we should
- weird: strange

Fun Fact!

At your regular dental checkups, the hygienist will usually give you some freebies: a new toothbrush, some floss, and maybe some new products to try. Maybe they just want you to keep coming back . . .

GRAMMAR REMINDER 1: The Past Simple Tense—Short Answers

For short answers to past simple questions, don't repeat the verb. Simply say: Yes, I did or No, I didn't. We usually use the contraction in short answers.

Examples:

Did you bite something hard? No, I didn't.

Did it hurt when it broke? Yes, it did.

Remember: The answer will be different with that wacky verb to be!

Examples:

Were you eating something hard? Yes, I was.

Was it very painful at the time? No, it wasn't!

GRAMMAR REMINDER 2: Prepositions of Time

Use the prepositions in, at, or on to talk about time.

Examples:

In is used for periods of time.

in two weeks; in three months; in ten years

At is used for an exact time.

at 3 p.m.; at noon

On is used for days and dates.

on Tuesday; on August 6

MORE FUN WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS: Teeth

- sink your teeth into something: do something in an excited way
This is a well-written book about an interesting subject. I can really sink my teeth into it.
- lie through your teeth: lie about something everyone knows is false
He was soaking wet, so he was lying through his teeth when he said he had not gone into the lake.
- by the skin of your teeth: just barely manage to escape a big problem
Wow, that was close! I missed crashing my bike into that car by the skin of my teeth.

- like pulling teeth: do something with a lot of difficulty
It was like pulling teeth when the woman tried to get her cell phone company to discuss a cheaper rate.
- bite off more than you can chew: take on more work than you can handle at the time
She bit off more than she could chew when she agreed to work extra hours on the busy holiday weekend.

Let's See . . .

See here. A regular visit to the eye doctor is another important step in keeping healthy, but when it comes to taking care of your vision, things can become a little fuzzy. Not all eye care is covered by health insurance. Many health plans will not pay for glasses, but most will cover medical care of eye diseases. Three kinds of professionals specialize in care of the eyes:

opticians, optometrists, and ophthalmologists.

An optician is a professional who makes the glasses that an optometrist or ophthalmologist prescribes for a patient.

An optometrist can examine the eyes and prescribe corrective lenses. He can also treat some eye problems. An optometrist is not an M.D., but he has completed pre-med courses at a university and graduate courses at a college of optometry.

For serious eye problems, you should see an ophthalmologist, an eye professional who is an M.D. and who can perform surgery on the eye if necessary.

DIALOGUE 2: TRACK 34

— :

LIA: Hi. I'm here for my eye examination. I know I'm a little early. My appointment is at 2 p.m.

DR. SPECS: That's fine. Is this your regular checkup, or have you been having any problems?

LIA: Well, I'm about due for my checkup, but I'm a little concerned about some headaches I've been having lately.

DR. SPECS: Hmm. Have you been under any extra stress at work or at home lately? That could cause some of your symptoms.

LIA: I'm always under stress! But maybe that's all it is.

DR. SPECS: Let's just check things out to be sure there's no underlying problem. How about your family history? Any eye problems that you know of?

LIA: Actually, my grandmother had glaucoma, and my dad takes drops to control his eye pressure. Oh, yeah, and my mom had cataracts removed.

DR. SPECS: Well, I think it's important to do a thorough exam. I'm going to check your vision, look at both the inside and outside of your eyes, and measure the pressure. I'll need to dilate your pupils, so it'll be a little while before you can drive home. And we'll check the prescription for your glasses.

LIA: I'll feel much better to know everything's okay. Now that you mention it, maybe my prescription needs to be changed. Could that be causing my headaches?

DR. SPECS: Sure it could. We'll check it out. If everything's okay, I'll see you back in two years for a regular checkup.

If you need to get glasses, there are plenty of places to get the prescription filled. But remember, you also can find anything on the Internet! There are websites that will take your prescription and send you exactly the cool frames you want—usually at a much lower price than the stores in your local mall. Yay! We love a bargain!

VOCABULARY

- cataracts: cloudy spots on the clear layers of the eye
- concerned: worried
- dilate: make the pupil of the eye open wider
- due: expected
- frames: the metal or plastic part of eyeglasses (that can make you look like a rock star!)
- fuzzy: blurry; not clear
- glaucoma: a disease of the eye that causes high pressure inside the eye
- M.D.: Medical Doctor, or physician, who has completed medical school and hospital training
- pressure: the force of something pressing
- pre-med: courses leading to a medical doctor's degree
- pupil: the small black opening in the center of the eye
- stress: tension caused by worrying
- thorough: complete
- underlying: below; not easily seen

MORE FUN WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS: Eyes

- a sight for sore eyes: something that is wonderful to see

Lin hadn't seen James for months. When he came home, he was a sight for sore eyes.

- in the public eye: able to be seen by many people
When the newspaper wrote about the politician's mistake, he was not happy to be in the public eye.
- look someone straight in the eye: look at someone without shame or embarrassment
After the waiter spilled the woman's soup, he was so embarrassed that he couldn't look her straight in the eye.
- not see eye to eye: disagree
They couldn't see eye to eye on their vacation plans. He wanted to go to the beach, and she wanted to go to the mountains.
- turn a blind eye: pretend not to see something
He wasn't supposed to have cookies before lunch, but his grandmother turned a blind eye when she saw him reach for the box.

Fun Fact!

You can't sneeze with your eyes open! It's impossible. (Try it, if you don't believe us.)

WOOF!

Are you a pet lover? Do you share your home with a furry little friend who wags his tail when you come home from work, or who jumps in your lap and purrs? Do you share your ice cream cone with little Rover? Is he snuggled in your comfy chair? Pet lovers will tell you that their little friend is like one of the family . . . Woof! That means that little Rover gets lots of TLC . . . just like the kids! The upside of pet ownership is that no matter how bad a day you have, little Rover will be excited to see you. The downside is that you are committed to taking care of one more creature with aches and pains. In the United States, a doctor who is specially trained to treat animals is called a veterinarian. What's the matter? Can't say that one fast? Ha! Neither can most Americans! Because it's such a tongue twister, most people refer to an animal doctor as "the vet." We can all say that one!

DIALOGUE 3: TRACK 35

VET: I haven't seen little Rover here for quite a while. What seems to be the problem?

LIA: I'm really worried about him. You know he's always been a very active dog, but lately he seems to be very stiff in the back legs. If he's been lying down for a while, he has a tough time getting up. When he walks, I've noticed that he limps.

VET: Has he had any type of injury?

LIA: No, just the usual running and jumping. Nothing else.

VET: I know he's a pretty active dog, but hip problems are quite common in that breed. Let me check him out thoroughly. I think we'll need to get some X-rays to see what's going on here. I'll have to sedate him before doing the tests. Is that okay?

LIA: Sure, do anything you have to do. Can you do the tests now?

VET: No, you'll have to bring him in tomorrow. It will take a little while for the sedative to work, and then he'll need some time to wake up from it.

LIA: My poor little Rover!

VET: Let's plan on tomorrow morning, first thing. Is that OK for you?

LIA: Absolutely! I'll have him here first thing. What time do you open?

Health insurance is such a great idea for people that someone figured out it would be just as good for people's pets. Yes, you can buy health insurance for Rover! Your vet will have all the details. That's de—TAILS. Haha!

VOCABULARY

- ① absolutely!: for sure! of course!
- breed: type, kind
- committed: decided to do something
- creature: animal
- details: all items of information
- ② figured out: had an idea; understood
- first thing: as early as possible
- furry: covered in fur
- hip: the bone joint between the waist and the legs
- ice cream cone: a serving of ice cream in a cone-shaped cookie
- injury: hurt caused by some event
- limps: walks with difficulty because of a hurt leg
- ③ one of the family: as if an actual member of the human family
- purrs: makes a vibrating sound (that's a happy cat!)
- sedate: make calm, tranquil with medicine
- sedative: a medicine that puts you to sleep
- ④ see what's going on: see what the situation is
- snuggled: sitting comfortably
- stiff: hard to move

- tail: the back part of an animal (it's what the dog wags!)
- TLC: Tender, Loving Care; what we give to those we love
- tongue twister: a word or expression that is very difficult to say
- veterinarian: animal doctor
- wags: moves from side to side in an excited way
- wealthy: rich; having lots of money
- will: an official paper that explains what must be done with your money after your death

Fun Fact!

A very wealthy woman in New York City left $12 MILLION in her will for her little dog. Woof, woof!

Make friends with the doggie next door. You never know if he'll be a millionaire one day. Haha!

MORE FUN WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS: Dogs

- as sick as a dog: very sick
I missed the party because I was as sick as a dog; I just stayed in bed.
- fight like cats and dogs: fight or argue a lot They're best friends now, but when they were young kids, it seemed that they always fought like cats and dogs.
- raining cats and dogs: raining very hard
The hurricane left the area, but it was still raining cats and dogs.
- you can't teach an old dog new tricks: it's very hard for someone to change the way they do things

Margaret tried to teach her grandmother how to use e-mail, but her grandmother just couldn't figure out the computer. Grandma just said, "I'd rather just write a letter on paper. You can't teach an old dog new tricks."

- going to the dogs: getting bad
His lunch business started going to the dogs when the stores next to him closed.

Review: Units 10–12

VOCABULARY

Fill in the missing words. The first letter is there to help you.

1. Did you hear about poor Jenny? She was the v_____ of a burglary yesterday. Someone broke into her house and stole all her money and jewelry.
2. I had a bad car accident last week. I was knocked u _____, so I don't remember anything, but I feel fine now.
3. Paul was a w_____ when the bus bumped into the parked car. When the police arrived to help, Paul was able to give helpful information about what happened.
4. I think I have the flu. I have all the s_____: headache, sneezing, and runny nose. I think I'll go up to bed.
5. If you are going to s_____, it's best to use a tissue so you don't spread any germs.
6. My body a_____s all over after running 10 miles yesterday.
7. When you go to the doctor, make sure you're prepared to pay your c_____.
8. I was so tired this morning that the guy behind me had to p_____ me when the bus line started to move.
9. I really don't want to go to the dentist today. My tooth hurts a lot, so she's going to do a r_____ c_____ procedure.
10. I'll need someone to pick me up from the eye doctor today. He's going to d_____ my pupils, so I won't be able to drive.

Answer Key

INFORMAL LANGUAGE

Fill in the blanks in the idiomatic expressions. Can you explain what they mean?

11. I thought the new job would be better than the old one, but actually it was out of the _____ pan and into the fire.
12. Poor Aunt Hilda is in bad _____ after falling and breaking her arm. I should go and visit her tomorrow.
13. You look like the _____ of health after your vacation in the Caribbean!
14. I love getting new projects at work, especially interesting ones that I can really _____ my teeth into.
15. He was so lucky to survive the accident. He escaped by the _____ of his teeth.
16. It's wonderful to see you after such a long time. You're a(n) _____ for sore eyes!
17. The mother turned a(n) _____ eye when her son pretended he was doing his homework while he played on the computer.
18. Poor Tony. After he ate that huge Thanksgiving meal, he was as sick as a(n) _____.
19. It's no good. I just don't understand these computers. I guess you just can't teach an old dog new _____!
20. The neighbor's kids are so noisy. They fight like _____ and dogs all the time.

Answer Key

GRAMMAR

Choose the correct modal verbs for the sentences. Can you explain why you need that one?

21. If there's a fire, you (can/have to) get out of the building as quickly as possible.
22. The doctor says I (should/would) stop smoking if I want to be healthy.
23. (Could/should) you open the window, please? It's really hot in here!
24. You (should/can) always wear sunscreen on sunny days to protect your skin.
25. I love having a day off because I (don't have to/wouldn't) get up early.
26. You'll (have to/had) stay at home tomorrow if you still feel sick.
27. We (should/had to) call 911 last week when our house caught fire.
28. I (can/could) run 10 miles a day when I was younger.
29. I (should/would) buy a new car if I had more money.
30. You (would/could) have an accident if you keep driving this fast.

Answer Key

Unit

13

Around Town

Where Am I? :

Settling in feels great, doesn't it? There's a comfortable feeling of being at home, and a big part of the fun is just to scope out the neighborhood. There are plenty of fun places to discover, but it's great to know that there are lots of places nearby that can help you with just about anything you may need. Maybe you're thinking, "The first thing I need to do is write home."

We agree! You miss family and friends, and they miss you. (Well, we hope they do.) It's time for a long letter with the latest scoop and all the gossip about your new life in the United States. Hmm. But how does the letter get from your table to the table far away in your home country?

The U.S. Post Office can get the job done! Mail is reliable in the United States, and it's inexpensive and convenient. There's a central location in most apartment complexes for individual mailboxes. The postal worker will put the letters in your box and leave parcels in a safe place. You can pick up your mail here, and there's a place to leave mail that's going out. In some neighborhoods, there's a special large metal container where you can drop off mail. Pickups of that mail are scheduled at regular times during the day.

If you live in a house, you probably have your own mailbox next to the street. You can leave your outgoing mail there, but be sure to put up the little flag. That's the signal to the mail carrier that there's something to collect. In a larger city, there will just be a slot in your front door. The mailman will put your mail into the slot. Let's hope your little dog friend, Rover, doesn't think it's lunch!

Be sure to have the proper postage on the envelope, or the post office will return it to you, marked "Return to Sender. Insufficient Postage." (Don't forget to include a return address on the envelope.) If you don't have stamps, or if you want to mail a package, you'll need to head to the post office. The worker will weigh your parcel and give you several mailing choices. Regular mail is pretty speedy in the United States, but you may want to be sure that something will arrive quickly. You can choose Priority Mail, which usually arrives within the United States in three to four days. Express Mail will get your letter or package to a U.S. recipient the very next day, but this can be pretty expensive. You'll be able to choose to insure the mail and to get notices about its delivery.

While you're out on the post office errand, plan to stop at the local library. It's not just about books, although you can find anything at all that you want to read. It doesn't cost anything to get a library card, and you'll be able to check out as many books as you want for free. You'll need to return the books by the due date, or you'll pay a small fine. This fine increases every day the book is late, so it can add up pretty quickly. If you want a book that isn't checked in, you can reserve a copy, and the librarian will notify you when it comes in. By the way, you can also just relax with the newspaper and a cup of coffee; many libraries have small cafés. And check out the DVDs, videos, music CDs, and audiobooks, so you have plenty to listen to on those long commutes! You'll be amazed at the cool things happening at the library. There are classes for just about any interest you may have: managing your money, knitting, learning computer skills, and starting art projects. Of course, there are book discussion groups for all types of books and Story Hours for the kids. And most libraries in most towns offer English classes for practice and conversation. These classes are almost always free. Cool!

Don't forget your local town hall or municipal building as another great resource for information. At the municipal building, you can view everything from airplane flight plans that might affect your neighborhood to property limits and zoning requirements. You can learn about any town ordinances you may need to know. If you want to put up a fence or build a deck, you'll need to get a permit. There are rules and building codes about where you can put additions and rules about how big they can be. You'll have to pay for a permit, but it's better than paying a stiff fine for not getting one!

DIALOGUE 1: TRACK 36

ALAN: Hey, Lia, that's a pretty big parcel you have. Can I give you a hand? Where are you going?

LIA: Thanks, Alan. Actually, it's not that heavy, just a little bulky. I'm sending some American jeans home to my sister, so I'm headed to the post office. I thought it was on this block. Can you tell me where it is?

ALAN: Oh, it's not far. It's right around the block. Go to that corner and make a right. When you get to the crosswalk, cross the street. You'll see the post office in the middle of the next block. You can't miss it; you'll see the Stars and Stripes hanging over the entrance.

LIA: Hey, thanks. By the way, where are you headed? If you're not busy, would you like to grab a quick bite somewhere?

ALAN: Great idea! I'm on my way to the library, and there's a nice café in the lobby. We could have a quick bite or some coffee and then see what new magazines have arrived. They usually put the new ones on the table near the sofa. I also want to find out about the new English conversation class that's starting this week. It meets once a week, and I figure it's a great way to meet new friends while I practice English.

LIA: English classes? This week? Count me in! I didn't know the library was in this neighborhood. How do we get there?

ALAN: It's just two blocks from the post office, between the bank and the drugstore. We cross the avenue and then turn left. That's about a five-minute walk from here.

LIA: Let's go!

If you have a skill or hobby, your library wants you! Local libraries offer lots of classes, and they are always happy to find volunteers who will teach their hobbies to others.

Be sure to find out if you need a license to own a pet in your town. Sometimes there is a limit on how many dogs or cats you can have. There are also noise ordinances, so if your pets (or your parties!) make a lot of noise after a certain time, you may get a visit from the code enforcement people.

VOCABULARY

- add up: get more expensive
- additions: structures that you add to your house

- amazed: very surprised
- apartment complexes: groups of apartment buildings
- ① at home: feeling comfortable, as if at home
- ① audiobooks: books you can listen to
- building code: rules about how something may be built, for example, materials and size
- bulky: big and a little hard to manage, but not necessarily heavy in weight
- central location: a place convenient to most people
- checked in: available on the shelf
- check out: sign out a book or other material with your library card
- code enforcement person: someone from the town whose job is to handle complaints about anyone not following the town ordinances
- commute: trip to work
- corner: where two blocks meet
- ① count me in: I want to be included!
- crosswalk: a specially marked area to cross the street at a corner
- deck: an open structure outside a house
- ① drop off: leave something or someone at a place
- due date: when you must bring the book back
- ① figure: believe; think
- flight plans: if an airport schedules planes to fly over your neighborhood
- ① give someone a hand: help someone
- gossip: exciting or surprising information, often about other people
- ① grab a quick bite: have a quick, casual small meal or snack
- hobby: something that you like to do in your free time
- insufficient: not enough
- insure: pay for a service that will pay you for the package if it is lost

- librarian: the library worker
- lobby: large open area before the main room
- ① make a right: turn right
- miss: feel sad to be without someone or something
- municipal building (also called town hall): building where the town or city offices are
- once: one time
- ① on my way: headed for, going to
- ordinances: rules about noise and pets in a neighborhood
- parcel: package
- permit: a document allowing you to build something
- ① pick up (verb; two words): collect; gather
- pickup: (noun; one word): process of collecting something
- postage: the stamps needed to mail something
- Priority Mail, Express Mail: two fast delivery options that cost extra
- ① put up: build
- reliable: efficient; dependable
- reserve: have the library save the book for you when it comes in
- return address: your name and address, which you put in the upper left corner of the envelope
- ① scoop: information
- ① scope out: explore; find out about things
- settling in (also settling down): getting used to your new place; getting comfortable
- signal: a sign
- slot: a small opening, usually in machines, that will accept a letter or a coin
- speedy: fast
- stamps: postage in different denominations

- Stars and Stripes: an informal name for the American flag (Can you guess why?)
- ① stiff: harsh, extreme
- Story Hour: a time (usually at a library) when children may come to hear a story read to them
- write home: send a letter home
- ① you can't miss it: it's obvious, very clear to see
- zoning requirements: rules about what you can build on your property

PRONUNCIATION POINTER

:

Library is a tricky word to pronounce. It sure seems like there are a lot of r's in that word, and we should hear them both! The word sounds like lie-brerry.

Fun Fact!

In the Batman comic books, Batgirl was a librarian. We bet she didn't have to tell the kids to shhhh! more than once.

MORE FUN WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS: Prepositions of Place

up in the air: uncertain; not sure

Her plans to go to the movies were up in the air until she knew if she had to work late.

under the weather: feeling sick

Doctors say you should stay home from work if you're feeling under the weather. Don't make others sick!

over my head: too complicated to understand

I couldn't understand their conversation about the mathematics of space and the planets; it was way over my head.

around the corner: happening soon

Wow, the summer was just ending, but the decorations in the store made her feel that Halloween was just around the corner.

out of the loop: not knowing what's going on

Mary Ellen's entire family was planning a vacation, but Mary Ellen was so busy with her work project that she felt completely out of the loop.

GRAMMAR REMINDER 1: Prepositions of Place

On, around, in, over, near, and between are all prepositions of place. They indicate where something is. Did you spot them in the dialogue?

on this block

around the block

in the middle of the next block

over the entrance

on the table

near the sofa

in this neighborhood

between the bank and the drugstore

GRAMMAR REMINDER 2: The Present Continuous Tense—Affirmative Statements

The present continuous is used to talk about things happening at this moment. Use the verb to be and the ing form of the verb. We usually use the contractions, especially when speaking.

I am sending. (I'm sending.)
You are sending. (You're sending.)

Note: Don't be confused! Some books call this tense the present continuous, and some call it the present progressive. It's the same tense!

At Your Service

There are tons of services available in every city and town to help you with any need. Sometimes it can be confusing to know how to find what you're looking for. Most towns have a website you can check, but if you're looking for that personal touch, the people at the local municipal offices can help. They know about all the services your town and county offer. Are you wondering about trash pickup? Town workers can tell you the schedule. And because the whole country is focusing more on recycling, towns are making it easy for residents by supplying special recycling containers. The Public Works Department is responsible for the care of all township property. Is there a pothole in your street? Call the department! Does your road flood in a heavy rain? Call the department! Do you need someone to take away all those piles of leaves you raked up? Call the department! Are you looking for parks and recreation? Call the department!

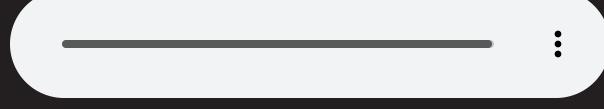

Oh, yeah, we all can use a little recreation. Take your pick! There are local jogging trails and nature paths. There are baseball fields and tennis courts. How about a picnic in the park while the kiddies are playing in the tot lot? Some parks even have a dog park. Yes, take your pooch along so he can play with his little doggie pals! Remember to take some poop bags. Owners need to clean up after their mutts.

Are you thinking about new activities with the neighbors? How about yoga? You can find boat safety classes and golf lessons. And most towns have special activities designed just for seniors. If someone you know is looking for bus trips and special crafts activities, just call your town office! You can even call the town for help with stray animals in the neighborhood or information about immunization shots for your cat. Count us out for that one—we're dog people! 😊

We're not kidding when we say your town and county offices can help you find anything at all you need. Even the police department offers great tips on how to keep your home safe. If you're going away (did somebody say vacation? Yay!), you can ask the police to drive by your street and keep an eye on things while you're gone. Local government offices also provide special programs and services for seniors and people with disabilities. And if you're wondering about how to register the kids for school, the town can direct you to the right school district. Back to school, kids! They're waiting for you!

DIALOGUE 2: TRACK 37

RECEPTIONIST: Hi. Welcome to Slumberton Township. Can I help you?

LIA: Thanks, yeah. I think I've got a big problem. Now that the nice weather is here, I'm spending more time outside in the yard. The other day I noticed a cat with a litter of kittens in the corner of the yard under a tree.

RECEPTIONIST: I love kittens! They're so cute! Did you ask your neighbors if anyone is missing a cat?

LIA: Oh, I think kittens are cute, too. But I'm not crazy about them when they grow into cats. I'm a dog person. Anyway, I checked with the neighbors, but they don't own the cats. I don't know what to do about them. I don't really want a litter of kittens in my yard, but I don't know who can help me.

RECEPTIONIST: Come on in. Mr. Farkel is our animal control officer. His office is right down the hall, on the left. His department takes care of these things. I'm sure he can help.

LIA: That's a relief! I don't want them to go hungry, but I don't want the responsibility of taking care of them.

 a short time later ***

MR. FARKEL: I understand that you have some feral cats in your yard. Be careful. These are wild cats, and they can be very aggressive around humans.

LIA: I don't want to hurt them. Is there some way to move them from my yard?

MR. FARKEL: Actually, we have a feral cat program. There are a few specially trained cat people in the neighborhood who can trap the cats humanely. Then they'll take them to a vet to be neutered or spayed. When the cats have recovered, they'll be released back into the woods.

LIA: Won't they be in danger in the woods?

MR. FARKEL: These cats can take care of themselves. They'll be fine.

LIA: Wow, thanks so much for the help. I didn't know there are so many ways the town can help residents!

One of the most important services offered in every city is education. Everyone who lives in the United States can have a free public school education. Kids start early, but the cutoff dates for birthdays vary from state to state:

- Pre-K is for children aged three and/or four. (The actual age depends on where you live. Pre-K is not mandatory.)
- Kindergarten is for five-year-olds.
- Elementary school starts at first grade.
- Middle school (sometimes called junior high) is usually for grades 6, 7, and 8.

- High school (also called secondary school) is for grades 9, 10, 11, and 12.
-

To register for school, people need to prove that they live in the town. These are the documents most schools districts require:

- Proof of the student's birth date
- A record of immunizations
- Proof that the student lives in the district
 - A copy of an apartment lease agreement
 - A copy of a utility bill (for example, water, telephone, or cable)
 - Parent's driver's license or another photo ID

VOCABULARY

- aggressive: with a strong tendency to fight or hurt
- animal control officer: the person who makes sure owners register their pets; he or she also takes care of any animal issues in the town
- bus trips: activities that take groups of people to someplace special
- confusing: not clear
- crafts: things to make with simple materials
- cutoff date: the last day something will be allowed
- disabilities: needs that require special help (these can include problems walking, seeing, hearing, or learning)
- ① dog people/cat people: people who prefer a certain pet
- feral cats: wild cats that live outdoors and have no human owners
- go hungry: be without food
- heavy rain: a lot of rain
- humanely: in a kind way that won't hurt
- immunizations: shots (injections) to prevent certain diseases
- jogging trails: paved paths for jogging (a form of running)
- ① keep an eye on: watch in a protective way

- ⑩ kiddies: kids (Don't confuse this with kitties, which is another word for kittens, or baby cats.)
 - kittens: baby cats (Baby dogs are called puppies.)
 - litter: a group of cats or dogs born at the same time to the same mother
 - mandatory: required
 - missing: lost (Note this second meaning for miss; see the Dialogue 1 vocabulary list to refresh your memory about another meaning.)
- ⑩ mutt: a dog of mixed breeds
 - nature paths: walkways through woods for exercise and enjoying nature
 - neutered (for male animals): testicles removed in a painless medical procedure
- ⑩ pal: friend
 - picnic: a special meal for eating in a park or other outside area
- ⑩ poop: Hmm. How do we say this nicely? It's what comes out the tail end of your pooch. ICK!
 - pothole: a hole in the middle of the street
 - recovered: got better; get healthy again
 - recycling: collecting bottles, cans, plastic, and paper to use again
 - register: sign up; enroll
 - released: set free
 - residents: people who live in a place
 - responsible for: have something be your job
 - seniors: older people usually around 60 or more
 - services: programs to make life easier or more comfortable
 - spayed (for female animals): reproductive organs removed so they won't have more babies
 - stray: an animal that is lost
- ⑩ tons: a lot
- ⑩ tot lot: children's playground in a park

- vary: be different
- yoga: a fitness program that stretches the body and calms the mind

GRAMMAR REMINDER 3: More Present Continuous Tense

Hey, did you spot the present continuous tense again?

I'm spending more time outside in the yard.

Here it has a slightly different meaning. Rather than meaning “at this particular moment” (as in “I'm sending” in Dialogue 1), it means the general time frame around now. So Lia is not out in her yard right now (she is in the township office talking to Mr. Farkel!) but she is out in the yard more often, in general, around this time of year.

Remember those stative verbs (see unit 4)? Although she is talking about time around now, some verbs cannot be used in the continuous tense.

Examples are the verbs to know and to want. They are stative verbs. Look at these examples from the dialogue.

Correct Examples:

I don't know what to do about them.

I don't really want kittens in my yard.

I don't know who can help me.

Not:

I'm not knowing what to do about them.

I'm not really wanting kittens in my yard.

I'm not knowing who can help me.

MORE FUN WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS: Take Your Pick

- take your pick: choose any one
She was first on line for the special sale, so she got to take her pick of the best dresses.
- pick up the check: pay the bill for something
Sarah wanted to pick up the check when she took her dad to lunch.
- pick out: choose; select
For his birthday, Tommy's mom let him pick out one special toy to buy.
- pick on: tease; be mean to someone
The teacher stopped the little boy when he tried to pick on a smaller kid.
- pick and choose: be selective; choose carefully
Antonio arrived at the flower shop when it opened, so he had plenty of time to pick and choose the perfect plant.
- pick up on: understand, notice
It wasn't hard to pick up on the surprise; everyone was whispering when she walked in the door.

Fun Fact!

Okay, you know what's coming. What do we call that favorite vehicle with a large open space in back for carrying just about anything you need to move? Yes, it's a pickup truck!

Unit

14

Culture Vulture

What's Happening? — : :

Home, sweet home. It's great to get mail and read all the news and gossip from home. As you're reading, are you listening to a favorite CD from the library? Are you thinking about how nice it would be to hear a concert in person? It's not hard to do. There are plenty of opportunities to hear live music, and many of them are right in the neighborhood. Are you interested in the arts? Pick up a copy of the local newspaper. The Arts and Entertainment section will have a full list of all the cultural activities going on in the area. There are activities to make every culture vulture happy. If you do some research, you can find out what days are “pay what you wish” at some famous museums. Instead of a pricey ticket, you can give what you feel you can afford that day. (Remember that museums are not open every day, and if you’re hoping to see that special exhibition at the Museum of Modern Art, make sure it’s open on the day you plan to go. And be sure to check the hours!)

In the newspaper, you’ll be able to find theater reviews, movie times, and reviews of new music releases. Look for a section called Community Events. You’ll find that most communities have arts groups that perform locally. There are plays, classical concerts, and popular music. Even the local high schools and colleges put on plays and concerts. Ticket prices for these local performances are usually very low, and the performers are often very talented, so you can bring the whole family. In fact, you can even audition to become part of an orchestra, amateur theater group, or dance troupe. Are you wondering what it would be like to be a star? Imagine having the paparazzi follow you all day! Wouldn’t your neighbors love to see you performing onstage? We sure would!

If you live in the city or the suburbs, you’re always pretty close to a live professional performance, too. Don’t be discouraged if it seems that the tickets for these events are very expensive. Costs for professional orchestras and musicians are pretty high. But we have the inside scoop for you. You may not have to pay full price for those fancy tickets! Check to see if you can subscribe to a half-price ticket newsletter. This is a weekly listing of the plays, museums, and concerts that are offering half-price tickets. In our town, the list is delivered every week right to our e-mail box. You can get a great bargain without ever leaving your couch! But if you’re out and about and visiting the city, places like New York City often have a special kiosk where you can buy these half-price tickets. Often, they’re good only on the day of the performance, so get to the city early. Be sure to check for the hours of the ticket booths, too. And don’t forget to check at the theater box office the day of the show. You can sometimes get a great deal there, too.

You’ve probably noticed that we use the word theater in a lot of different ways. For a special night out, someone may “go to the theater.” This always means that they're going to see a play, and it usually means a Broadway show. This is not a TV show! A Broadway show is a play that is acted out by professional actors. It's professional theater. A Broadway show can also be a musical. That's a play that has lots of songs and many dance numbers. Theater also refers to the building. So theater can mean the show and the place where the show is performed!

But we're not finished yet! A theater can also refer to the place where you go to see a movie. So you go to your favorite movie theater to see a movie. Film buffs may say they're going to the cinema. They're talking about the movies in a fancy way. Film buffs often call movies films. You probably know that the film industry in the United States is mostly located in Hollywood, California. But did you know some people call Hollywood the "City of Broken Dreams"? Can you guess why? Imagine all the people who travel to Hollywood hoping to become rich movie stars. Only a very few ever become famous film stars. The rest live with their broken dreams . . .

Fun Fact!

The Academy Award (the top prize in the United States for the film industry) is called the Oscar. It got its name from a librarian (yes!) who said that the award statue looked like her Uncle Oscar!

DIALOGUE 1: TRACK 38

— :

ALAN: Hi, Lia. What's happening?

LIA: Not much, Alan. But my cousin Bevin's coming to town this week, so I'm pretty excited.

ALAN: Cool. Are you planning to stay home and catch up, or are you going into the city? Is she staying for a while?

LIA: Well, she's not staying very long. But I really want to show her around, so I'm looking to see what's happening in the city this week. I know she'd like to see a show, so I'm hoping to get two-fers; you know . . . two tickets for the price of one . . . for a musical on Broadway. We're not worrying about which musical—any one will do!

ALAN: Are you thinking about eating in a restaurant, too? I think I have twofers for a great Italian restaurant right near the theater district. I'm not going into the city for a while, so I'd be happy to give them to you.

LIA: Wow, that's pretty nice of you! I wanted to treat Bevin to a nice dinner, but I know those restaurants are pricey. But if we have a coupon to get two dinners for the price of one, I'm in! And I think I know the place you mean. I read a review of Luigi's Restaurant in Sunday's paper; the food critic said that it's excellent.

ALAN: Yeah, you'll have to make reservations before you go. Dinner and a show! Your cousin will have a great time.

LIA: I'll have a great time, too! I can't wait!

TIP 1 If you're a student, be sure to ask for the student price at cultural events. Most places offer a good discount for students. You may have to show your student ID. There are discounts for seniors too.

TIP 2 If your student days are over, you can still find a good deal at the local concert hall. Call to see if they have "Community Rush" tickets. This allows people to come to the box office on the day of the performance for cheap tickets. It's a good way to be sure everyone in the community can afford to see a good concert.

Theater? Theatre?

You'll see it spelled both ways. Take your pick!

VOCABULARY

- afford: be able to pay for
- amateur: not for money
- arts groups: community groups of people with an interest in the arts
- audition: try out to become part of an event
- box office: the booth in the theater where you buy tickets
- ⓘ can't wait: be excited about something about to happen
- ⓘ catch up: learn all the news from someone
- cinema: another term for “movies”
- couch: sofa
- cultural activities/the arts: things to do with the arts, for example, music, dance, theater, and art
- ⓘ culture vulture: a person who is very interested in museums and the arts
- dance numbers: special routines in a show for dancers
- dance troupe: people putting on a dance performance
- discouraged: feeling bad
- ⓘ film buff: someone with a strong interest in everything about movies
- film industry: the business of making movies
- full price: paying the entire cost of each ticket
- good: valid, able to be used
- half-price: paying only half of the cost for each ticket
- hours: scheduled times something is open

- ① inside scoop: the information only people who live there know
- kiosk: a small building where something is sold
- live music: music that you hear right there as they play it, not recorded
- movie times: times the movie will show at the theater
- music releases: days when new music goes on sale in stores
- opportunities: chances
- orchestra: a group of musicians playing many classical instruments
- ① out and about: going to different places
- paparazzi: photographers who are always around looking for famous people
- performances: shows before an audience
- play: a drama intended for performance before an audience
- ① pricey: expensive
- professional: an expert, someone who performs for pay
- ① put on: perform before an audience
- reviews: an expert's report about something
- ① show someone around: take a visitor to interesting places
- special exhibition: a special show that will be there for only a short time
- theater group: people putting on plays
- ① treat: pay for, as a special event or reward

GRAMMAR REMINDER 1: The Present Continuous Tense—Questions

To ask a question in the present continuous tense, remember to just switch the subject and present form of the verb to be: present form of to be → subject →-ing form of the main verb. (If needed, remember to put the question word at the beginning.) Look at the examples from the dialogue:

- Are you planning to stay home and catch up, or are you going into the city?
- Are you thinking about eating in a restaurant, too?
- Is she staying for a while?
- Where is she staying?

PRONUNCIATION POINTER

:

Like its spelling, the pronunciation of the word theater can vary. It usually sounds like thee-eh-ter. However, in some parts of the United States, people may say thee-ay-ter.

Fun Fact!

Half-price tickets are often called two-fers. Can you guess why? They're priced so that you can buy two fer (for) the price of one!

MORE FUN WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS: Music

- music to one's ears: something great
She really missed her family a lot, so it was music to her ears when she heard her sister's voice.
- for a song: for a very low price
The shop at the beach was closing for the winter, so she was able to buy a swimsuit for a song.
- face the music: handle consequences of an action
She was unprepared for the meeting, so she had to face the music when her boss asked for a report.
- ring a bell: sound familiar

He didn't recognize the professor's face, but her name rang a bell.

- sing someone's praises: say very good things about someone
When he finally handed in an excellent report, the boss sang his praises to the whole department.

See the Capital . . . and the Capitol

Are you dying to see museums and historical monuments? If you have some time, head to Washington, D.C. A visit to our nation's capital is the culture bargain of a lifetime! The Smithsonian Institution is worth a trip from anywhere. Although even some Americans think that the Smithsonian is a single museum, in fact, it's a complex of 19 museums and 9 research centers. NINETEEN MUSEUMS! All of them right in the same area! And here's the best part: they're free! There is no admission fee to visit any of the Smithsonian museums. Yes, U.S. taxes pay for these museums, so you can enjoy seeing those taxes hard at work.

Do you like bugs? There's a museum for that. Thinking about flying to the moon? There's a museum for that. Longing for a look at long-lost lizards? There's a museum for that. The Smithsonian Institution has museums for just about anything you could possibly be interested in. Maybe you're just hoping for a stroll through beautiful gardens surrounded by sculpture. Yes, the Smithsonian has it all: architecture and art, gardens, space information, ethnic museums, collections of clothing, history . . . You name it, and it's there. And, of course, you can even buy a not-so-culturally-important T-shirt on the mall. In fact, when you need a rest from all that walking, the mall is a beautiful spot to relax. This is not a shopping mall; it's a long stretch of lawn and walkways, with benches and some food places. You can see the beautiful U.S. Capitol building with its white dome on one end, and the 555-foot-tall Washington Monument on the other end.

Because there's so much to do and see, it's a good idea to plan your cultural visit well in advance. If you're not planning to do a tour on foot, you can arrange for all kinds of different tours. These special tours will cost money. Of course, there are the typical bus tours. These will pick you up at many different locations and drive you through the entire area. Usually you can hop on and hop off. As the bus takes you to different spots, you can stop to visit the attraction for as long as you'd like, then get on a bus to the next stop when you're ready. Or you can take bicycle tours of the area. How about a Segway tour? Now, that is cool! There are tons of special tours you can book, according to your interests. Some of these are very popular, so you might want to buy your tickets in advance. You can do it online and avoid the wait at the tour office or ticket counter.

If you plan in advance, you can also time your visit. That way you can easily fit in all you want to see. Check online for museum floor plans and know what sections you plan to visit. (You can spend an entire day in some places and still not see everything!) See what other museums are nearby. Don't forget historical museums where you can learn all about the city, certain industries, and cultural and ethnic influences on the country.

And you will probably want to visit many of the beautiful memorials along the mall. There are several that honor past presidents, as well as many war memorials. These commemorate the sacrifices of people who served in the country's wars. Visiting these monuments and memorials is a nice way to think about all the wonderful things we have . . . and the people who made them possible.

Just make sure you leave plenty of time for browsing in the gift shops!

DIALOGUE 2: TRACK 39

LIA: Hey, Alan, aren't you planning a trip to London this month?

ALAN: Well, that was the original plan. But now we're not planning to go to the UK at all. We've decided to save some money and just have a staycation this year.

JAE: Yeah. We're going to Plan B: just stay home and have a vacation doing things nearby. And with the money we save, we're planning to see three extra shows when we go to London next year! We're thinking about a drive to Washington, D.C., for a weekend. What do you think?

LIA: Wow, road trip! Count me in! The North Tower at the National Gallery has an exhibit of American art that I really want to see. And I'm dying to see the special Matisse paper cuttings exhibit. I checked the floor plan, and I see that they've moved it from the Tower to the Concourse. Every time I'm in the capital, I forget to plan around the exhibit's hours, and I miss it. Every time!

ALAN: Don't you check the museum's hours? Isn't it open all day?

LIA: Sure, I know the museum's hours. But the Matisse exhibit has its own hours, separate from the rest of the museum. Because the paper cuttings are fragile, they're only on display for certain times of the day. Too much light can damage them.

JAE: Well, we're not staying in D.C. very long, and we're planning to buy tickets for an opera performance at the Kennedy Center. I'm not sure we'll get around to going to the National Gallery of Art on this trip.

LIA: I know you culture vultures have your own plan. But we can save some big bucks if we carpool down. Then you can do your own thing, and I'll go see the Matisse exhibit. I'm not going home until I see that exhibit! We can split the gas, and we can share the driving. It'll be a great way to save money and have a great cultural weekend. And if you're lucky, maybe I'll sing on the way home!

ALAN: Aagh! It sounds like a great idea, but we'll only do it if you promise not to sing!

Find out who the congressional representative is in your voting district. If you call that office a few weeks before you go, the representative can sometimes arrange a special tour of the White House for you! (Your friends will be very impressed.)

VOCABULARY

- architecture: the art of designing buildings or other structures
- browsing: just looking around
- ① bugs: insects
- capital: – spelled with an a – the city where the government is centered
- capitol: – spelled with an o – this is the office building where government business takes place
- carpool: join with other people for a drive
- complex: many things in one area
- concourse: the main area of a place, usually the first floor
- congressional representative: the person elected in a district to vote in Congress for laws that the people in the district want
- dome: a shape that looks like half a circle
- ① do your own thing: separate so each person does what is interesting to him or her
- ① dying to: want to do something very much
- exhibit: a special display in a museum or gallery
- ① fit in: be able to see a lot of things
- floor plan: a map of where things are located in all areas of a place
- foot: a unit of measurement. Remember: we do not usually use the metric system in the United States.
- fragile: delicate and easily damaged
- ① get around to: find time to do something
- lawn: a large grassy area
- lizards: reptiles of many sizes

- longing for: wanting very much
- ① long-lost: something that hasn't been seen for a very long time
- memorials, monuments: buildings, gardens, or statues made to honor very important people or times in history
- on display: able to be seen
- opera: a musical play with all parts sung by professional classical singers
- original: first
- ① Plan B: a second-choice plan
- ① road trip: a fun trip taken in the car
- sculpture: art that is made by shaping or carving stone, clay, or some other material
- Segway: a cool two-wheeled scooterlike vehicle that is run by balancing; people stand on it (See the pronunciation note for another interesting /seg-way/.)
- separate from: different from
- ① share the driving: take turns driving on a long trip
- ① split the gas: share expenses of driving somewhere
- time your visit: plan your day so that you can see a lot of things
- voting district: the area that elects the person to act for the district in local, state and the national government; neighborhoods in towns may belong in different districts

GRAMMAR REMINDER 2: The Present Continuous Tense—Negatives

To make a verb negative in the present continuous tense, just add not. Be sure to watch the word order! It goes like this: subject → present form of verb to be → not → -ing form of the main verb.

Can you find these examples from the dialogue?

- We’re not planning to go to the UK. (We aren’t planning to go to the UK.)
- She’s not staying very long. (She isn’t staying very long.)
- I’m not going home until I see that exhibit!

Usage Reminder: What do you think is an informal way of asking What’s your opinion?

PRONUNCIATION POINTER

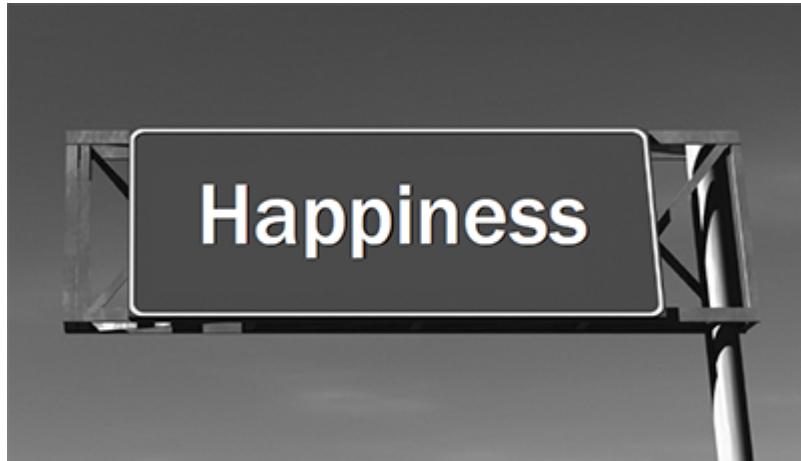

:

You can impress your friends with a very fancy English word that means “to gently move from one topic to another.” The word is segue and it is pronounced seg-way—just like the Segway that people can ride! (Maybe the inventor gave it this name because it moves people easily from one place to another?) Here’s how segue can be used in a sentence: They were talking about culture, but when the baseball player arrived, they segued [seg-wayed] into a discussion about sports.

Unit

15

Helping Out

Helping Hands, Giving Back

Sometimes, the best way to make yourself at home in your new country is to get involved by helping out in the community. Actually, volunteerism is a very important value to Americans. We are aware that we have many advantages, and we value showing appreciation for this by sharing with others who may have less. Giving back doesn't only mean giving things. It also means giving time, or sharing talent. The number of ways to help others is almost limitless. You might think, “I’m new here. What can I do?” Actually, newcomers have plenty to offer. In fact, the talents of people new to the United States have always been huge assets to the country. Your community needs you!

Where do you start? Well, what do you like to do? Do you sing in the shower? How about going to a nursing home and singing for the residents? They’ll love it (well, we hope they’ll love it), and if you sing in your native language, they may think you’re a world famous star! Can you knit? Do you enjoy carpentry? Do you know a lot about plants and landscaping? Libraries and large stores are always looking for people to demonstrate special skills for small groups of people. This is a great way to practice your English! Do you have special job experience? Sometimes it’s difficult to get the same kind of job in a new country that you had in your home country. A good way to stay connected is to volunteer in your field. Maybe you were in the health-care field. Hospitals and care centers would love to have you. Even if you just spend time talking to patients, you can boost their morale.

Don’t forget that your language is a talent, too! Lots of times people come to a hospital or town office with no English language skills at all. Maybe you could volunteer to be a go-between and help them explain what they need. There are plenty of families that want their children to learn another language. If you offer to tutor a child, you may find that your English skills get better, too.

Do you know where everything is in your community? Can you find your way around? A great way to discover new places, roads, and neighborhoods is to volunteer to drive seniors or patients to appointments and treatment centers. Homebound shut-ins often need help with grocery shopping or meals. Organizations need people to help with Meals-on-Wheels and other food assistance programs.

You may have more talents than you realize!

DIALOGUE 1: TRACK 40

— :

LIA: Alan! Where are you rushing off to?

ALAN: Yikes! It's almost lunch time! I'm running behind!

LIA: Haha. You must really be hungry. I don't remember you ever running around like a crazy person just to go to lunch! Are you meeting some friends?

ALAN: Well, see, that's the thing. I'm not eating lunch. I'm serving lunch this afternoon.

LIA: Alan! I didn't know you got a job as a waiter! What restaurant are you working at? I'm going tonight, just to watch you balancing trays!

ALAN: No, no, no! I'm not working as a waiter, Lia. I'm serving lunch at the soup kitchen this afternoon, and later I'm working at the food pantry. I decided I wanted to do something to help people in the community, and a friend told me the Gilmore Street Food Pantry needed some help. I help out there twice a week.

LIA: Alan, what is the Gilmore Street Food Pantry?

ALAN: It's a great organization. They run a soup kitchen at the homeless shelter, and twice a week the food pantry is open on Gilmore Street for families in need. I feel lucky that my family has enough food to eat, so it's an honor to help people who need some help while they're getting back on their feet. And talking to them helps me with my English. Maybe they're the ones who are doing the good deed.

If you're not an expert in something, but you'd still like to help, don't worry. Volunteer organizations will train you so you'll know exactly what to do.

Sometimes a volunteer job can lead to a real (paying!) job.

Volunteering helps others, but organizations also need paid workers to help run everything. If you're really good at what you do, you may be offered a job in the organization.

VOCABULARY

- assets: advantages
- balancing: holding something steady, so it won't fall
- boost one's morale: make someone feel better about things
- care center: a place where people's needs (usually health) are met
- carpentry: making beautiful things out of wood (or fixing them)
- demonstrate: show
- field: the industry or career you work in
- food pantry: a place that keeps food items on hand for families that need groceries but can't pay for them
- get involved: become a part of something
- ① getting back on one's feet: trying to take care of one's own needs without help
- ① giving back: helping someone else, because you're thankful for what you have
- ① go-between: someone who works to help two groups understand each other and work together
- good deed: something kind that you do for someone
- ① helping out: doing something to make things easier for someone
- homebound shut-ins: people who are sick and not able to leave their homes
- homeless shelter: a place where people with no homes can sleep
- honor: a privilege
- knit: make something by weaving yarn or thread (sweaters and scarves are knit)

- landscaping: arranging plants outside
- limitless: no end
- Meals-on-Wheels: a program that helps deliver food to people who need it
- nursing home: a place for older people who need extra care and help
- organization: a group that has a special purpose
- ① running around: busy doing many things in a short time
- ① running behind: late
- ① rushing off: hurrying away
- skill: ability to do something well
- soup kitchen: a place that serves free meals to needy people
- star: a famous leader in an industry
- ① stay connected: keep learning about your interest
- talent: a special ability
- tray: large flat board or plate for holding things (like plates and glasses in a restaurant)
- tutor: a special teacher for one person or a small group
- twice: two times
- volunteerism: the act of helping someone without expecting any pay or benefit

Fun Fact!

We're not sure this is true, but some volunteers we've spoken to say they've lost ten pounds since starting their volunteer jobs. If that's true, sign us up!

GRAMMAR REMINDER: Even More Present Continuous Tense

The present continuous tense (form of to be + -ing form of the verb) works very hard! Many people use the present continuous tense to talk about something that will happen in the near future.

Take a look at these examples from the dialogue (see if you can find any more).

Are you meeting some friends?

I'm not eating lunch.

I'm serving lunch this afternoon.

I'm working at the food pantry.

Good Citizen? Good Neighbor!

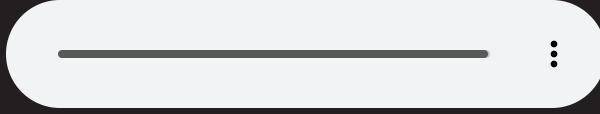

Helping out in the community is a great way to show respect for the people you live with, and volunteering is a wonderful way to be a good citizen. Of course, becoming an actual citizen of the country is a legal process. However, you don't have to be an actual citizen to be a good citizen. Being a good neighbor, friend, co-worker (you get the idea) is what U.S. citizenship is all about.

Perhaps the most sacred document to all U.S. citizens is the U.S. Constitution. This is the statement of all the rights and basic freedoms that every person is entitled to. It says, for example, that people have the right to free speech. But being a good American means using this right for good purposes and in the service of helping others. A good citizen will express his opinion on important issues, but he will also respect the opinions of others—even if those opinions are different from his. In fact, this may be the most important part of living in this country: using the rights and privileges that are ours as citizens to help all of the society we live in. Loving the country; respecting its laws; being part of the family, neighborhood, town—all of these show respect for the country that protects these rights for us.

Enjoying our rights as citizens is something that people should never take for granted. Because they were hard-won, and because there are so many who would be honored to have these rights, it's important that people pay their dues. Although we may be firm in what we believe, it's a citizen's duty to allow neighbors to keep their beliefs as well. Respecting people, respecting laws, and acknowledging responsibility and duty all come with the territory.

U.S. citizens should do all that their country asks of them. Becoming part of the process helps keep it strong. Citizens should vote, to express those opinions that they are free to have. We need to do our part to protect the environment. And while everyone likes to complain about them, paying taxes is what makes so many of our programs work. Even something as simple as jury duty is an important way to be a good member of the community. Rights and privileges are part of what makes this such a great country; people taking responsibility is what helps keep it strong.

DIALOGUE 2: TRACK 41

LIA: Oh, no, I can't believe this. I just got a notice that I'm being called for jury duty.

ALAN: Wait a minute! Why "oh, no"? Don't you like the American jury system?

LIA: Oh, of course, I like the jury system. It's just such a pain in the neck. Now I have to take time off from work, I have to figure out how to get there, and I have to wait around until they call me in. Then if I get picked for a jury, who knows how long I'll have to spend in court? I don't have time for this! Why can't they just ask someone who has nothing better to do?

ALAN: Okay, it does take a commitment of time. But, Lia, what if someone you care about was on trial? Wouldn't you want them to have the best people possible serving on the jury?

LIA: I know, I know. You're right. I guess the best part about the court system is that someone can have her case heard by a jury of her peers. It just seems like there's never enough time to do everything.

ALAN: I know. Everyone wants to have the privileges and advantages of something, as long as he doesn't have to make any effort. If everyone stepped up to the plate and did his part, it would be a much fairer system for everyone. Even the people with "important" jobs need to make a contribution to society and be good citizens.

LIA: You're right. If I want to take advantage of all the good things that I have in this country, I should at least take my turn at sharing some of the responsibility. That's it. I'm calling them this afternoon and I'm telling them I'll be happy to do my jury duty.

ALAN: Great! Now let's go get lunch.

One very important right enjoyed by a citizen in our democracy is the right to have a jury decide his guilt or innocence. Sometimes a person may ask to have the judge make the final decision instead; then there will be no jury at the trial.

VOCABULARY

- acknowledging: recognizing
- burst: pop, break
- ① comes with the territory: is expected
- contribution: do something helpful to make a difference
- document: an official paper
- entitled to: have the right to something

- firm: strong
- free speech: the right of people to say whatever they want
- ① get picked: be selected for something
- ① get the hang of: be able to do something easily; understand something
- hard-won: achieved after much sacrifice by oneself or others
- jury: the group of people who hear all the arguments in a court case; they make the decision about who is right and wrong
- jury duty: serving in the court system as a member of the jury
- legal process: steps to make something happen as required by law
- notice: an official letter informing you of something
- on trial: in court to decide whether something is right or wrong
- ① pain in the neck: an annoyance; an inconvenience
- ① pay one's dues: work hard to deserve something
- peers: people just like you
- privileges: a special benefit
- sacred: very important and deserving respect
- serving on a jury: being part of the court system as a jury member
- ① stepped up to the plate: accepted responsibility for something and act
- take advantage of: use and enjoy
- take for granted: accept something as what you deserve without valuing it
- trial: a court proceeding to decide if someone is guilty or innocent of a crime
- U.S. Constitution: the highest law of the United States and the basis of the entire government

PRONUNCIATION POINTER

—

:

For speakers of some languages, the letters B and V can be very difficult to get the hang of. The letter B requires that the lips touch. For the letter V, the top front teeth should touch the bottom lip. Try these tongue twisters for practice. Good luck!

V* and B Tongue Twisters

Betty bought a biscuit, but the baby bit it.

On her vacation, Vera drove a van to visit Uncle Vanya in his village.

Bobby bought a big balloon in Baltimore, but it burst.

Vinny volunteered to vacuum for Violet while she voted.

MORE FUN WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS: Run/Running

- running behind: late
Her alarm clock didn't wake her on time, so she was running behind.
- running the show: being in charge
He spent so much time working at the food pantry that he was soon running the show when the leader became sick.
- running scared: being worried that you'll lose at something
After they lost two games to the Colorado Rockies, the Philadelphia Phillies were running scared in the baseball series.
- run it by me again: repeat something I didn't hear what the speaker said about my car. Can you run it by me again?
- running around in circles: seeming to be doing a lot of activity, but not getting anything accomplished
Instead of concentrating on one job at a time, she tried to do everything at once and was just running around in circles.

Review: Units 13–15

VOCABULARY

Fill in the missing letters to make the words needed in the sentences below.

1. I don't need a new car. My old one is very r_l_____ and never breaks down.
2. Hey, Toby, I've got some GREAT _ss__ for you. Julie in the office is getting married to Bob!
NO! I thought she hated him!
3. Hey, Chris, I'm spending a lot of time on my new __bb_. Bungee jumping?
No! Stamp collecting. It's really relaxing.
4. Aaack! I drove too fast over a p_t_____ in the road, and now I've got a flat tire.
5. My dog just had a __tt__ of eight puppies!
6. My husband is a really good golfer.
Is he a professional?
No, he's just an a__t_u_. But he's almost as good as a professional.
7. The worst thing about being famous is being followed everywhere by p_____zz_ trying to get photos of you on a bad hair day.
8. I hate to be outside in the summer time. I get eaten alive by the _u_s.
9. Be careful with that glass vase. It's very old and f__g___.
10. Do you like my sweater? I've been learning to k_____, and I made it myself.

Answer Key

INFORMAL LANGUAGE

Can you explain these expressions? Try using them in a sentence.

11. scope out
12. give someone a hand
13. grab a quick bite
14. keep an eye on
15. pricey
16. catch up
17. treat to
18. dying to
19. Plan B
20. running behind

Answer Key

GRAMMAR

Choose the correct preposition of place from above the map to complete the sentences below.

near between on in

in

Post Office

Library

Café

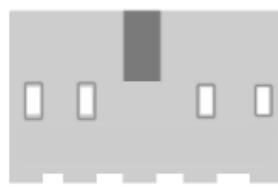

Town Hall

Holly Street

Movie Theater

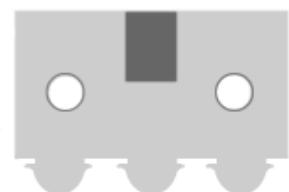

Mexican Restaurant

Chinese Restaurant

Italian Restaurant

22. There are a lot of restaurants _____ this neighborhood.
23. The town hall is _____ this block.
24. The Mexican restaurant is _____ the middle of the block.
25. The Chinese restaurant is _____ the movie theater.

Look at the following sentences.

- ✓ Put a check next to the sentences that are correct.
✗ Put an X next to the sentences that are incorrect. Can you highlight the error and explain why it's wrong?

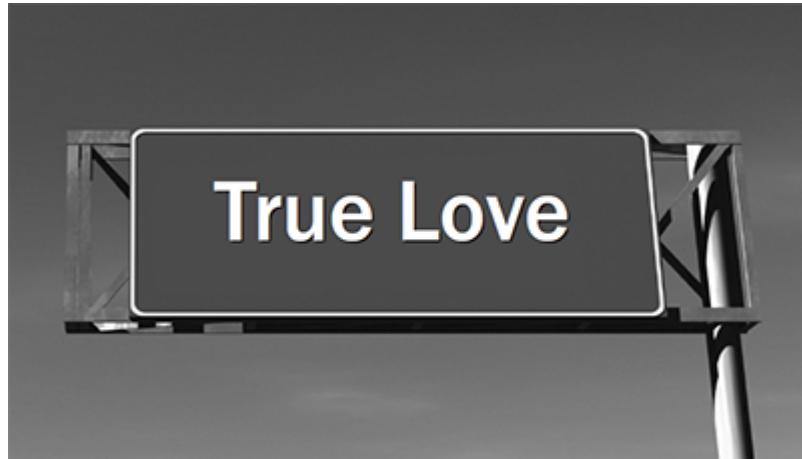

26. I'm not wanting fries with my burger. Could I have a side salad instead, please?
27. I meet some friends this afternoon.
28. We read a really good book at our book club this month.
29. You are meeting your friends this afternoon?
30. I'm not going shopping tonight; I'm too tired.

Answer Key

Unit

16

The Better Half

The Dating Game

— ::

So you're in a bar and someone catches your eye. Wow, she's the girl of your dreams! You begin chatting her up, and soon you realize you're crazy about her. You want to get together the next evening and go out on a date. No, no, no! We're not talking about the fruit kind of date, or the what-day-is-it kind of date. We're talking about the romantic kind of date. How do you ask her? Where do you go? Well, don't ask us. It seems like hundreds of years since we've been on a date, and we've completely forgotten what to do. A date for us is a trip to the local supermarket. But our sources tell us there are many options to suit any pocketbook. How about cocktails at the local bar? Make sure you both have ID; you will probably be carded. How about a romantic stroll in the park? And, just to be on the safe side, make sure you know whom you are going with.

What if you never seem to meet anyone? These days, many people try dating services on the Internet to find Mr. or Ms. Right. Watch out for those blind dates, though. That 20-year-old stunner whose picture you saw may turn out to look more like your great-grandmother . . . or worse! Some people prefer to go on a double date at first until they feel more comfortable. Watch out at night; cougars could be prowling the streets! No, we're not talking about a big cat that has escaped from the zoo. Cougars are older women looking for younger men to date. (We think men must have come up with that comparison, haha.) And for you ladies, sugar daddies are not giant candy bars. These are older men looking for younger women to date. Be careful that you don't turn out to be some guy's trophy wife. Some rich old men just like the idea of going to events and parties with arm candy.

For kids in high school, one of the most important and exciting dates is prom night. This is a special evening with a very fancy dance that has music and food. If you're a parent, you'd better start saving. This can be an expensive time, with kids going all out to make it a perfect night. Girls spend lots of money on a special dress, a fancy hairstyle, and lots of makeup, and yes, some parents even rent a limo for the night. Here's the funny thing about prom night: however carefully you choose a dress and do your hair, you can be sure that in 30 years you'll cringe when you look at the pictures of yourself—and probably your date, too!

DIALOGUE 1: TRACK 42

— :

ALAN: Hi, Lia. What's up?

LIA: Oh, nothing much. Just trying to get ready for midterm exams.

ALAN: Mmm. Me, too. I'm feeling a little stressed.

LIA: Yes! I can't wait 'til they're over; then I can let my hair down a bit.

ALAN: Well, I could really use a break right now. Do you feel like catching a movie tonight? Crazy Weekend with the Zombies is playing at the multiplex.

LIA: Hey, that's a great idea! I'm dying to see that. I hear it's hilarious. Why don't we grab something to eat beforehand? I'm sick of dorm food.

ALAN: Sure. How about if I pick you up at about 7? The movie starts at 8:30, and we can grab a quick bite before we go.

LIA: Sounds great! See you at 7.

TIP 1 → Don't forget: you must be 21 to buy alcohol in the United States. Most places will card you. In some states, you can buy alcohol only in a liquor store. In others, you can buy beer and wine in a supermarket.

TIP 2 → Smoking is not allowed in most public places. Most smokers can be seen roasting in the summer and freezing in the winter as they stand outside a building for their smoke. Take our advice: it's much easier (and healthier) to quit (or never take it up in the first place)!

VOCABULARY

- ⑩ arm candy: someone very attractive that you bring on a date to get attention
 - bar: a place for socializing that serves alcoholic beverages
- ⑩ better half: a fun term that refers to your partner in a serious relationship, or your spouse
 - blind dates: when you go out with someone before you've met him or her
- ⑩ break: a short time away from some stressful work
- ⑩ carded: asked to show identification that proves you are old enough to order alcohol
- ⑩ catching a movie: going to a movie (can also be used in other contexts, such as, catching a baseball game, catching a show)
- ⑩ catches your eye: is attractive to you; gets your attention
- ⑩ chatting someone up: having a casual conversation
 - cocktails: special alcoholic drinks with several ingredients
- ⑩ cougars: older women looking for young men to date
 - cougars (also called mountain lions or pumas): large wild cats, formerly found in many places in the United States but now rarely seen
 - cringe: be shocked or embarrassed at something
 - date: Four meanings here! (1) a fruit from the date palm tree; (2) a day on the calendar, like Monday, August 6; (3) a romantic event, time spent with someone special; (4) the person you go on a date with (So date can be the event and the person! Confused? That's English for you!)
 - dating services: groups (usually online) where you can sign up and look for people with similar interests
- ⑩ dorm: short for dormitory; the place where students live at a school or college
 - dorm food: the kind of food served in schools
 - double date: four people (two couples) going to the same place together
- ⑩ get together: meet with someone

- ⑩ going all out: spending lots of time and energy to make something perfect
- ⑩ go out: meet and spend time with someone
 - hilarious: very funny
- ⑩ just to be on the safe side: being cautious with someone or something new
- ⑩ let one's hair down: relax
 - limo: a very large, very fancy car that holds many people (or one rich movie star!)
- ⑩ Mr. or Ms. Right: the perfect person for you!
 - multiplex: a movie theater that shows many different movies
 - prom night: the most exciting social event for kids in high school
 - prowling: searching for something; moving quietly like a cat
 - romantic: about love
- ⑩ sick of: tired of
 - sources: people who give you information
 - stroll: a slow, enjoyable walk
- ⑩ stunner: someone who is very beautiful
- ⑩ sugar daddy: an older man who buys lots of presents for a younger woman he wants to date
- ⑩ trophy wife: a young beautiful woman who marries a much older, very successful (usually rich!) man

PRONUNCIATION POINTER

:

Adding an e to the end of a word makes the a vowel sound long: date = dayt.

Say these pairs of words and notice how the e at the end makes the a sound longer:

Hat–hate:

hat

hayt

Rat–rate:

rat

rayt

Mat–mate:

mat

mayt

Will You Marry Me?

:

After you've been going out for a while, you may realize you only have eyes for that special person. Yes, you have fallen for her big time and decide that you want to get hitched. First of all, you need to pop the question. Some people think it seems old-fashioned now, but it's still usually the custom for the man to propose to the woman. And what is the question? It's always, "Will you marry me?" Some guys get very creative and post the question on highway billboards. Some plan to do it at a sports event. But the really traditional marriage proposal is done on bended knee, after asking the woman's father for permission. If the woman says, "Yes, I will marry you!" you're engaged! She is your fiancée, and you are the fiancé. (We've taken these words from French. Don't ask us why, but it does sound romantic.)

Now you get to prepare for the big day when you will finally tie the knot and say, "I do." It's just about the best time of your life—and also the most stressful! Trying to have your dream wedding, keep all the in-laws happy, and stay within a budget can be a real chore. Things become even more interesting if you come from a family where parents have remarried. Now there are stepparents as well. Some people have a wedding planner to help them with the details. The great part about that is that the wedding planner gets to have the headaches! The planner does the grunt work, while the happy couple enjoys thinking about exchanging vows. Well, they think about the vows . . . and about how they're going to pay the wedding planner!

A very popular custom with couples today is to set up a bridal registry. The bride-to-be registers with a store, and the couple decides what things they'd like in their new home. The best part? The bride and groom pick out all the cool stuff, but they don't have to spend a penny! They make a list of things they'd really like to have; friends and family check the list and decide what they'd like to buy as a gift. It sure beats running the risk of getting four toasters! Remember to include items in a range of prices. Some people may like to chip in together and get a more expensive gift. Other people may want to go solo and get something smaller.

Friends of the bride and groom often have bachelor or bachelorette parties to celebrate. This is the last chance to party with your friends as a single person. Don't overdo it and feel sick on your wedding day. Or worse: don't run off and elope with someone else!

Finally, the big day arrives, and it's all you ever dreamed it would be. The bride looks beautiful, the groom is handsome, and the guests are all well behaved. A success! Now, it's off to the honeymoon to de-stress from it all. Whew, what a whirlwind! Now all you have to do is remember the anniversary, or you'll be in big trouble!

Fun Fact!

A bachelor party is called a stag party. We don't care what they're called: they're the parties when you kiss your single days good-bye!

DIALOGUE 2: TRACK 43

LIA: It's my wedding anniversary tonight.

JAE: Oh, congratulations!

LIA: Yeah, gosh, it takes me back to when Tony first asked me to marry him. He had it all planned out so carefully.

JAE: Uh-oh. Sounds like there is a romantic story here.

LIA: It's quite a story, all right. He was working in New York, and I was still living in England, so I flew to New York City to spend a long weekend with him. We went to the top of the Empire State Building . . .

JAE: . . . and he asked you to marry him? With the stars twinkling in the night sky? There, at the top of the building, with the beautiful skyline of New York City right below you?! How romantic!

LIA: Um, well, uh, not quite. Yes, in his original plan he was going to ask me there. But . . .

JAE: But . . . ?

LIA: Well, we had some friends with us, and Tony told his bff about the romantic Empire State Building proposal plan. His friend begged him not to propose to me there!

JAE: Are you kidding? Why not?

LIA: Tony's friend was with his girlfriend, too. He was worried that if Tony asked me to marry him, then his girlfriend would expect a proposal, too!

JAE: HAhahaha! So then what happened?

LIA: Well, then Tony went to Plan B. He was going to take me out for a romantic meal at one of those Japanese restaurants where they prepare the food at the table. He was going to ask the guy to put my ring in the food.

JAE: Hahaha! This is too funny! Okay, so why didn't that happen?

LIA: I was so jet-lagged I didn't want to go out for dinner.

JAE: Just as well. You'd probably have eaten the ring. I can see you choking on your engagement ring. Help! Call 911! I've eaten an engagement ring!

LIA: Oh, very funny. Anyway, we ended up going out to a bagel place.

JAE: OH NO! Don't tell me he stuck the ring in the cream cheese, and then you couldn't find it!

LIA: Oh, just stop it. It may have been a little bagel place, but it could have been the fanciest, most elegant candlelit restaurant. He offered me the most beautiful ring and asked, "Will you be my wife?"

JAE: Did he get down on one knee? I hope he didn't slip on the cream cheese.

LIA: STOP IT! No, it wasn't on bended knee, but it was very romantic anyway. I'll never forget it. Okay, so how about you? What's your romantic proposal story?

JAE: You want a romantic story? Oh, I have a perfect romantic story.

LIA: Okay, I'm all ears.

JAE: Well, we were sitting next to a peaceful lake at sunset on a perfect summer day. The sky was ablaze with beautiful reds and orange, and some ducks went swimming by. Suddenly, on the dock below, a group of violins began to play. Jim got down on one knee and said, "You are the most wonderful thing in my life. Will you marry me and be my princess?"

LIA: That is so perfect! It's almost like a fairy tale!

JAE: Ha, ha. I know. It is like a fairy tale! And, as you know, fairy tales are make-believe. You wanted a romantic story, that's what you got—a story! Okay, so it's not true, but the real story is pretty funny. I'll save it for when we have a lot more time.

TIP 3 → Don't forget to RSVP to an invitation! The bride needs to know exactly how many people to plan for at the reception, so it's important to reply and let her know if you'll be coming.

The invitation will usually say exactly who is invited. If the bride would like you to bring your boyfriend, the invitation will say "Miss Smith and guest."

VOCABULARY

- ablaze: on fire, or seeming so
- ① all ears: be listening very carefully
- anniversary: the date each year marking the wedding date (Your wife wants flowers!)
- bachelor: an unmarried man
- bachelorette: an unmarried woman
- bagel: a small, firm, circular bread (especially popular for breakfast in New York City)
- ① beats: is better than
- begged: asked in a very strong way
- bended knee: getting down on one knee; usually this means the person is asking for something
- ① bff: best friend forever (Find this and other fun text shortcuts in Unit 19.)
- ① the big day: a well-planned, exciting day
- ① big time: enthusiastically
- billboard: large advertisement signs near a highway
- bridal registry: a list of items the couple needs to start a home
- bride: the woman on her wedding day
- budget: a money plan
- ① chip in together: put money together to get a nice gift

- choking: getting something caught in your throat so that you're unable to breathe
- ① de-stress: relax
- elope: get married in secret
- engaged: promised to marry
- engagement ring: a traditional gift from a man to a woman when he asks to marry her (In the United States, this is often a diamond ring.)
- exchanging vows: making promises to each other at the wedding
- fairy tale: a children's story about beautiful people and happy endings
- ① fallen for: be in love with someone you've met
- fiancé: the man who will be married
- fiancée: the woman who will be married
- ① get hitched: get married
- ① go solo: do something alone
- groom: the man on his wedding day
- ① grunt work: the hard work that no one wants to do
- hen: a female chicken
- honeymoon: a special vacation right after the wedding ceremony
- “I do”: the promise husbands and wives make to be faithful and good spouses
- in-laws: your spouse's family
- jet-lagged: the feeling of being tired after a long flight from another time zone
- ① make-believe: pretend; not real
- old-fashioned: traditional; not modern
- ① only have eyes for someone: be so in love that you can't think about anyone else
- ① original plan: what you decide to do in the beginning (before going to Plan B!)
- overdo: do something too much

- ① pop the question: ask someone to marry you
- propose: ask someone to marry you
- range: from one spot on a list to the opposite
- reception: a special party held after a wedding ceremony; also a party for other important events
- reply: respond; answer
- RSVP: thanks once again to the French! This means: Répondez, S'il Vous Plait (please reply)
- running the risk: making a bad result possible
- skyline: the view of a city's buildings from a distance
- slip: fall on something wet or oily
- ① stag: an animal with large antlers; a social gathering for men only
- stepparents: people who have married your biological parent
- ① takes me back: reminds me of the past
- ① tie the knot: get married
- twinkling: sparkling; lights blinking on and off
- wedding planner: someone whose job is to figure out all the details of the wedding
- whirlwind: a very fast, exciting time

Fun Fact!

Traditionally, an American bride wears “something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue.” Another tradition: a penny in the bride’s shoe means good luck!

MORE FUN WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS: Love

- a match made in heaven: a perfect relationship

Tony and Jane's marriage was a match made in heaven. They were perfect for each other.

- the love of one's life: the one person you'll love forever
Peggy and Russ celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary; they both said, "You're still the love of my life!"
- head over heels: absolutely and completely in love
Tina is head over heels in love with Jorge; she can't stop talking about him.
- love at first sight: falling in love with someone the very first time you see them
I knew Tom was the man I'd marry. It was love at first sight when we met in college.
- on the rocks: when a relationship starts to have problems
I think our neighbors' marriage is on the rocks. All I do is hear them fighting.
- kiss something good-bye: have no chance of getting or doing something; to know that something is over or gone forever
Russ was ready to kiss his bachelor days good-bye when he popped the question to Peggy.

It's Over!

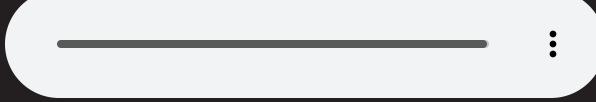

Ah, it was a beautiful relationship while it lasted. But not every couple is lucky enough to enjoy wedded bliss forever. Sometimes the problems that come up are too difficult to solve, and divorce seems like the only answer. So, after trying to work things out with your spouse, you've decided that you're at the end of your rope. It's not only that the two of you have grown apart, it's that you just can't put up with those smelly feet any longer! You've given it your best shot, but you can't stand the sight of those dirty socks all over the bedroom floor any longer. Or maybe it's something more serious. Maybe you've learned that your partner has been cheating on you and having an affair. After talking through all your options, you decide that the only solution is to split up. This is usually a sad decision, and many times couples will decide to give it a second chance and get back together. If the problems remain, and the couple just can't work things out, it may be the end of the road and, sadly (or happily?), time to say good-bye and get a divorce.

DIALOGUE 3: TRACK 44

LIA: Hey, what's the matter? You look down.

JAE: Yeah, I guess I am. I just broke up with Joseph.

LIA: You and Joseph have broken up? Oh, no! What happened? I thought things were going really well.

JAE: Yes and no. He is such a nice guy in a lot of ways, but things just started getting really boring, you know. He stopped doing all the nice stuff like buying me flowers and saying nice things. He only wants to sit on the couch and watch TV, and I want to do fun things with friends.

LIA: I know what you mean; Tony is the same. I'd just like him to be a little more . . . well, romantic or something.

JAE: Yeah, but it's not only that. We've just gone in different directions. He isn't interested at all in any of the things I like to do. I just feel he has really let me down. I just can't count on him anymore.

LIA: Wow, I'm so sorry to hear that. I hope you get over the breakup soon. But after all, maybe there's still a chance that you two can work things out and make up. Maybe you should put off the separation.

JAE: Well, we've been trying for a long time, so I think this is the end of the road for us. But thanks anyway.

Before a couple decides to separate or divorce, they will often try counseling. A professional counselor who helps couples resolve their differences is called a marriage therapist or family therapist.

VOCABULARY

- ① break up (verb): end a relationship
 - breakup (noun): the situation when two people end a relationship
- ① can't stand the sight of: hate something
- ① cheating on: being unfaithful to a husband or wife
 - counseling: talking with a professional about how to solve problems
- ① count on: depend on; rely on
 - divorce: a legal ruling that a marriage is officially over
- ① end of the road: the last part of an experience
- ① end of your rope: not having any more patience in a bad situation
- ① get back together: reunite after a separation
- ① get over: no longer be upset by a bad situation
- ① give it your best shot: try your hardest at something
- ① go in different directions: follow different interests; grow apart
- ① grow apart: no longer like the same things
 - having an affair: cheating on a husband or wife, usually with the same person and for a long time
- ① let someone down: disappoint someone
- ① look down: seem sad or unhappy
- ① make up: forgive and be friends again

- ① put off: postpone
- ① put up with: have patience; ignore something annoying
- second chance: another try to make things work
- separation: a time before a divorce when a couple isn't living together
- ① split up: separate; no longer be together
- spouse: the person someone is married to
- therapist: a professional who helps with problems
- ① wedded bliss: a fun way to talk about marriage as perfect happiness
- ① work things out: try to solve problems

GRAMMAR REMINDER 1: Phrasal Verbs

Phrasal verbs are really common in informal English. They are verbs and particles (could be a preposition or adverb) that work together to change the meaning of the verb. It sounds more complicated than it is, and there aren't many English speakers who can tell you what a particle is anyway! Just know that they're words that work together to make one meaning.

- Some phrasal verbs are pretty easy to understand because they mean exactly what they say (literal):
go out (which is, of course, going out of the house somewhere) We go out to the movies every Friday night.
- Others are trickier because there is no way you can figure out what they mean just by knowing all the words:
make up
In a good relationship, it's important to make up after a disagreement.

This is not to be confused with the noun makeup (one word), which means cosmetics. Isn't English fun??!

- Some phrasal verbs are separable, which means you can separate the verb from the particle:
let down

*Tom is never around to help when I need him.
He lets me down all the time.*

- Some phrasal verbs are inseparable, which means you can't separate the verb and particle.

go out

*We go out together every weekend.
Never say, We go together out.*

- Some phrasal verbs are transitive, which means they need a direct object.

put off

*You should put off the separation.
Never say, You should put off. You must put off something!*

- Some phrasal verbs are intransitive, which means no direct object is necessary.

make up

*Maybe you two will make up.
Nothing else is needed.*

Okay, so how do you figure all this out? (Figure out is another phrasal verb!) Okay, we admit it's tricky.

- Try to learn phrasal verbs in context as you hear them.
The more you practice, the easier they become. We promise! If all else fails, look them up in a dictionary.

Ha! Did you spot it? Look up, used in this way, is a nonliteral, separable, transitive phrasal verb! We bet you already knew that . . .

GRAMMAR REMINDER 2: Suggestions and Proposals

There are lots of ways to make suggestions and proposals. Watch the verb form that you need to use with each one.

Informal

- Verb + -ing:
Do you feel like going out?
How about going out?
- Base form of the verb:
Let's go out.
Why don't we go out?

More formal

Will you marry me?
Would you be my wife?
Will you be my princess? (Ha, ha.
Good luck with that one.)

PRONUNCIATION POINTER

:

The letter o can have different sounds. It all depends on what other letters come before and after it.

- oh, as in the word toe
- oo, as in the word two
- ow, as in the word now
- uh, as in the word love

Don't you love a vowel that can do all that?!

Unit

17

That's Life!

And Baby Makes Three

:

Yes, if you're doing the math, it very often turns out that, in relationships, one plus one equals three. What could be better: a new country, a new relationship, a new job, a new home, and now a new baby! Starting a family can be an exciting (and nerve-racking!) experience. It's also lots of fun. Okay, maybe the mom-to-be isn't having so much fun when she has morning sickness each day.

For many women, one of the most exciting times in life is when they learn that they are pregnant. Suddenly, there are plenty of things to think about. Prenatal care is really important. In the first place, a doctor will calculate the baby's due date pretty accurately. It's fun to wonder if the new arrival will come on Halloween or Christmas Day. Mom must be sure she stays healthy and makes healthy choices. After all, now she's eating for two. Expectant mothers have tons of questions, and the best person to give the answers is her OB/GYN. This doctor is usually just called an OB or obstetrician. The obstetrician will recommend avoiding all alcohol. If the mom-to-be is a smoker, the doctor will definitely recommend quitting. The doctor can also answer questions about what foods are best to eat, what medicines are safe to take, what vitamins are good to take, and how much exercise is okay. Some moms even have questions about how safe it is to be around the family pet! Good prenatal care makes sure that the baby will have the best, healthiest start to life.

Women in the United States have many choices about the type of childbirth they want. Although in the past women relied on doctors (usually men!) to make all the decisions about their childbirth, women today are far more vocal about how they want their baby to be born. And doctors (often women!) are happy to support a woman's choice. There are deliveries that involve medical procedures performed by a doctor and drugs to ease the process, and others that are called natural deliveries because they have less involvement of a doctor and fewer drugs.

Sometimes, in a vaginal birth, the mother may choose certain drugs to ease the pain. Not all women wish to have these drugs, however. Some choose vaginal delivery with no drugs at all. (Of course, they may change their minds once the labor pains start!) A popular approach to childbirth is the Lamaze method, which emphasizes special ways of breathing and ways to focus on special thoughts in order to manage the pain.

Some women don't like the idea of a medical delivery at all. They may choose to have the baby at home or in a special birthing center that is made to look like a comfortable home rather than a medical center. In these cases, the birth is often managed by a midwife. A midwife is not a doctor but a licensed caregiver who has had training in the birth process. A midwife can guide a normal delivery, but some state laws may require her to be in a hospital or special birthing center. If there is an emergency, everyone wants mom and baby to have immediate medical care from a doctor.

Everyone hopes a delivery will go smoothly. But sometimes emergencies happen, and a doctor may have to help in the process. Sometimes a forceps delivery may be necessary for a difficult birth. And in a real emergency, a doctor may have to perform a Caesarean section. This is a surgical procedure, commonly called a C-section, in which the baby is delivered through an incision in the mother's abdomen. Because it's surgery, the new mother must recover in the hospital for a few days.

Are you wondering where Dad is in all this? In the old days, Dad would be out in a waiting area, nervously pacing back and forth, just waiting to hear if his baby has been born. Not anymore! Nowadays, Dad is a very hands-on assistant in the whole process. Of course, Mom has the real job, but Dad will help out by trying to keep her comfortable through all the stages of labor. Most of the time, Dad will be in the delivery room, and he'll hold his new baby as soon as it's born.

Sure. Mom does all the work, and Dad has all the fun.

DIALOGUE 1: TRACK 45

JAE: Lia, I'm so excited about your happy news! When are you due?

LIA: I know, I know! Can you believe it? I'm going to be a mom again! The OB says our little darling should arrive on December 8. And she says it could be twins!

JAE: What!? Twins? Do twins run in the family?

LIA: Yes, my husband is a twin and so is his mother!

JAE: Wow, when will you know for sure?

LIA: Well, the doctor's going to do an ultrasound at my next visit. We'll know for sure then. We'll also know if it's a little Johnny or Janie—but I'm not sure I want to know.

JAE: Really? You don't want to know? But if you know it's a boy or girl, you'll be able to shop for little girl things or decorate for a little boy. It would be so convenient to know the baby's gender in advance.

LIA: I know, I know. But I just love the idea of being surprised.

JAE: Well, as long as it's healthy, I guess it doesn't matter if you know in advance if it's a boy or girl.

LIA: Exactly! So now I will definitely start eating right. I'm going to be the perfect mom-to-be. No more fast food drive-thrus for me. Good-bye, French fries!

JAE: Ha, perfect! I'll get you a nice spinach salad right now—with a side of broccoli!

Most couples plan ahead for the trip to the hospital. (When a woman goes into labor, she does not want to stop to pack!) Pack a suitcase with things you'll need, and be sure to bring an address book, so you can call everyone with the news once the baby is born. And don't forget the camera!

TIP 2 → Make sure you know the best way to the hospital! It's a good idea to drive it once or twice before the big day. You don't want to wait until the contractions start to try out that new GPS!

VOCABULARY

- accurately: correctly
- avoiding: staying away from

- birthing center: a special place for giving birth instead of a hospital
- Caesarean section: a medical operation to deliver a baby when it cannot be delivered normally
- calculate: figure out
- contractions: pains that begin the birth process
- convenient: easy and comfortable
- definitely: for sure
- delivery: birth
- delivery room: the room in the hospital where childbirth happens
- due date: the day a baby is expected to be born
- ① eating for two: eating and knowing that the growing baby inside is getting nutrition, too
- expectant mothers: pregnant women (expecting a baby)
- forceps: a special tool to help deliver a baby when it is not moving down the birth canal as it should
- gender: sex, male or female
- ① go smoothly: happen with no problems
- ① hands-on: helping in all the details
- incision: a medical cut in the body
- labor: the process of giving birth
- Lamaze method: a technique to avoid drugs for pain in childbirth
- midwife: a specially trained person who assists in childbirth, but who is not a doctor
- ① mom-to-be: a pregnant woman
- morning sickness: feelings of nausea and sickness in the early months of pregnancy
- nerve-racking (can also be spelled nerve-wracking): very stressful
- ① new arrival: the new baby!
- ① nowadays: currently; in the present

- OB/GYN: short for obstetrician/gynecologist; a doctor who takes care of childbirth and women's reproductive issues
- ① the old days: the past
- pacing back and forth: walking in measured steps across a room and back
- pack: put things you'll need into a bag or suitcase
- pregnant: carrying a baby inside one's body
- prenatal: before birth
- recommend: advise
- recover: get better; heal
- relied on: depended on
- ① run in the family: be something common in a family
- stages of labor: the progression of the birth process
- starting a family: deciding to have a baby
- surgery: a medical operation
- ① turns out: happens as a result of something
- twins: two babies born at the same time
- ultrasound: a special test with sound waves that can check on the baby
- vaginal birth: birth through the birth canal of the woman's body
- visit: another word for a doctor's appointment
- vocal: verbal; comfortable about expressing an opinion

PRONUNCIATION POINTER

—

:

- Obstetrician can be a tricky word to say. That explains why so many people just say “OB.” But it’s really not that hard. It sounds like OB-stuh-trish-in. Go on. Say it three times fast!

- Caesarean Section is another scary-looking, hard-to-spell pregnancy word. This is why so many people just say, “C-section.” Although many people spell it incorrectly, the pronunciation is pretty easy: siss-AIR-ee-in SECK-shin.

TWINS come in twos, and so do our TWIN FUN FACTS!

Fun Fact 1!

Nigeria is famous for having lots of twins. No one is sure why there are so many twins in that country, but some people think it's because the people eat lots of yams. (Yams are similar to sweet potatoes.) Uh-oh. Yams are a favorite at Thanksgiving dinner. . . . Be careful! Haha!

Fun Fact 2!

We're not sure why, but there are lots of twin festivals. One of the most popular takes place each August in a town called, yes, Twinsburg, Ohio.

GRAMMAR REMINDER 1: Will and Going to

- Both will and going to take the base form of the main verb.
- Sometimes you can use either will or going to, but other times you need to be careful.
- Remember: You must use the verb to be before going to. See examples below, and note the use of contractions for the verb to be!
- Use will to express a future fact and when you decide to do something at the moment of speaking.
The obstetrician will recommend . . . (a fact) I'll (I will) get you a nice spinach salad right now . . . (I decided just now)
- Use going to when something definite has been decided for the future. It can also be used when you can see that something is definitely going to happen.

The doctor's going to do an ultrasound at my next visit. (already decided)

I'm going to be a mom again! (It's definite. Look at my large stomach!)

That Bundle of Joy

And you thought being pregnant was fun! Just wait until you bring home that little bundle of joy. Now the fun really starts. Infants can be very funny: imagine seeing your adorable little baby dribbling pureed spinach down his cute little chin! Haha!

No matter how much planning you do in advance, your life will change forever the moment you bring home your sweet little newborn. Suddenly, instead of wondering what shoes to buy at the mall, you're looking at cute, tiny baby socks for a layette. If you're lucky, some friends may have a baby shower for you. This is another time when some people set up a registry at a store so that friends will know exactly what items you need for the baby. And believe us, you'll need plenty of items! Be sure to include larger-size baby clothes on the list. Those tiny newborns grow really quickly.

Okay, let's think about this. You go into the hospital as a large mom-to-be. You come out of the hospital a little smaller, but with an entirely new person! This little person needs to be dressed when he or she leaves the hospital with you. You'll need blankets, diapers, onesies, socks, tee shirts, baby soap, a car seat—and that's just for the first day! Plus you'll probably need a diaper bag to tote all that stuff! The good news is that you may not have to worry about food.

One of the first decisions a new mother will make is how to feed her infant. Although there was a generation of babies in the United States that was bottle-fed, most people now believe that breast feeding is the healthiest choice for babies. The nutrition is perfect (after all, isn't that what human breasts are for?), and many doctors believe that breast milk contains elements that can keep the baby from getting sick. But for women who cannot, or who choose not to, breast-feed, there are many choices for infant formula on the market. These formulas try to be as similar to breast milk as possible so that babies will get the proper nutrients.

You may have chosen a pediatrician before giving birth. This is the doctor who will take care of the baby, usually until he becomes an older teenager. (Teenager already? Aaaack! He just arrived!) The pediatrician will answer all questions you may have about the best way to handle baby problems that may arise. One very common problem is colic. The baby may cry for several hours a day for no apparent reason. This may be because of stomach pain or fussiness.

Whatever the cause, a fussy baby can be very frustrating for new parents, so it's very important to take care of yourself. The more rested you are, the more patience you'll have when you're trying to soothe a crying baby. They may be cute, but babies are hard work, so you should avoid as much extra stress as you can. Does everyone want to visit so they can see the new baby? Plan certain times when this is convenient for you and when you have help. Are there dust bunnies under the bed? Just don't look at them! Don't worry about having a spotless house—a happy mom and baby are more important. (Of course, some very special friends may decide to get you a cleaning service. Wow! We want those friends!)

As the baby gets a little older, you'll need to be sure the house is baby-proofed. Once the little one starts crawling around, there should be nothing in his reach that can hurt him. Electrical outlets should be covered. Tables should be cleared of anything a baby can grab. Sharp corners should be protected. You can find plenty of tips on the Internet to help you prepare the house for your growing baby.

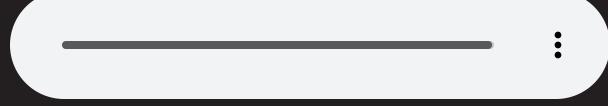

But the most important tip of all is this: Enjoy every minute you have with your baby! What everyone says is true: The baby years go by in a flash. When he's a teenager driving you crazy, you'll need all those photos and videos to remember the sweet baby days!

In the old days, new moms would carry their babies home from the hospital in their arms—even in the car. However, now every state in the country has laws requiring that babies be in a car seat every time they're in a car. There are different car seat types for each age and weight. Be sure to find the right one for a newborn.

(It may be Tip 4, but it's all about twos!) The Terrible Twos! Toddlers are so famous for tantrums and whining that they even have a name for it. Be sure you have a plan for staying calm when the little ones are not. Good luck!

DIALOGUE 2: TRACK 46

ALAN: Wow, is that really you, Lia? I haven't seen you in ages! How's the baby?

LIA: Ha! Yeah, Alan, I don't get out much these days. I had forgotten how much work a new baby is! In fact, when Tony came home from work tonight, I told him I just had to get out of the house for an hour or so. I've been cooped up since the baby was born. Besides, we're almost out of diapers—that would be a disaster!

ALAN: So you're here at the supermarket for a fun night out! Ha, ha, ha! That's so funny! Boy, times have changed. You didn't use to go grocery shopping for an exciting night out.

LIA: No kidding. It seems like just yesterday that we used to go to the movies and clubs to have fun. Now fun is going to buy diapers and pureed peas.

ALAN: Hahahahaha! That really is funny! Yeah, I guess what they say is true: Parenthood will change your life.

Fun and funny are very tricky words for English language learners. Something that you enjoy doing is fun. Reading our book is fun.

Something that makes you laugh (haha) is funny. Watching a baby dribble his pureed peas is funny (haha).

VOCABULARY

- adorable: very, very cute
- apparent: clear
- ① baby-proofed: made safe for a crawling baby
- baby shower: a party where friends give gifts that a new baby will need
- bottle-fed: fed milk or formula from a special baby bottle
- breast feeding: feeding the new baby breast milk from the mother
- ① bundle of joy: a new baby
- colic: upset for a baby that may be caused by stomach pain
- crawling: moving around on hands and knees
- ① cooped up: feel closed in a small space for too long
- dribbling: spilling from the mouth
- ① dust bunnies: small gatherings of dust
- elements: ingredients
- formula: special milk for babies that is made to be like mother's breast milk
- fussy: upset; cranky; irritable
- ① get out of the house: have a change in a boring house routine by going out
- grab: take and hold
- ① in a flash: really fast
- ① in ages: in a long time
- infant: a very young baby
- layette: the first clothes a baby needs
- newborn: a new baby

- night out: a special night doing something different or fun
- nutrients: things in food that the body needs
- nutrition: the food that the body needs
- onesies: special one-piece baby clothes
- ① or so: approximately; about
- ① out of: not having something
- parenthood: being a mother or father
- patience: ability to stay calm under stress
- pediatrician: a doctor who takes care of babies and children
- pureed: food processed in a blender until food is like a thick liquid or paste
- similar: like
- soothe: comfort
- tantrum: a fit of anger by an upset child
- ① Terrible Twos: the age (around two years) when little ones are famous for being difficult
- toddler: a young child, just starting to walk
- whining: complaining with an annoying, long, questioning sound
- wondering: thinking about

GRAMMAR REMINDER 2: Used to

When talking about something you did as a habit in the past (that you no longer do now), use used to plus the base form of the verb.

Example:

We used to go to the movies and clubs. (We no longer do that.)

In the negative, use didn't and use to. (No d on use!)

Correct Example:

You didn't use to go grocery shopping . . .

Not:

You didn't used to go grocery shopping . . .

MORE FUN WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS: Babies and Parents

- sleep like a baby: sleep very well
He spent the whole day working in the garden and mowing the lawn. After all that hard work, he slept like a baby that night.
- smooth as a baby's bottom: completely smooth; often used to talk about a man's head Steven started losing his hair at age 30. By the time he was 50, his head was smooth as a baby's bottom.
- in the family way: pregnant
Loretta couldn't wait to tell her friends that she was in the family way and would have the baby in December.
- pregnant pause: stopping for a short time during a speech before saying something important
The teacher announced that she would give the results of the big test. After a pregnant pause, she said that everyone had passed.
- a chip off the old block: just like a parent
James was a chip off the old block; he loved to read about archaeology, just like his father.

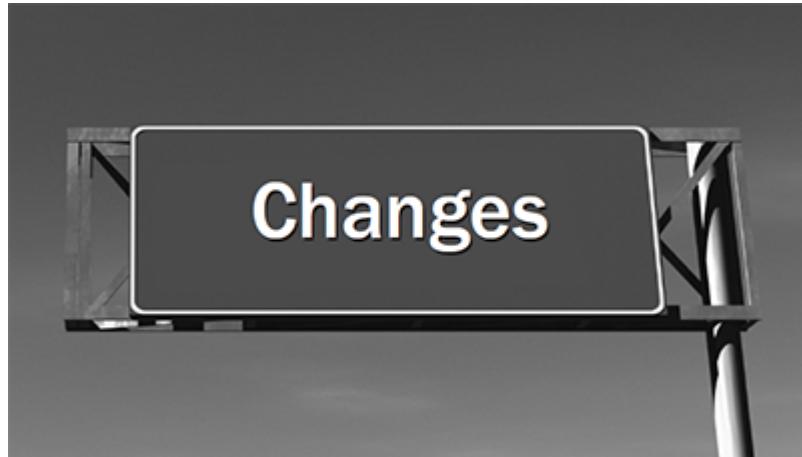

Fun Fact!

In 1914, President Woodrow Wilson signed a bill making Mother's Day a national holiday. We think he should have included a free vacation for every mother. And maybe two vacations for mothers of twins!

Unit

18

Full Circle

End-of-Life Issues

Although health care in this country has made it possible for Americans to live longer and more active lives well into their late senior years, serious illness and death are as much a part of life as birth and living. With old age come chronic illnesses and serious diseases. Most of these can be treated with good medical care, but often they cannot be cured. When a loved one becomes ill with a serious and incurable disease, Americans often rely on the same support systems that they depended on during earlier, happier times: family and friends.

These support systems can help with important care decisions as we become sick or unable to take care of ourselves. There are many things to think about, and there are many services available to help someone facing end-of-life issues. Even people lucky enough to be with family may need some extra help.

As we age, many people begin to think about planning for these end-of-life issues. Family and friends can help by talking about the choices to be made. Very often a person will want to prepare a living will while he is still healthy. This allows the person to make choices now about what care he wants to have if he becomes seriously ill. For example, some people may decide that if their heart stops, they do not want medical professionals to make it start again. This is known as a DNR order. The living will is a legal document that must be followed. In the living will, a person can make very clear what medical procedures he will allow.

A living will can be very clear about what machines someone will allow in her care plan. Someone may decide that if she is no longer able to breathe on her own, then she does not want to be placed on a ventilator. She may state in the living will that she does not want a feeding tube.

A person can also create a legal document called Power of Attorney that will allow another person to make all medical decisions. If someone is so sick that she cannot express herself, then the person she chooses will make decisions about health care. This person is usually a family member or a friend who knows exactly what the person's wishes are.

For someone facing the end of life, hospice care provides comfort and many services. A team of people will come to the home and make sure that the dying person is as comfortable as possible. The most important thing they hope to do is be sure the dying person has the best quality of life in the time he has left. The team includes doctors and nurses who will supervise any medical care. Because hospice care is for the dying, medical professionals are not focused on treating the illness; they are only concerned with making sure the person is comfortable and in no pain. Volunteers may help with taking care of the house and offering time off to family members who don't want to leave their loved one alone. Most health insurance plans will cover hospice care.

This isn't always an easy or happy subject to bring up, but it's an important one that will make things easier when a serious illness happens.

DIALOGUE 1: TRACK 47

:

LIA: Alan, did you hear about my great-grandmother? You know that she's been sick for a long time now. The doctors have diagnosed cancer. I'm afraid the prognosis is not very good.

ALAN: Yes, I did hear the news. I'm so sorry, Lia. How is she doing?

LIA: Well, you know my great-grandma. She's doing just fine! We're all feeling a little sad about the diagnosis, but Granny is very upbeat about it.

ALAN: Your grandmother's mom has always been very sensible.

LIA: She started to get her affairs in order when she first got sick. And she is very clear that she doesn't want to be on machines at the end of her life. We told her, "Granny, you could let the doctors who know medicine make this decision for you." But Granny made a living will so she is the one deciding what kind of care she will get. Some of my aunts are a little upset. They think the doctors should do anything and everything to keep Granny alive, even if it means using machines to keep her lungs working.

ALAN: How about asking your aunts to talk to someone at the hospice center?

LIA: Right now they are too upset to think calmly.

ALAN: What about having them speak to the doctors again? Or, why don't you call the chaplain at the hospital? Maybe he can help with their fears.

LIA: That's a great idea. Maybe the chaplain can give them some comfort, so that they can see that what makes Granny comfortable is the most important thing.

TIP 1 → Some older people enjoy giving away special belongings like jewelry while they are still healthy. They like to see people they love enjoy the item, and they are sure the person they want to have it will get it.

TIP 2 → It's important to listen if someone wants to talk about plans for their death. No one wants to think about someone they love dying, but it may make the person feel better to discuss it.

VOCABULARY

- ① anything and everything: a strong way to say to look at all possible things to do
 - belongings: things a person owns
- ② bring up: mention a subject for discussion
 - cancer: one of the main diseases that cause death in the United States
 - chaplain: a religious professional who can advise and help people in difficult times
 - chronic: describes something (usually a disease) that lasts for a very long time
 - cured: healed; made better
- ③ depend on: trust that someone will be available if needed; rely on
 - diagnosis: a decision about what the illness is
 - DNR order: the short form of Do Not Resuscitate; a legal order that does not allow medical attempts to make someone's heart or lungs work again
 - end-of-life issues: things to face when death is near

- feeding tube: a way of giving food to someone who can't eat
- ① get one's affairs in order: think about what needs to be done before one dies
- great-grandmother: great indicates the generation above, so a great-grandmother would be your grandmother's mother
- hospice care: comfort care of a person who is dying
- incurable: cannot be healed or made better
- late senior years: when a person is in the late eighties or even nineties
- living will: a legal statement of a person's wishes about emergency medical care
- ① on one's own: without help from anyone
- procedures: processes or steps to make something happen
- prognosis: an opinion about what is likely to happen with a disease
- quality of life: a person's comfort and happiness in the time he or she has left to live
- rely on: trust that someone will be available if needed; depend on
- supervise: watch; check on
- support system: people who will be with you when you need them
- team: a group of trained people and volunteers
- ① upbeat: feeling happy, even if there is bad news
- ventilator: a machine that breathes for the patient

PRONUNCIATION POINTER

—

:

There are three main ways to pronounce the /ch/ sound:

- ch as in church
- k as in kids (chronic)
- sh as in shop (chef)

GRAMMAR REMINDER 1: Making Suggestions

There are a few polite ways to make a suggestion about something. Remember we talked about using how about and why don't you?

How about asking your aunts . . . ?
Why don't you call the chaplain . . . ?

Here are two others:

What about having them speak to the doctors?
Granny, you could let the doctors make this decision for you.

Funeral Customs

:

It's the call we never want to get: In the middle of the night, the phone rings. A friend tells us that something terrible has happened. Her great-grandmother has just died. Many times this call is expected: Someone has been sick for a long time. Families who experience a loss become very busy making arrangements. Sometimes the person will have planned out a funeral in advance, but often it is the family who must make the funeral arrangements.

Most funerals are occasions for family and friends to meet, share memories of the person they have lost, and join in special services. Funeral homes will arrange to take care of the remains. They will prepare the body for a wake, if the family chooses. This is a common event in the United States. The body is laid in a casket, which is often open, for family and friends to have a final chance to say good-bye. This is known as a viewing. Not everyone is comfortable with this, however, and some families choose a closed coffin.

At a wake, the family is greeted by friends, who offer condolences on their loss. Close friends may arrange to send flowers to the funeral home for display, but often families will ask friends to make a donation to a charity instead. They may write in the obituary, “In lieu of flowers, please make a donation to a special charity.” There are usually visiting times for a day or two, and then there is a funeral service, followed by burial. The funeral is often a church service, but it is sometimes just prayers or a speaker at the cemetery. If there are no religious rites, then the casket will be brought right to the cemetery for interment.

Not all families choose burial of the body in a casket, however. Cremation is becoming a much more common choice. Often the visiting custom is the same, but sometimes there will be no service at the cemetery. Instead, the family may have a memorial service several months later. Often, they will display a special urn with the ashes of their loved one. There may be a church service, or prayers, or simply a ceremony for people to talk about their memories of the person. The urn will be kept in a family member’s home, or it will be buried in a cemetery. Some people will scatter the ashes in a favorite place. The funeral home will be able to tell you if you need special permission to do this.

During the wake period, neighbors and friends try to help in any way they can. It is common for friends to bring food to the house. This is a way to show sympathy for their neighbor’s loss. Some families like to celebrate. This is not a party, but a way to celebrate and honor the person’s life.

While this section describes the typical funeral customs, there are, of course, many different customs. Remember that the United States is made up of people with many religions and traditions, so funeral customs will also be different. For example, some people do not have a wake at all and believe it is important to bury the person within one day. Friends may visit at the home later.

All funerals are respectful of the person who has died and of the wishes of the family. Every family has special ideas about how they want to observe the death of someone they love.

DIALOGUE 2: TRACK 48

— :

ALAN: Lia, I heard that your great-grandmother passed away. I'm so sorry.

LIA: Thanks, Alan. Yes, we're all really sad about it, but we know that Granny was ready.

ALAN: Is there anything I can do?

LIA: Our neighbors have been wonderful about leaving us meals, so I don't think there's anything we need right now.

ALAN: Well, please accept my condolences. If you think of anything I can do to help your family, just let me know.

LIA: Thank you so much. If we need anything, I'll let you know.

Tip 3 In many parts of the country, it is customary for all cars on a road to stop for a funeral procession. Often, a police car will flash its lights to stop all traffic. Cars in the funeral procession have their headlights on to show that they are part of the funeral. When all the cars have passed by, another police car will allow the normal traffic to begin again.

Tip 4 Death is a part of life that sometimes makes people uncomfortable. Some people don't even like to say the word die. To make it easier to discuss, people use many euphemisms. You will probably hear the following: He's passed. She passed away. My grandmother passed on. All these phrases mean the same thing: Someone has died.

VOCABULARY

- ashes: what is left after cremation
- body: what is left of the person after he or she has died

- burial: putting the body into the ground after the funeral
- casket: a special box, usually wood or metal, for the body
- cemetery: a place where people are buried
- charity: a group or organization that helps people in need
- coffin: another word for the casket
- condolences: feelings of sympathy or sadness for the friend's loss
- cremation: a service where the body is burned instead of buried
- euphemism: a way to say something that avoids words that make people uncomfortable
- funeral: the final service for someone who has died
- funeral home: a special business that takes care of funeral services and cares for the person's body
- headlights: the front lights of a car
- in lieu of: instead of (this is another French expression that we have adopted into English)
- interment: burial
- loss: what we feel when someone we love dies
- make a donation: give something (usually money) to a charity
- making arrangements: planning the funeral
- memorial service: a special service where friends may celebrate the person who has died
- obituary: a notice in the newspaper about someone's death
- ① passed, passed away, passed on: died
- procession: a line of people or cars in a special ceremony
- remains: the body of someone who has died
- rites: ceremonies
- scatter: let go in many directions with the wind
- sympathy: a feeling that shows that you know someone is suffering
- urn: a covered container like a jar or vase for the ashes of a cremated body

- viewing: a time to see the body for the last time
- visiting times: when people may visit the family at the funeral home
- wake: a service where the casket is in a special room where friends and family visit

GRAMMAR REMINDER 2: Expressions of Sympathy

These are some common ways to express sympathy when someone has died:

- I'm so sorry about your loss.
- You have my sympathy.
- You have my condolences.
- Your family is in my thoughts/prayers.

MORE FUN WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS: Dying

Death is one of those taboos: things people don't like to talk about or think about. Of course, it's always serious when someone we love dies. But when talking about death in general, lots of people find that it helps to be casual or funny about it. You may hear some of these expressions, all of which mean to die, even if they don't always refer to people.

- kick the bucket
He started shopping around for cars because his old one with the oil leak is about to kick the bucket.
- buy the farm
He could tell by the third chapter of the book that the main character was going to buy the farm before the end.
- meet one's maker

The cowboy in the movie told the bad guy that he was about to meet his maker.

- push up daisies

Lots of people who talked about how safe smoking is are now pushing up daisies.

- bite the dust

She watched as each chicken was taken from the farm to be slaughtered for dinner. Each time, she said to her brother, “Oh, well. Another one bites the dust.”

Fun Fact!

We bet you didn't think there could be a fun fact in this section.

Well, there is. Although people don't like to say the word die when they're talking about death, they use the word and words related to death all the time in casual conversation: “My car died.” “The battery is dead.” “This play is boring me to death!”

Review: Units 16–18

VOCABULARY

Fill in the blanks. Use the words below.

stroll
cringe propose elope overdo choked pack soothe crawl
dribble

EVA: I really want to get married. I wish Tom would hurry up and (1) _____. He's the love of my life!

LORETTA: Well, why don't you go to the park for a romantic (2) _____ around the lake? Maybe he'll think that's the perfect time to ask!

EVA: If he does propose, maybe we'll just (3) _____, you know, run off and not tell anyone. It's so much easier than planning a big wedding.

LORETTA: Make sure you remember to (4) _____ your bag with everything you need before you go!

EVA: Can you imagine what my mom would say?

LORETTA: The thought of that makes me (5) _____. She'd be really upset.

EVA: I know. Well, at least you'd be around to (6) _____ her.

LORETTA: Thanks, pal! I think that would be (7) _____ ing it. You know how much your family would love to see you getting hitched. They'll be all (8) _____ up seeing you in white.

EVA: I know, I know. They can't wait till I'm in the family way, too, but I want to put it off a while. I don't like it when babies (9)_____ all over the place when they are trying to eat.

LORETTA: Yes, but think how cute they are when they start to (10) _____ around on their hands and knees. Hey, don't forget I want to be the godmother!

EVA: I'll remember. But, hey, we still need to get Tom to hurry up and pop the question!

Answer Key

INFORMAL LANGUAGE

Match the expressions to their meanings. Try using them in a sentence.

- | | |
|------------------------|--|
| 11. catch your eye | a. listening very carefully |
| 12. chat someone up | b. eating while pregnant |
| 13. let your hair down | c. have something common in the family |
| 14. tie the knot | d. try your hardest at something |
| 15. chip in | e. be attractive to you |
| 16. all ears | f. be sad or unhappy |
| 17. look down | g. get married |

- | | |
|----------------------------|--|
| 18. give it your best shot | h. have a casual conversation with someone you find attractive |
| 19. eating for two | i. give money for a gift from a group of people |
| 20. run in the family | j. relax and have fun |

Answer Key

GRAMMAR

Look at the phrasal verbs in this short story. Can you explain what they mean?

Julia first began to (21) go out with Jason five years ago. They always had a rocky relationship. He (22) let her down many times, but she always gave him another chance, and they would (23) make up. Finally, when she found out he was having an affair with her best friend, she decided she couldn't (24) put up with him any longer, and they (25) split up for good.

Decide whether you need will or going to for the future tense in the following sentences. Sometimes both are possible. Remember to add the verb to be if you are using going to.

26. Look at those huge black clouds! It _____ rain.
27. I _____ study to be a doctor this coming fall.
28. I am freezing. I think I _____ run home and get a sweater.
29. Your life _____ really change once you have a baby.
30. We _____ surprise our parents this weekend with a party because it is their wedding anniversary.

Answer Key

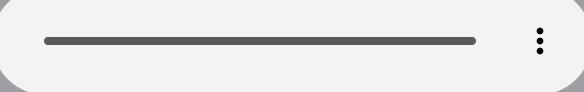

Unit

19

Gadget Central

Hello? Hello? Can You Hear Me Now?

WE can hear you—and we don't want to hear you!

Come on, admit it. We know it's happened to you, too. You were sitting quietly on the bus, reading your newspaper, when she took the seat next to you. Yak, yak, yak! You heard all about her boyfriend's cooking skills. You heard about her sister's new chocolate diet. You heard about the neighbor's dog. Do you care? We don't care!

Okay, we all love cell phones. They make it easy to stay in touch with friends and family at all times. The convenient features of smartphones are irresistible: hi-tech cameras, HD video, high speed Internet access, cool ring tones, even GPS guidance to help you get where you want to go! We remember when voicemail, flip phones, and QWERTY keyboards for texting were cool! Come on, admit it. You love those touch screens, games, and applications that can help you do just about anything you need to do. Want to find a restaurant near your class tonight? Check your phone. Need a map of the neighborhood? Check your phone. Want to know what movie is showing at the theater on Tuesday? Check your phone. It may be hard to imagine, but even the simplest early phones had keypads with a multi-tap function for texting.

Oh, and if you just want to make a phone call, you can do that, too. Haha! All of these communication conveniences come with a cost. And we're not just talking about the monthly bill! But now that we've mentioned it, let's talk about the monthly bill. Most companies offer a bundle of services for a set price each month. You can add features to your plan, but that will usually add to your bill, too. You'll have to pay for some special apps (applications) or games that you download. And if you want unlimited access to the Internet, you'll need to have a more expensive plan for that, too.

But the biggest cost of all this convenience is suffering when people don't observe simple phone etiquette. It's rude to speak loudly on the phone in a public place. It's rude when your phone rings or vibrates in a meeting. It's rude when you interrupt a face-to-face conversation to answer a phone call. Many places ban cell phone use. Some trains have special "quiet cars" where no cell phones are allowed. Good cell phone etiquette means that you are respectful of others around you. No matter how interesting your bowl of cereal is to you, trust us: The guy sitting next to you does not want to hear about it!

DIALOGUE 1: TRACK 49

— :

ALAN: Good morning, Officer. Was I speeding when you pulled me over? I thought I was being very careful.

POLICE OFFICER: I didn't pull you over for speeding. I pulled you over because you were talking on a cell phone while driving.

ALAN: For talking on the phone? Is that a problem? My wife just called to remind me about an appointment when I get back from my business trip.

POLICE OFFICER: Sir, using a handheld device while driving is illegal in this state.

I can see from your plates that you're from out of town, so I'll let you go with just a warning this time. But, sir, next time just check the law before your trip. Maybe you should buy a hands-free device if you do a lot of driving for business.

ALAN: I will do that, Officer. In fact, I was thinking about buying a Bluetooth earpiece when I bought my phone. I will definitely get one as soon as I get home. Thanks.

POLICE OFFICER: By the way, I hope you weren't texting when I pulled you over. Texting while driving is even more dangerous than talking.

It is illegal in many states to use a cell phone while driving. You should check ahead if you're traveling. Actually, it's a good idea to turn off the phone while you're in the car no matter where you are!

Have you ever been lost while driving? Many phone plans let you order GPS just when you need it.

VOCABULARY

- answer: take the phone call
- application: a game or tool that you can download to your phone; things your phone can do
- ban: not allow; forbid
- Bluetooth: the special system that lets electronic devices work without wires or hands
- bowl of cereal: a typical American breakfast made of dried grains like wheat and oats
- bundle of services: a group of things your phone can do
- communication: giving and getting information; for example, TV, radio, telephone, computer
- definitely: for sure; absolutely
- download: take from the Internet so that you can use it on your phone
- earpiece: part of a phone that you can wear so you don't have to use your hands to hold the phone and talk
- etiquette: ways to be polite
- face-to-face: in person; with the person right there
- features: special things something can do
- flip phone: phone that folds
- function: use
- guidance: help
- handheld device: a phone or other device that needs hands to operate
- illegal: against the law
- interrupt: stop something while it's going on
- ① in touch: connected by talking
- irresistible: so great you have to have it!
- ① let someone (or something) go: not hold someone responsible for something; ignore something (to let someone off the hook)

- multi-tap: selecting a letter on a phone by tapping the number key that corresponds to that letter
- observe: obey; use
- plan: the services you select for a certain price per month
- plates (also tags): license plates on a car
- QWERTY keyboard: letters arranged as on a typical English computer keyboard (look at the top row of letters!)
- ring tone: the sound your phone makes to let you know someone is calling
- rude: not polite
- texting: sending typed messages by cell phone
- touch screen: instead of typing, just touch to select an option
- voice mail: system of keeping recorded messages when you can't answer a call
- ④ yak: have a very casual conversation (usually about nothing!)

PRONUNCIATION POINTER

:

Cell and sell are both pronounced the same way. The fancy word we use to talk about these words is homophones. Homophones are words that sound the same but are spelled differently.

GRAMMAR REMINDER 1: The Past Continuous Tense with the Past Simple Tense

The past continuous tense is often used with the simple past tense to show one longer action that was interrupted by a shorter action.

For example:

He was speeding when the police officer stopped him.

Was speeding is the long action; stopped is the action that interrupts the longer action.

The Easy Way

In the good old days before computers, people read printed books and newspapers to get information.

Students spent hours and hours in the library, looking for information in dusty old books for class assignments. Essays were handwritten; if students made a mistake, they would toss the paper and start writing all over again. Now? Information is instant!

Students can find anything on the Internet in minutes and then compose a document on their laptops, all while sitting on the sofa. If they make a mistake, they can just delete or cut, copy, and paste to move bits of text around. Maybe the most important computer skill is knowing how to back up your files in case your computer crashes, or you drop your device in the lake. Documents and files can be sent to “the cloud” for storage. We’re not really sure what “the cloud” is, but we know it makes it easy to find stuff from any device! Ha, we remember when all we got from clouds was rain! We still like to keep another backup file, just to be doubly-sure that our hard work won’t be lost forever in cyberspace.

We also remember the library in the good old days. It was a place where everyone was quiet. Hum along to an iPod tune? Never! Send an e-mail while working? What’s e-mail? Watch a movie on the HDTV while you work? Impossible! Download MP3s to your hard drive or device? No! But now students can watch YouTube videos about their research topic as they write a paper. And as they are writing, they can IM friends in another window on their computer screen. A simple click of the mouse, hit SAVE, and students can take a quick chat break. Wait. Did you think we were talking about chatting with someone in the same room? No! We’re talking about online chat rooms. You don't even need to hook up a webcam; just open an app and it's party time instead of homework time!

Do we sound like dinosaurs? Actually, we love technology. With social networking apps, and cable and satellite signals, electronic devices and HDTVs can broadcast important local information instantly. In areas where severe weather is a problem, TV is an excellent source of warnings. Your local radio or TV station can give information about where to get help or what to do to keep your family and home safe. Hurricane updates can help you prepare your house. If a tornado is coming, you can get to a safe area. If there's a snowstorm, people often turn to radio or TV to hear about school closings. School is closing? Yay! Quick—text your buddy the good news!

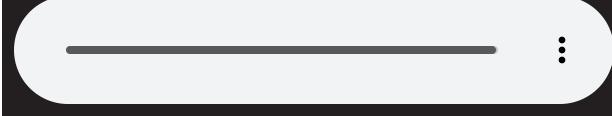

Technology is our friend! Instant communication is convenient, fun, and easy. But for those of us who still like to hold a piece of paper with the words of friends, there is always snail mail.

Fun Fact!

It's the latest thing: cell-phone sniffing dogs! Yes, many American prisons are using specially trained dogs that can smell and find any part of a cell phone that a prisoner may have hidden.

DIALOGUE 2: TRACK 50

ALAN: Uh-oh.

LIA: That sounds like trouble. What happened?

ALAN: I was answering an e-mail, and I hit Reply All.

LIA: So, what's the problem?

ALAN: Well, the problem is that my e-mail reply said, “I don’t want to go to this meeting! I want to go to lunch!”

LIA: Aaackkk! Were you thinking that the e-mail would just go to your friend?

ALAN: Yes! I wasn’t reading the other names on the list, so I didn’t see that the boss was also on the list!

LIA: Well, you really need to be careful about sending e-mail. Once you hit Send, it’s gone. You can’t get it back.

ALAN: I know. And even if the e-mail comes from a friend, I have to remember that there are other people on the list, too. The boss sent me a reply: “Is it your lunchtime, Alan?”

LIA: Well, I don’t think you’ll get fired over an e-mail that says you want to go to lunch, but maybe you should explain to your boss that you were only kidding. It was just a little joke about going to lunch instead of going to the meeting. Was he wondering why you were so hungry?

ALAN: No. He wasn’t wondering why I was hungry. I think he was wondering why he hired me in the first place!

 Before you reply to an e-mail, be sure to check if you are hitting Reply or Reply All. Reply All means your note will be seen by every person on the list. This could be embarrassing if you write something you don’t want your boss to see and his or her name is on the list!

VOCABULARY

- acronym: a word formed by the first letters of a phrase (see list on page 210)
- broadcast: air (send) information over TV or radio signals
- cable: a way to receive TV service through fiber-optic wires

- compose: write
- ① dinosaur: ancient creatures that lived on earth millions of years ago; used to describe people who don't use new technology
- dusty: with a light covering of dirt
- essay: a piece of writing about a single topic
- ① good old days: how things were when you were younger
- handwritten: written with a pen or pencil on paper!
- HDTV: short for High Definition TeleVision; yields a very clear TV picture on the screen
- hook up: connect
- hum: sing a song without the words
- instant: right away! this second! no waiting!
- research: careful study about a topic
- satellite: a way to receive TV service from satellites in space
- severe: very harsh
- signal: a message carried by light waves that lets electronic devices communicate (Don't ask us—it's science-y!)
- ① snail mail: the postal service
- ① sniffing: smelling
- snowstorm (also blizzard): lots of snow
- source: a place to get information
- toss: throw in the trash
- tune: a musical song or melody
- warning: advance notice about something
- YouTube: a website with videos about everything

PRONUNCIATION POINTER

They look exactly the same! They are spelled exactly the same way. But the present tense and the past tense of the verb read are pronounced very differently.

The present tense is pronounced reed.

The past tense is pronounced red.

GRAMMAR REMINDER 2: The Past Continuous Tense—Affirmative Statements, Negatives

The past continuous tense is used to talk about a long continuing action in the past.

Form it by using the past tense of the verb to be and the -ing form of the verb. To form the negative, simply add not or -n’t after the verb to be.

Take a look at these examples from the readings and dialogues in this unit:

Positive:

You were sitting quietly on the bus.

I thought I was being very careful.

Negative:

I hope you weren’t texting. (were not)

I wasn’t reading the other names on the list. (was not)

He wasn’t wondering why I was hungry. (was not)

GRAMMAR REMINDER 3: The Past Continuous Tense—Questions

To form a question using the past continuous tense, just put the form of the verb to be first, then the subject, and finally the -ing form of the verb.

Take a look at these examples from the readings and dialogues in this unit:

Was I speeding?

Were you thinking that the e-mail would just go to your friend?

Was he wondering why you were so hungry?

Remember to add a question word at the beginning as you need it, e.g.,
“What were you thinking?”

COMPUTER WORDS

back up: save your files in another place in case the computer stops working

click: the word we use to mean press the key (computer mouse button)

copy: the computer choice that lets you copy something you want to move crash: when the computer stops working and you can't open your files cut: the computer choice that lets you remove something from a document cyberspace: where computers all communicate (It's a mystery to us 😊.)

delete: erase something you've written desktop: a large computer that sits on a desk and does not move easily document: something written on the computer e-mail: electronic mail; notes you send from your computer hard drive: the important part of the computer with all the parts that make it work hit: a casual word meaning click

IM: Instant Message (If you write to a person who is online, they can answer instantly.)

laptop: a small computer that you can carry and use on your lap mouse: a small device to make the computer do what you want (not a rodent!)

MP3: a file that lets you put music on your computer or iPod online: connected to the Internet

paste: the computer choice that lets you move something you copied

Reply: what you click to answer e-mail; sends only to the person who sent the message

Reply All: what you click to answer e-mail if you want everyone on the list to get your message save: the computer choice that keeps whatever you're working on in a file screen: the part of the computer that you look at; on a desktop it's called the monitor

webcam: the camera that you connect to your computer window: what you see on your screen when you open the computer

TEXT TALK!

It may seem like a whole new language, but using acronyms while texting or chatting can really save time. And because they're used as shortcuts, people often don't bother with capital letters.

Just make sure you keep these to text talk. A boss does not want to see these in reports!

ASAP: as soon as possible

K: okay

b/c: because

L8R: later (see you later)

bf: boyfriend

LOL: laughing out loud

gf: girlfriend

ROFL: rolling on the floor laughing

bff: best friends forever

thx: thanks

btw: by the way

ttyl: talk to you later

FAQ: frequently asked questions

txt: text

FYI: for your information

ty: thank you

GL: good luck

ur: your

gtg or gg: gotta go

VM: voice mail

j/k: just kidding

xoxo: hugs and kisses

MORE FUN WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS: Technology

- belts and whistles: extra features to make something even more special
Jane bought a new cell phone with all the belts and whistles. She can play games, access the Internet, and even make phone calls!
- cutting edge: very new technology
My computer is cutting edge. It can recognize my voice from the next room!
- computer geek: someone who knows about computers and spends lots of time with them
My nephew is a real computer geek. He spends hours every day just finding new things to do with his computer.
- dead zone: an area where your cell phone won't work
I need to find a new company for my cell phone. My house is in a dead zone for the one I have.
- waste of minutes: not worth talking to; not worth using your cell-phone plan minutes
*He never has anything interesting to say. It's yak, yak, yak about nothing.
Talking to him is a waste of minutes.*

Unit

20

9 to 5

The Perfect Job

— : —

Are you fed up with getting paid peanuts? Do you feel that your boss is always picking on you? Is it starting to get you down? Uh-oh. We can feel it—you want to quit! Well, that's okay, but be sure you don't just walk out one day. Think about it carefully. Make sure you have all your ducks in a row before you go. Even if you think you may have another job lined up, don't put all your eggs in one basket. Nothing is official until you've signed on the dotted line, so make sure you have all the paperwork for the new job before you hand in your notice at the old one.

Of course, we don't always have a choice about finding a new job. Maybe you've been let go, or your company has gone under. Either way, it's time to start looking for a new job and make a fresh start.

The thought of finding a new job can be overwhelming, and you may be wondering where to start. There are plenty of options. Maybe the most important thing is to think about what you're good at. Can you capitalize on that? Maybe it's time to think about learning new skills. How is your English? Good language skills usually improve your chances for a better-paying job. So how can you do this? The good news is that reading this book is a great first step 😊.

Taking an ESL class is another great way to improve. English classes are usually lots of fun, and you'll meet new people from all over the globe. Why not sign up with a friend and make it a fun night out? Some classes are free, like those sponsored by churches and libraries; others you may need to pay for. Community colleges and adult education centers are usually the most affordable. Some schools even offer very specialized English classes for different professions. But don't forget about the skills that you already have. You speak another language; maybe you can teach that to someone else. Think of it: you could set up a language exchange with an American where part of the time you talk in English and the other part you speak in your language. This is a great way to meet new friends. And don't forget that many companies look for people who can speak another language.

If you want to learn a trade, think about technical colleges and community colleges. There are schools that specialize in certain areas. For example, if you want to learn about working in the computer industry, there are schools that teach only computer technology. If you've always wanted to work in the dental field, you can go to a school that teaches only what you need to know about dentistry. Haha. We wonder if they teach a class about how to say, "Open wide!"

Okay, so where can you find this new job? There is no magic answer for how to find the perfect job. Many people rely on word of mouth. A friend tells you that her company is looking for a new person. Or you can look in the classifieds of your local paper, which posts its listings online these days. Many towns and community centers have career centers with lots of information about local companies that have jobs. And, of course, the Internet offers lots of options if you use it well. Type in the name of the company you're interested in. Then click the Human Resources link and search the current openings. You can even fill out the application online. You might want to look online at headhunters and employment agencies, too. You can plug in the type of job you are looking for, and they will send you periodic updates and listings. Many places will ask for references. References are people who know you and your work and will tell a potential employer that you're a good worker. If you want to use someone as a reference, be sure to ask him before submitting his name. If you want people to say good things about you, it helps if they are expecting the question before the new employer calls.

Okay, so you've found a job you think is your dream job. It's really important to look beyond the salary they will be paying you. It's important to be sure you're a good fit for the job. And it's important to think about the entire compensation package. What benefits does the company offer? The one most people check out first is a health plan. These plans can be very complex and confusing, so do your homework and make sure you understand what is included and what is excluded. You may get a choice of different plans, and the company will probably give you paperwork explaining each. If you have questions, the person with all the benefits information is the HR specialist. Other benefits may include dental insurance, life insurance, and short-term and long-term disability insurance. You can elect or decline some of these; if you elect to take them, you will probably have to pay some amount out of each paycheck for the extra coverage. Think carefully. If you choose not to take the insurance and something happens, you could be looking at a huge bill. Other things to think about when you get a job offer are vacation time and sick leave. How many days will you get? Does the company offer a pension plan? Some places will even offer tuition reimbursement. It's all pretty complicated, but it's really important stuff. It takes a lot of work to find the dream job!

DIALOGUE 1: TRACK 51

— :

LIA: Hey, Alan, look at you reading the newspaper! But how come you're reading the classifieds? Don't you usually prefer the comics? Haha.

ALAN: Very funny. And anyway, I already finished reading the comics. Now I'm looking for a new job.

LIA: No kidding? Uh-oh. Is there a problem at work?

ALAN: I guess you could say that. I've worked at that fast food joint for two years now doing the same old stuff, and it's time for a change. Besides, I've eaten way too many of their burgers, and I can't fit into any of my pants!

LIA: Well, I can understand wanting to make a change. And after all, you speak two languages fluently. There are plenty of companies that have great jobs for people who are bilingual. Not too many Americans speak two languages. With world economies so connected, companies need to have people who can communicate in another language, as well as English.

ALAN: That's exactly what I think. I know it's a big plus to be bilingual these days. And I think if I can find a job with a better salary, I'll be able to buy that new car I really want.

LIA: Yeah, and if you have that new car, maybe you'll finally be able to convince Margaret to go out with you!

ALAN: Exactly! I've had a crush on her for ages!

The holiday season is a good time to find a part-time job. Many people are shopping for holiday gifts, and stores often hire extra people.

Your chances of finding part-time work are even better if you can do shift work. Often stores need extra people to work when the store is closed to arrange merchandise on shelves.

VOCABULARY

- affordable: not too expensive
- ① ages: a long time
- ① all your ducks in a row: have a plan
- application: an information form that you need to fill out to get a job
- benefits: special things you get on your job in addition to pay
- bilingual: knowing two languages fluently
- capitalize on: take advantage of
- classifieds: ads for jobs
- compensation package: the salary and benefits of a job
- convince: persuade; make someone think something
- ① crush: feeling that you really like someone (romantically)
- current: now
- decline: refuse; not take
- ① do your homework: do research to find out about something
- elect: choose
- excluded: not part of something
- ① fed up: tired of something
- first step: starting to take action
- fluently: very well
- ① getting paid peanuts: getting very little pay
- ① get you down: make you feel discouraged
- globe: the world
- ① gone under: failed
- ① good fit: a good match for your interests and skills

- hand in your notice: tell your boss that you will be leaving your job after a certain time period
- headhunters, employment agencies: companies that work to find people jobs
- ① how come: why
- Human Resources (also called HR): the department that takes care of employees
- included: part of something
- ① joint: place
- ① let go: lose your job
- ① lined up: have things planned in order
- listings: notices about job openings
- long-term disability: being unable to work for a long time because of sickness or injury
- look beyond: think about more than just one thing
- ① looking at: expecting to happen
- make a fresh start: start again
- merchandise: things for sale
- 9 to 5: a job (usual job hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.)
- part-time: working just a few hours of a day
- pension plan: a system that saves money so that you can collect small payments when you are no longer working
- periodic: occurring at different intervals
- ① picking on: always watching and criticizing or always giving work to someone
- ① plug in: enter into a form
- ① plus: advantage
- ① put all your eggs in one basket: depend on one thing happening (which may not happen!)
- ① quit: leave your job

- reference: someone who will give you a good recommendation
- ① same old stuff (also same old, same old): the same routine; every day is the same thing
- shift work: unusual work hours, not 9 to 5; perhaps working overnight
- short-term disability: being unable to work because of sickness or injury for a short time
- sick leave: days off when you are sick that you will get paid for
- ① signed on the dotted line: signed a contract
- skills: talents or abilities
- submit: give
- trade: a job that needs special skills
- tuition reimbursement: money back for what you have spent on education
- updates: new information, or changes to a product
- vacation time: days off that you will get paid for
- ① walk out: leave your job without letting your supervisor know in advance
- ① way too many/much: a stronger way of saying very many/much
- ① word of mouth: hearing something from another person

GRAMMAR REMINDER 1: The Present Perfect Simple Tense—Affirmative Statements

The present perfect simple tense can be used to show something that started in the past and has not yet finished. It's formed by the verb to have and the past participle. What's a past participle, you say? For regular verbs, it's the same as the past simple: just add -ed. For the irregular verbs, you just have to memorize the form. (See the list of irregular verbs in Appendix B.)

Take a look at these examples with the regular verb to work:

I have (I've) worked here for two years now.

He has (he's) worked here for two years.

They started working here in the past, and they are still working here now.

Take a look at this example from the dialogue using the irregular verb to have:

I've had a crush on her for ages.

I had a crush on her in the past, and I still have a crush on her now.

Note: In spoken English, we usually use the contractions I've worked, he's worked, and so on.

GRAMMAR REMINDER 2: The First Conditional

The first conditional is used to show the probable result of a possible action. It can be written in two ways:

If I get a new job, I will (I'll) have more money.

I'll have more money if I get a new job.

Having more money is the probable result. Getting a new job is the possible action.

Note: Don't mix if and will in the same clause!

Do not say: If I will get a new job, I have a new car.

PRONUNCIATION POINTER

:

I'll is pronounced eye-l.

It's not pronounced ill, as in "I'm sick; I need to go to the doctor!"

Paperwork!

Ack! We all hate paperwork! It takes ages to do, but there's no getting away from the fact that you will probably need lots of papers for your job search. You'll need to write a résumé and a cover letter, and you'll probably need transcripts for the education you have completed. These documents are summaries of your experience. The cover letter is a formal letter of interest in the job, explaining why you would be an excellent fit for the company, and how your past accomplishments will help the company. The résumé shows all the work you've done. The transcript shows all the classes you've taken. If all your education was received outside the United States, you may want to consider hiring a company that can Americanize your transcript; that is, it will analyze your courses to see how they match up to similar courses in the United States, and they will figure out your GPA.

Although some companies still hire new employees using only a paper or online application form (without requiring a résumé), for many jobs, you will probably need to complete both. We know, we know. It seems like a waste of time, but hey, gotta keep the big wigs happy! No matter what paperwork you need for a new job, it's a good idea to think through all your previous experience and skills before an interview. You'll need to be on the ball to really sell yourself. The interview is a very short time to give as much information as you can.

Writing a good cover letter and résumé is an art form! There are hundreds of books and articles about how to do this, and, of course, there's a ton of free information online. It's important to choose information that applies to the type of position you are looking for. Although it may take a lot of time, it really is worth doing this well. Make sure you get someone to check it over for you. Employers say that there is nothing worse than looking at a résumé full of errors. (Hoo boy, we know. We've seen some beauts!) If an employer thinks that you didn't put much effort into your paperwork, he may think that you'll be the type of employee who doesn't put much effort into his job.

Employers often go by first appearances, so it's a great idea to have an extra pair of eyes to look over your writing.

Before a new employer even meets you, he may make judgments about you based on your résumé and cover letter. And once you've prepared a good résumé (and you've saved a copy to your computer and backed it up!), all you'll need to do is tweak it as your skills and work experience grow. This paperwork could mean the difference between getting your dream job or not.

PRONUNCIATION POINTER

:

Beaut is pronounced byute. It's like beauty: byut ee. Beautiful!

TIP 3

Fun Fact!

We can all use an extra pair of eyes to look over important paperwork. Even the president has people to help look over his speeches.

DIALOGUE 2: TRACK 52

:

ALAN: Hey, Lia, I could use an extra pair of eyes. Would you mind looking this over for me?

LIA: Sure. What is it?

ALAN: My résumé. Instead of looking for something new, I've decided to apply to be a supervisor at the place where I work now, and I really want to make a good impression.

LIA: Wow, and I can see you spent a lot of time preparing this résumé.

ALAN: Yeah, I've thought about that supervisor job all weekend, and I decided I just have to give it a shot.

LIA: Good for you! You have some great experience, and you'll be a perfect fit for that position.

ALAN: That's what I was thinking, too. Some of the things I've already accomplished in my job show that I can really handle the extra responsibilities. I think if I just get an interview with the boss, I'll be able to sell myself. And if I get the job, I'll be thrilled. It's exactly what I've been looking for.

LIA: I'm sure they'll want a reference. Have you thought about whom you're going to ask?

ALAN: Yes. My supervisor now has already said he'll give me a great reference. And just to be sure I get plenty of support, I've also called Mrs. Robinson from the James Rinski Company. That's the company where I used to work when I first arrived in the United States. She was my supervisor.

LIA: Great idea! I remember that she really liked you and thought you were one of the best workers on her team. But I don't remember why you left that job. What happened?

ALAN: The company had to downsize, and there was a big layoff. I was in the last group that they laid off. They eliminated my position. I know Mrs.

Robinson felt really bad when she had to let me go. She said she would be happy to help me any way she could with finding a new job.

LIA: Sounds like she'll be a perfect reference. I'm sure she'll be really happy to give you a great recommendation. Good luck!

ALAN: Thanks. I'll need luck—and a résumé with no mistakes!

Fun Fact!

Many workplaces have “dress down Friday” when you can wear casual clothes. Take our advice: find out what the policy is! If you’re the only one wearing a suit, you will feel silly. If you’re the only one wearing jeans, you will feel ridiculous! (We know—we’ve been there.)

VOCABULARY

- accomplishments: good things you’ve done at work
- ① Americanize: make something seem similar to the way it looks in the U.S.
- ① art form: making something perfect and special
- ① beautiful: great! fantastic!
- ① beauts: amazing examples!
- ① big wigs: executives or other important people in a company
- cover letter: a letter expressing interest in a job
- downsize: make a company smaller by laying off people
- eliminated: ended; got rid of
- errors: mistakes
- ① extra pair of eyes: a person who can help find mistakes or make suggestions
- ① felt bad: felt sad about something
- first appearances: how things seem right away, before getting to know someone

- form: a document to be completed with your information
- ① give it a shot: give something a try
- ① gotta: very casual way of saying have to
- GPA: short for Grade Point Average; your overall grade in school
- interview: a meeting between someone who wants the job and the person who is hiring
- layoff: ending the employment of some people, usually because there is not enough work
- ① look over: check; read for mistakes
- ① on the ball: alert; prepared
- recommendation: a good reference, a good report about your work
- responsibilities: jobs or tasks that someone is in charge of doing well
- résumé: a summary of your work experience
- ridiculous: very silly
- ① sell yourself: be able to explain why you are such an excellent person for the job
- supervisor: a person in a leadership position at work; a manager or boss
- template: an easy design to use for making a document
- thrilled: really happy and excited
- transcript: a summary of courses you have studied
- tweak: make small changes to add or change information
- ① waste of time: something that is not worth doing
- worth: of value

MORE FUN WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS: Jobs

- dead-end job: a job that offers no chance for improvement

There's no chance of a promotion in the office where I work. It's really a dead-end job.

- crack the whip: make people work really hard
That new boss of mine is really cracking the whip in the office. We don't get a minute to chat.
- work your fingers to the bone: work really hard
I really hope the boss appreciates the work I've done on this project. I've worked my fingers to the bone to make it perfect.
- call it quits: end something It's no good. I'm fed up with my job. I've decided to call it quits and look for something new.
- learn the ropes: learn how to do something; get used to doing a new job
My new job is a bit stressful, but I'm sure it will be easier once I learn the ropes.

GRAMMAR REMINDER 3: More Present Perfect Simple Tense

The present perfect simple tense is another tense that works really hard. It can also be used to show a recent action:

I've decided to apply to be a supervisor.

USAGE REMINDER

Looking for a job is one of those times when it's important to remember when to use formal English and when to use informal English.

Wow, this is a huge topic, but here are some general tips:

Okay in Informal English

Contractions

Use This in Formal English

Full form

I've worked there for five years.	I have worked there for five years.
Phrasal verbs	Full form
The company laid me off when they lost a major customer.	The company eliminated my position when they lost a major customer.
Idiomatic expressions	Literal language
I worked my fingers to the bone for my company.	I worked very hard for my company.
Informal vocabulary	More formal vocabulary
I worked with an awesome bunch of guys .	I worked with a wonderful group of people .
Incomplete sentences	Complete sentences
Great idea!	That's a great idea.

Unit

21

The Big Interview

Before . . .

Well done! To land an interview is a big accomplishment. Your first reaction will probably be excited relief. Then comes the next thought: “I don’t want to blow it! How can I make sure I nail the interview?” You made a good impression with your application; now you need to follow up with a great personal impression.

You’ve got to prepare. One great strategy is to practice with a mock interview. Before the big day, ask someone in the know to help.

Some people even make a video of themselves in a practice interview so they can see how they come across when they answer questions. Think about the questions your interviewer is most likely to ask. Practice your answers, but be careful to sound natural and not to sound too staged.

It's possible that they'll throw you a curveball and ask a question you never expected. Just stay calm and answer the best you can. Do your homework! Make sure you know about the company and the job responsibilities. Interviewers often ask why you want to work for them. Make sure you have an answer that shows you know about the company.

It's natural to be nervous, but it's important to look confident. You'll feel more confident if you look professional and feel comfortable. Choose clothes that are conservative. Save the tee shirt and jeans for when you get home and need to unwind!

Finally, before you go, make sure you know exactly where the interview is. Sometimes we think we know where something is, but the exact street address can be tricky to find. You do not want to get lost or have to walk very far before your interview. Allow plenty of time to arrive early so you can relax a bit. Never be late! It's important to make a good first impression. Trust us. An interviewer will not be impressed by someone who can't be on time.

DIALOGUE 1: TRACK 53

ALAN: Hey, guess what? I got the call.

LIA: The call? What are you talking about? What call?

ALAN: I got a call about that job I wanted! Remember? You helped me with my résumé. It's the supervisor position, and I've got an interview tomorrow!

Wow, if I get this, it'll be a real feather in my cap. I'm pretty excited.

LIA: That's awesome, Alan. And you've worked there for quite a while, so you've already got your foot in the door. Where's the interview?

ALAN: It's at the head office.

LIA: Oh boy. Where on earth is that?

ALAN: Oh, it's somewhere down Industrial Road. I have the address written down somewhere. I have a pretty good idea of where the office is.

LIA: A pretty good idea? You'd better make sure you know exactly where it is. Industrial Road is pretty long, and there are a lot of cul-de-sacs. Whatever you do, you can't be late! You have only one chance to make a good first impression, and you'll blow it if the interviewer has to wait for you. Being late will not help you nail the job.

ALAN: Yeah, I thought of that. I think I'll drive down to the office tonight and check it out. I'll be more confident in the morning if I know exactly where I'm going, and how long it will take to get there.

LIA: Good plan. Don't forget to leave extra time for traffic in the morning. Have you decided what you're going to wear?

ALAN: I think the company is pretty casual, so I thought I might wear my new jeans. And I bought a new pair of sneakers last week. What do you think?

LIA: Aacckk! No way! If this is a supervisor job, you may need to dress a bit more upscale. Even if jeans are okay on the job, I think you should wear some other pants to the interview. I think you should even wear a suit jacket if you have one. And how about a tie? Even if it's a casual place, you will look very professional to the interviewer.

ALAN: Okay, okay. So, I guess that means no sneakers, too. Well, the good news is that if I don't get this job, maybe I can get a job as a fashion model.

LIA: Haha. Well then at least you won't have to worry about clothes.

Tip 1 Yes, you need to think about how to dress for an interview, but just as important is to think about what you eat before the interview. You'll be sitting pretty close to the hiring manager, so you may want to think carefully before you have onions and garlic for lunch! Also, spinach in your teeth is not a good look for anyone. Be sure to check the mirror before you go out!

VOCABULARY

- ① blow it: ruin your chance to do something
- ① come across: seem to someone
 - confident: sure of yourself
 - conservative: traditional
 - cul-de-sac: a short street that is closed at one end
- ① feather in one's cap: an accomplishment to be proud of
 - first impression: how you seem to someone when he or she first meets you
- ① follow-up: continue with something you started
- ① foot in the door: first step in working toward a goal
 - head office: the main office of a company
- ① in the know: an expert at something
- ① land: get something you've tried for
 - mock: practice
- ① nail: do something perfectly
 - natural: normal
 - on time: arrive when you're supposed to be there, not late!
- ① quite a while: a pretty long time
 - reaction: response

- staged: looking too practiced or memorized
- strategy: plan
- suit jacket: a business-style jacket to wear with pants
- unwind: relax
- ① where on earth: a stronger way of saying where

Usage reminder: Pretty can mean beautiful, but it's also an informal way of saying quite or rather.

For example:

Pretty excited is the same as quite excited.

Pretty casual is the same as rather casual.

PRONUNCIATION POINTER

:

Practice: In spoken English, going to sounds like gonna. (What are you gonna wear?)

Got to (must) sounds like gotta. (You've gotta prepare.)

Fun Fact!

During a job interview, an interviewer asked if the candidate would like some coffee. The candidate said, “That sounds great! Do you mind if I eat my doughnut with that?” Um . . . he did not get the job.

During . . .

:

You made it on time and you look great! The interviewer brings you into a room and, wham! There's an entire panel waiting to interview you. You may have expected to speak with just one person, but sometimes a company likes to have an entire group of people ask questions. Wow. It may be intimidating, but don't let this throw you. You are well prepared, you've done your research, and you've done a dry run. You're ready!

Actually, the interview begins as soon as you meet your interviewer. It's usually customary to shake hands; the interviewer will probably offer his or her hand first. A firm handshake shows confidence (just don't break any fingers!). Look the person directly in the eye with a friendly smile on your face. Don't sit down until the interviewer offers you a seat. And make sure you remember to turn off your cell phone! Leaving it on during an interview is a big no-no, even if it's set to vibrate. (Very often people can hear the vibrating sound. This is almost as bad as letting the phone ring.) We don't even want to think about this, but if you forget to turn the phone off and it rings, apologize, and turn the phone off immediately. Never answer your phone during a job interview!

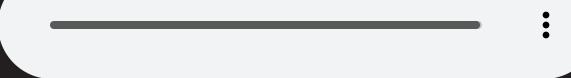

Different hiring people have different styles of interviewing job candidates. Some will try to make you feel comfortable, and they may even sit in a chair next to you. Others will sit behind a big desk and have you sit on a small, uncomfortable chair. This can sometimes be intimidating, but the interviewer may just want to see how you handle a situation like this. Don't let it shake your confidence!

During the interview, the interviewer may talk about the job and ask you about your experience. But he or she may also ask some tricky questions. For example, a popular job interview question is to ask, "What is your biggest strength?" This is a great time to talk about something you've done well in the past. You may say something like, "I think I'm a great team player. Even when I'm in charge, I know it takes everyone working together to do a great job." The next question may be, "What is your biggest weakness?" This one isn't so easy. It's not a good idea to talk about a real weakness. You'll never get the job if you say, "Well, sometimes it's hard for me to get to work on time." A good idea is to think of something that can actually be a strength.

For example, you might say, “I really enjoy helping my co-workers with their projects, so I try to be careful not to take on too many extra duties.”

Near the end of the interview, the hiring manager will probably ask if you have any questions. Make sure that you do! Asking a question about the job shows interest in the position and the company. It’s also a chance for you to see if this job is a good fit for you.

DIALOGUE 2: TRACK 54

INTERVIEWER: It’s nice to meet you, Alan. I see that you’ve been with our company for a while now, haven’t you? Why are you interested in the supervisor position?

ALAN: Well, I’ve really enjoyed my job so far, but I feel ready to take on more responsibilities. I think I have a lot to offer the company.

INTERVIEWER: Have you ever had any supervisory experience?

ALAN: Well, when my supervisor has a day off, he asks me to help manage the restaurant. That includes supervising the other workers—you know, answering any questions they have, making sure they get their breaks . . . responsibilities like that.

INTERVIEWER: Yes, your supervisor speaks very highly of you in his letter of recommendation. Well, Alan, can you think of a time when there was a problem you had to resolve when you were in charge? And tell us how you managed the situation.

ALAN: Well, I can’t say I’ve ever had any problems with my co-workers. But I guess sometimes, if an order wasn’t exactly right, a customer might get angry and nasty. I just made sure that I stayed calm. I listened politely to his or her complaint, and I redid the order. I always apologized for the mix-up. A lot of times I'd throw in a coupon to show goodwill. That usually seemed to do the trick.

INTERVIEWER: Customers can sometimes be tricky. Sounds like you handled those situations very well. It's really important to us that our supervisor is able to deal in a friendly way with customer problems. You probably also know that we're doing more and more work on the computer. Keeping spreadsheets is an important part of the job. How are your computer skills? Are you familiar with Excel?

ALAN: I do use my home computer a lot, but I haven't needed to use Excel. I'm pretty good at figuring out computer stuff, and I catch on pretty quickly, so I'm sure I can get up to speed with that program. No problem.

INTERVIEWER: Great. Well, do you have any questions for me?

ALAN: Yes. I know that the company is growing and opening new locations in different cities. If I'm offered the job, where will I be based?

INTERVIEWER: Good question. I am glad you reminded me. The position is open in the Eldred location, but we really need someone who can be flexible. We'll want this person to fill in at our other restaurants when another supervisor is on vacation. Would you be able to do that?

ALAN: Absolutely. I'd really enjoy getting to know different locations.

INTERVIEWER: Great. Well, Alan, thank you for your time. We'll be in touch as soon as we make a decision.

ALAN: Thank you for taking the time to talk to me.

Interviewers cannot, by law, ask you certain questions.
Here are some questions an interviewer is not allowed to ask:

- What are your religious practices?

TIP 2

- How old are you?
- Where were you born?
- Do you have an illness or disability?
- Are you married?
- Do you have children?

TIP 3

Although some of the above questions are not allowed, an interviewer can ask the following questions:

- Are you able to perform all the physical duties of this job?
- After we hire you, can you provide proof that you can work in the United States?
- Will you be able to work during all of the scheduled days and times of this job?

VOCABULARY

- apologize: say you're sorry about something
- based: have as your main location
- candidate: someone being considered for a job
- ① catch on: learn
- ① do the trick: get a result you want
- ① dry run: practice
- duty: responsibility, something you have to do
- ① fill in: substitute for someone who is not there
- firm: strong, but not hard
- flexible: able to make changes easily
- ① get up to speed: learn what you need to do something
- goodwill: friendliness
- ① have a lot to offer: be very good at something that can help someone
- hiring manager: the person who is in charge of hiring a new employee
- in charge: in control

- intimidating: making you feel unsure about yourself
- ① in touch: be in contact by phone, letter, or e-mail
- nasty: mean; unpleasant
- ① no-no: something that you cannot do
- offer someone a seat: ask someone to sit down
- panel: a group of people who will make a decision
- resolve: settle; solve
- ① shake one's confidence: make you feel unsure about yourself
- speak highly of: say very good things about
- spreadsheets: a way of keeping information
- strength: something you do well
- ① team player: someone who works well with others to get a job done
- ① throw in: add
- ① throw you: make you feel nervous
- vibrate: move very fast; shake

GRAMMAR REMINDER 1: The Present Perfect Simple Tense—Questions

To make a question in the present perfect simple tense, just switch the word order used in an affirmative statement. If needed, add the question word at the beginning.

Correct Example:

How long have you worked for the company?

Not:

How long you have worked for the company?

Sometimes we add in the word ever for extra emphasis.

Example: Have you ever had any supervisory experience?

GRAMMAR REMINDER 2: The Present Perfect Simple Tense—Negatives

Present perfect simple tense negatives are made by adding the word not between have or has and the past participle. (Don't forget those contractions!)

Example: I haven't needed to use Excel.

After . . .

:

It's always a nerve-racking time after an interview. You keep thinking about the questions and your answers. How did it go? Why didn't I say this? Why didn't I say that? You may get a call asking you to come back for a second interview. This is a good sign! It shows that you are one of a few people that they are interested in. They may want you to talk to other people you'll be working with. This is a good time to mention that great thing you forgot in the first interview!

Although a company should write or call to let you know if you got the job, not all of them do this. If you don't hear anything for a while, it may be that you didn't get the job. It's fine to call the hiring manager and ask if they've made a decision. You can even ask for feedback on the interview. Knowing what things went well and what things made them decide to hire someone else can help you prepare for future interviews.

Sometimes, after you've given up all hope, you may get a letter or phone call out of the blue offering you that job. We knew you could do it!

DIALOGUE 3: TRACK 55

— :

LIA: Hey, Alan, did you get that supervisor's job?

ALAN: I don't know. I haven't heard anything yet, and it's been 10 days now!

LIA: Don't worry. Sometimes it can take ages before you hear anything. How do you think it went?

ALAN: I think it went okay. I seemed to have most of the qualities they were looking for. The only thing is I haven't had much experience with Excel, and that's what they use for all their reports.

LIA: Well, that's something you can learn. It's actually pretty easy to work with. I can show you sometime if you'd like. I use it all the time in my job.

ALAN: Thanks. I'll take you up on that if they offer me the job.

LIA: By the way, did you wear your sneakers and jeans?

ALAN: No. I took your advice and wore a jacket and tie. Hey, maybe they didn't like my tie!

There are usually a lot of people who interview for each job. You can make yourself stand out by looking and sounding professional. You will also stand out if you send an e-mail or short note thanking the interviewer and reminding him or her why you would be such a good choice for the job. You'll also stand out if you have spinach in your teeth. But we don't recommend that!

VOCABULARY

- ① don't hear anything: not receive any information
- feedback: opinions about how you acted in a situation
- nerve-racking (also spelled nerve-wracking): very stressful
- ① out of the blue: in a very unexpected way
- qualities: things that make you a good worker or person
- ① stand out: be noticed
- ① take someone up on something: accept someone's invitation to do something

MORE FUN WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS: On the Job

- cream of the crop: the best of the best
Our company only interviews the cream of the crop from the top universities.
- work like a dog: work very hard
He wanted to make a good impression on his boss, so he worked like a dog to finish the report early.
- get the job done: accomplish what needs to be done
Mrs. Robinson could always rely on Ramon to get the job done when others were having trouble.
- all in a day's work: just a normal part of the job
Dealing with angry customers is all in a day's work for people who work in the mall.
- put your best foot forward: do your very best at something
When you arrive at your new job, it's a good idea to put your best foot forward and be helpful and friendly to all your co-workers.

Review: Units 19–21

VOCABULARY

Fill in the blanks in the paragraph. Use the words below to help you.

reference interview downsize current let go candidate strategy
first impressions skills
walk out

You have the job of your dreams, but unfortunately the company you work for is forced to (1) _____, and you've been (2) _____. Don't panic. You need to keep a cool head and think of a good (3) _____ to get yourself another job! Don't leave on a bad note and (4) _____ in anger; you may need a (5) _____ from your (6) _____ employer saying why you are such a good (7) for a new position. Practice before going to an (8) _____, especially if it's been a while since you've done this. Make sure they know what (9) _____ you have and remember to dress professionally. (10) _____ are really important!

Answer Key

INFORMAL LANGUAGE

Look at how these expressions are used in a sentence. Can you explain what they mean?

11. Don't worry. I promise I'll keep in touch when I move to another state for my new job.
12. Those ladies in the office never seem to do any work! They spend the whole day yakking about nothing.
13. I'm afraid my Internet is down, so I'll need to send the documents by snail mail.
14. You really should do your homework about a company before you decide to work for them.
15. Don't let the cold weather get you down. It'll soon be spring.
16. I was really lucky to find that new position by word of mouth before it was even posted on the job site.
17. Talking to him is a real waste of time. He never listens to my ideas.
18. Once you get your foot in the door of a company, you can start to move up.
19. Sometimes in an interview, they will ask tricky questions to try to throw you.
20. It is especially important to be a good team player in a small company.

Answer Key

GRAMMAR

Choose the correct answer from those provided to fill in the gaps.

SAMUEL: Hi, Philip. What's up?

PHILIP: Well, there's some good news and some bad news. You know that I (21) (worked/have worked) at Jo's café for 10 years now.

SAMUEL: Sure. (22) (Have you decided/Did you decided) to leave?

PHILIP: No. I (23) (hasn't quit/haven't quit). Actually, it's the opposite: I've been offered a promotion.

SAMUEL: That's great. Are you going to take them up on their offer?

PHILIP: Are you kidding? Of course I am! I'll get paid more, and if I (24) (will earn/earn) more money, my wife and I (25) (will travel/travel) to see family more often. The bad news is that I'll need that raise to pay off the new fine I owe.

SAMUEL: What new fine? (26) (Did you speed/Were you speeding) in that fast car of yours again?

PHILIP: No. I (27) (didn't go/wasn't going) too fast. But I (28) (did chat/was chatting) on the cell phone while I (29) (drived/was driving). I was so excited, I couldn't wait to tell my wife. Then the police (30) (pulled me over/has pulled me over).

SAMUEL: Oops . . .

PHILIP: Yes, oops. Now I've got to go and tell my wife where my first raise is going!

SAMUEL: Good luck!

Answer Key

Answers to Review Activities

Review Answers: Units 1–3

VOCABULARY

1. sale
2. yard
3. platform
4. apply
5. sunroof
6. tricky
7. fare
8. rush hour
9. skip
10. fine

Return to Review

INFORMAL LANGUAGE

11. headed: going
Hi, John. Sorry I can't stop; I'm headed to class right now
12. drive someone nuts: doing something very annoying (or being annoyed)
My husband never puts the top back on the toothpaste. It's driving me nuts.

13. hang around: spend time with friends with no special activity, or just wait around
 - I love just hanging around with my friends at the mall.
 - I hate hanging around the doctor's office, waiting for my turn.
14. fed up: tired of something
I'm really fed up with getting up at 6 a.m. for my job.
15. pull over: move the car to the side of the road
I didn't think I was driving too fast, but the police car's flashing lights meant I should pull over anyway.
16. change your mind: make a different decision from your first one
I was going to cut my hair really short, but I changed my mind because it looks better long.
17. catch the bus: get on a bus
I catch the bus every morning at 7 a.m.
18. see the sights: visit attractions in a new place
I love to see the sights when I visit a new town.
19. a nightmare: a very bad situation
The traffic in this city is a real nightmare; there are too many cars.
20. hail a cab: signal that you want a taxi
If you want to hail a cab, put out your hand and shout, “Taxi!”

Return to Review

GRAMMAR

21. b
22. d
23. c

24. c
25. c
26. a
27. b
28. a
29. c
30. d

Return to Review

Review Answers: Units 4–6

VOCABULARY

1. vegetarian
2. cashier
3. gourmet
4. party
5. gadget
6. spotless
7. couch potato
8. dawn
9. sunscreen
10. sunburn

Return to Review

INFORMAL LANGUAGE

11. d

I'd love to buy a new TV to watch the game, but my wife would be angry because it would break the bank at the moment.

12. i
My boss always has something to beef about. I wish he'd just let me get on with my job in peace.
13. b
Sorry, I can't stop and talk. I want to get home to catch a game on TV.
14. f
This new computer program is really easy. It makes writing this report a piece of cake.
15. j
Morning, everyone! I've brought doughnuts to the office for breakfast. Don't be shy. Dig in!
16. g
I like to stay in shape, so I make sure I exercise regularly and eat lots of fruit and vegetables.
17. c
It's fun to play a game of soccer with friends, but sometimes I like to do my own thing and go for a jog alone.
18. h
If you must go jogging alone, make sure you run in a public place, and keep an eye open at all times for problems.
19. a
I'm so glad I got my new job. I'm a happy camper now!
20. e
I hate carrying heavy suitcases. When I go away, I try to travel light and take as few things as possible.

Return to Review

GRAMMAR

X 21. Wow, this burger is smelling great.

Correct version: This burger smells great. (Smell is a stative verb.)

X 22. What would you like: tea or coffee? I like coffee.

Correct version: I'd like coffee. (The question is asking which you would like to drink at the moment.)

✓ 23. This is correct. (The question is asking what you like in general.)

✓ 24. This is correct. (Wine is a noncount noun.)

✓ 25. Two glasses of wine is very expensive.

Correct version: Two glasses of wine are very expensive. (Wine is a noncount noun, but here the wine has been poured into two glasses. Therefore, the word acts as a count noun.)

X 26. Arice is a good choice with seafood.

Correct version: Rice is a good choice with seafood. (Rice is a noncount noun, which does not need the indefinite article a.)

X 27. He cans swim well.

Correct version: He can swim well. (Can is a modal verb and is followed by a verb in its base form.)

X 28. I can played soccer well when I was younger.

Correct version: I could play soccer well when I was young. (The past of can is could, followed by a verb in the base form.)

✓ 29. This is correct. (Pour is a regular verb, so it takes ed as its ending.)

X 30. I loved my teacher in first grade. She teached me many wonderful things.

Correct version: I loved my teacher in first grade. She taught me many wonderful things. (The verb to teach is an irregular verb; the past tense is taught.)

Return to Review

Review Answers: Units 7–9

VOCABULARY

1. f
2. j
3. e
4. h
5. i
6. d
7. b
8. a
9. c
10. g
11. relocating
12. settle down
13. appliances
14. junk mail
15. direct deposit
16. denominations
17. stereotype
18. stroller
19. bargains
20. rain check

Return to Review

INFORMAL LANGUAGE

21. out of luck: don't have a chance
Sorry Alfredo, it's not going to happen!
22. off the hook: not held responsible for something
I will not hold you responsible for coming in late—this time!
23. get away from it all: leave responsibilities and relax
I need to take a vacation and not think about work!
24. big bucks: a lot of money
Fred must be earning a lot of money to buy such a beautiful new car!
25. money to burn: have a lot of extra money
You must have a lot of extra money because it costs a lot to go on vacation—especially more than one time!
26. takes some getting used to: need to become accustomed to
It may take you some time to start enjoying life in the country if you lived in the city before.
27. look like a million bucks: look GREAT!
Julia, you look great in that beautiful dress!
28. chunk of change: large amount of money
The meal cost me a large amount of money.
29. headache: something complicated and annoying
Driving through the city is really hard, because it is so large and it takes so long!
30. slapped with: charged for We'll get a huge phone bill, because you spend so much time talking!

Return to Review

GRAMMAR

CARRIE: Hi, Mike. Did you enjoyed your vacation?

MIKE: Vacation? It weren't a vacation. Everything possible went wrong.

CARRIE: Did it rained?

MIKE: Yes, it rained all the time. I spent most of the time drinking coffee in cafés!

CARRIE: Did you visited many places?

MIKE: No, I didn't went anywhere. It was just too awful to go out. We wasn't happy campers.

CARRIE: Well, was it a nice hotel?

MIKE: No, it was really old and very expensive.

CARRIE: How many money did you paid?

MIKE: You don't want to know. Way too much! The only good thing is I spent fewer money than if we was able to go out!

They should say:

CARRIE: Hi, Mike. Did you enjoy your vacation?

MIKE: Vacation? It wasn't a vacation. Everything possible went wrong.

CARRIE: Did it rain?

MIKE: Yes, it rained all the time. I spent most of the time drinking coffee in cafés!

CARRIE: Did you visit many places?

MIKE: No, I didn't go anywhere. It was just too awful to go out. We weren't happy campers.

CARRIE: Well, was it a nice hotel?

MIKE: No, it was really old and very expensive.

CARRIE: How much money did you pay?

MIKE: You don't want to know. Way too much! The only good thing is I spent less money than if we were able to go out!

Return to Review

Review Answers: Units 10–12

VOCABULARY

1. victim
2. unconscious
3. witness
4. symptoms
5. sneeze
6. ache
7. co-pay
8. poke
9. root canal
10. dilate

Return to Review

INFORMAL LANGUAGE

11. I thought the new job would be better than the old one, but actually it was out of the frying pan and into the fire.
My new job was worse than the old one.
12. Poor Aunt Hilda is in bad shape after falling and breaking her arm. I should go and visit her tomorrow.
Aunt Hilda is in very bad health after her accident.
13. You look the picture of health after your vacation in the Caribbean!
You look so healthy after your vacation.
14. I love getting new projects at work, especially interesting ones that I can really sink my teeth into.
I love projects that make me excited
15. He was so lucky to survive the accident. He escaped by the skin of his teeth.
It was a serious accident but he got out just in time.
16. It's wonderful to see you after such a long time. You're a sight for sore eyes!
It makes me really happy to see you after so long.
17. His mother turned a blind eye when her son pretended he was doing his homework while he played on the computer.
His mother knew he was playing on the computer but she pretended he was working.
18. Poor Tony. After he ate that huge Thanksgiving meal he was as sick as a dog
His stomach was so upset that Tony was very sick.
19. It's no good. I just don't understand these computers. I guess you just can't teach an old dog new tricks
! I'm so used to doing things the old way that this new system is too hard for me to learn.
20. The neighbor's kids are so noisy. They fight like cats and dogs all the time. The kids fight or argue a lot.

Return to Review

GRAMMAR

21. have to (shows that something is necessary)
22. should (strong advice)
23. could (a polite way to request something)
24. should (strong advice)
25. don't have to (something is not necessary)
26. have to (The word will shows this is something necessary in the future, so you need to use the phrase have to.)
27. had to (something was necessary in the past)
28. could (used for past ability)
29. would (to express what you might do in a certain situation)
30. could (expresses possibility)

Return to Review

Review Answers: Units 13–15

VOCABULARY

1. reliable
2. gossip
3. hobby
4. pothole

5. litter
6. amateur
7. paparazzi
8. bugs
9. fragile
10. knit

Return to Review

INFORMAL LANGUAGE

11. scope out: explore; find out about things
Before their camping trip, they scoped out places to put their tent.
12. give someone a hand: help someone John gave the old lady a hand carrying her heavy bags to her car.
13. grab a quick bite: have a quick, casual small meal or snack
Sue grabbed a quick bite between classes.
14. keep an eye on: watch in a protective way
The mother kept an eye on her children at the park.
15. pricey: expensive
The designer bag was too pricey, so she didn't buy it.
16. catch up: learn all the news from someone
They hadn't seen each other in a long time, so it was great to catch up.
17. treat to: pay for as a special event or reward
The kid was so well behaved that his mom treated him to ice cream after dinner.
18. dying to: want to do something very much
They were dying to see the popular new movie on Saturday night.

19. Plan B: a second-choice plan
The movie was sold out, so they went to Plan B and saw a different film.
20. running behind: late The bus was late, so she was running behind for her meeting.

Return to Review

GRAMMAR

21. between
22. in
23. on
24. in
25. near
- ✗ 26. I'm not wanting fries with my burger.
Correct version: I don't want fries with my burger. (Want is a stative verb and is not used in the continuous form.)
- ✗ 27. I meet some friends this afternoon.
Correct version: I am meeting some friends this afternoon. (You need to use the present continuous tense to show something that will happen in the near future. You could also use going to here to show a plan. I am going to meet some friends this afternoon.)
- ✗ 28. We read a really good book at our book club this month.
Correct version: We are reading a really good book at our book club this month. (You need to use the present continuous tense to show an action happening now.)
- ✗ 29. You are meeting your friends this afternoon?
Correct version: Are you meeting your friends this afternoon? (You need to reverse the word order to show a question.)

✓ 30. No errors

Return to Review

Review Answers: Units 16–18

VOCABULARY

1. propose
2. stroll
3. elope
4. pack
5. cringe
6. soothe
7. overdo
8. choked
9. dribble
10. crawl

Return to Review

INFORMAL LANGUAGE

11. e
John, you are terrible! Every pretty girl who walks by catches your eye.

12. h
The first time I saw my wife, I chatted her up because I was sure she was someone special.
13. j
I always look forward to going out on a Friday night so I can let my hair down and have fun after a busy week.
14. g
Have you heard the news? Toby and Ann are going to tie the knot at last!
15. i
Let's all chip in together to buy a really nice gift for Fiona's new baby.
16. a
OK, I'm all ears. I just can't wait to hear about your new boyfriend!
17. f
Alan, you really look down today. What's going on?
18. d
It's going to be a tough match against the All Stars, but I want everyone to give it their best shot. We can win if we try our hardest!
19. b
Have you heard? Janet is eating for two now. The baby is due in November.
20. c
My daughter and I both wear glasses. It runs in the family.

Return to Review

GRAMMAR: Phrasal Verbs

21. go out: meet and spend time with someone
22. let someone down: disappoint someone

23. make up: forgive and be friends again
24. put up with: have patience to ignore something annoying
25. split up: separate; no longer be together

GRAMMAR: Will or Going To

26. is going to (The black clouds indicate something you can see is definitely going to happen.)
27. am going to (This is something you have already decided.)
28. will (This indicates a decision made right now.)
29. will (It's a fact!)
30. are going to (This is something you have already decided.)

Return to Review

Review Answers: Units 19–21

VOCABULARY

1. downsize
2. let go
3. strategy
4. walk out
5. reference
6. current
7. candidate

8. interview
9. skills
10. first impressions

Return to Review

INFORMAL LANGUAGE

11. in touch: connected by talking or writing
I promise I'll phone, write, or e-mail you.
12. yak: have a very casual conversation, usually about nothing
They spend the whole day talking about nothing.
13. snail mail: the postal service
I'll have to send them in the regular post, not by e-mail.
14. do your homework: look carefully to find out about something
You need to find out as much as you can about this company.
15. get you down: make you feel discouraged
Don't let the cold weather depress you. It will soon get warm.
16. word of mouth: hearing something from a friend
A friend told me about the job before it was posted.
17. waste of time: something that is not worth doing
There is no point talking to him because he doesn't listen.
18. foot in the door: first step in working toward a goal
When you start to work in a place, even in a low-level position, it is a good start that could help you get a better position someday.
19. throw you: make you feel nervous
Sometimes they will ask difficult questions to see if you can answer them under stress.
20. team player: someone who works well with others to get a job done
You need to be able to work well with others in a small company.

GRAMMAR

21. have worked
22. have you decided
23. haven't quit
24. earn
25. will travel
26. were you speeding
27. wasn't going
28. was chatting
29. was driving
30. pulled me over

Return to Review

Appendix A

AUDIO CD TRACKS

Audio Track	Unit	Dialogue	Transcript
1			Title and Intro
2	1	1	Hi There!
3	1	2	Meet the Neighbors
4	1	3	Those Crazy Kids!
5	2	1	Riding the Bus
6	2	2	Going Underground: The Subway
7	2	3	Hey, Taxi
8	3	1	Everybody Loves the DMV
9	3	2	Let's Go for a Ride!
10	3	3	Oops. Sorry, Officer
11	4	1	Zipping Through the Drive-Thru
12	4	2	A Little More Upscale
13	4	3	Is This What I Ordered?
14	5	1	Play Ball!
15	5	2	Members Only! Joining a Gym
16	5	3	Extreme Sports
17	6	1	Day Tripping
18	6	2	Going Wild
19	6	3	Fancy-Schmancy
20	7	1	To Buy or Not to Buy; That Is the Question
21	7	2	City Life or the 'Burbs
22	7	3	Nothing but Bills!
23	8	1	Stash the Cash! Get Started with Banking
24	8	2	Making the Big Bucks
25	9	1	It's All at the Mall
26	9	2	Food, Glorious Food!
27	9	3	Saving Some Dough
28	10	1	HELP! FIRE!
29	10	2	HELP! HE'S NOT BREATHING!
30	10	3	HELP! STRANGER DANGER!

Audio Track	Unit	Dialogue	Transcript
31	11	1	Under the Weather
32	11	2	Health Insurance: What's Up with That?
33	12	1	Open Wide
34	12	2	Let's See
35	12	3	WOOF!
36	13	1	Where Am I?
37	13	2	At Your Service
38	14	1	What's Happening?
39	14	2	See the Capital . . . and the Capitol
40	15	1	Helping Hands, Giving Back
41	15	2	Good Citizen? Good Neighbor!
42	16	1	The Dating Game
43	16	2	Will You Marry Me?
44	16	3	It's Over!
45	17	1	And Baby Makes Three
46	17	2	That Bundle of Joy
47	18	1	End-of-Life Issues
48	18	2	Funeral Customs
49	19	1	Hello? Hello? Can You Hear Me Now?
50	19	2	The Easy Way
51	20	1	The Perfect Job
52	20	2	Paperwork!
53	21	1	Before . . .
54	21	2	During . . .
55	21	3	After . . .

Appendix B

COMMON IRREGULAR VERBS

Base Form	Simple Past	Past Participle
be	was/were	been beat	beat	beat
become	became	become begin	began	begun
bet	bet	bet
bite	bit	bitten
blow	blew	blown
break	broke	broken
bring	brought	brought build	built	built
buy	bought	bought
catch	caught	caught
choose	chose	chosen
come	came	come
cost	cost	cost
cut	cut	cut
do	did	done
draw	drew	drawn
drink	drank	drunk
drive	drove	driven
eat	ate	eaten
fall	fell	fallen
fight	fought	fought
find	found	found
fit	fit	fit
fly	flew	flown
forget	forgot	forgotten
forgive	forgave	forgiven
get	got	gotten/got

Base Form	Simple Past	Past Participle
give	gave	given
go	went	gone
grow	grew	grown
have	had	had hear	heard	heard
hide	hid	hidden
hurt	hurt	hurt
keep	kept	kept
know	knew	known
leave	left	left
let	let	let lose	lost	lost
make	made	made
meet	met	met
pay	paid	paid
put	put	put
quit	quit	quit
read (pronounced "reed")	read (pronounced "red")	read (pronounced "red") ride	rode	ridden
ring	rang	rung
run	ran	run
say	said	said
see	saw	seen
sell	sold	sold
send	sent	sent
set	set	set
shake	shook	shaken

Base Form	Simple Past	Past Participle
show	Showed	shown
sing	sang	sung
sit	sat	sat
sleep	slept	slept
speak	spoke	spoken
split	split	split
stand	stood	stood
steal	stole	stolen
stick	stuck	stuck
swim	swam	swum
take	took	taken
teach	taught	taught
tell	told	told
think	thought	thought
throw	threw	thrown understand	understood	understood
wake	woke	woken
win	won	won
write	wrote	written

Appendix C

VOCABULARY

A

ablaze, 168 absolutely, 37, 120
a bunch, 7 access, 109 accomplishments, 220 accurately, 180
ache, 106
achy, 106
acknowledging, 155 acronym, 207 ad, 83 additions, 128
add up, 128
adorable, 185 advance, 55
advance notice, 65 adventurous streak, 48 afford, 140 affordable, 214 ages, 214 aggressive, 134 aisle, 86
a little while, 110
all ears, 168
all I know is, 102
all-inclusive, 57
allowed, 23
all sorts of, 46
all your ducks in a row, 214
amateur, 140
amazed, 128 amenities, 57
Americanize, 220
anchor store, 83
animal control officer, 134 anniversary, 168 annual fee, 46 answer, 203

anything and everything, 191 apartment complexes, 128 apologize, 37, 229 apparent, 185 appetizer, 34
appliances, 65 application, 203, 214
apply, 18
arcade, 57 architecture, 145 arm candy, 163 arrange, 15 art form, 220 artificial, 86 arts groups, 140 ashes, 195 assets, 151
at home, 128
ATM, 75 attractions, 48
audiobooks, 128
audition, 140
avenue, 128 avoiding, 180 awesome, 57

B

baby-proofed, 185 baby shower, 185 bachelor, 168
bachelorette, 168 backstroke, 37 bad day, 37 bad hair days, 18 bad news, 18 bad rap, 30 bagel, 168 bait, 55 balance, 75
balancing, 151 ban, 203
barbecue, 5, 163 bargain, 89
barking, 5 based, 229
basil, 86 beats, 168 beautiful, 220

beauts, 220
beef about, 37 begged, 168 belongings, 191
bended knee, 168 benefits, 109, 214 bet, 114 better half, 163
bff, 168
big bills, 78 big box store, 83
big bucks, 78 big deal, 42
big ticket item, 89
big time, 168
big wigs, 220 bilingual, 214 billboard, 168 bill, 70
bills, 78
birthing center, 180 blind dates, 163
blister, 55
blizzard, 207 block, 5 blow it, 225 Bluetooth, 203 body, 195
boost morale, 151 booth, 19
bottle-fed, 185
bounce a check, 75
bowl of cereal, 203 box office, 140 branch, 83
brand-new, 55 brave soul, 55 break, 163
break up, 172
breakup, 172
breaking in, 55, 102 breaking the bank, 34 breast feeding, 185 breed, 120
bridal registry, 169 bride, 169
bring up, 191 bringing home the bacon, 78

broadcast, 207
browsing, 145
bucks, 21
buddy, 53
budget, 169
bugs, 145
building code, 128 bulky, 128 bundle of joy, 185
bundle of services, 203
bungee jumping, 48
'burbs, 68
burgers and dogs, 5
burial, 195 burst, 155 bus stop, 10 bus trips, 134

C

cab, 15
cabbage, 78
cabbie, 15
cable, 207
Caesarean section, 180
calculate, 180
campfire, 55 cancer, 191
candidate, 229
can't be bothered, 57 can't stand the sight of, 172 can't wait, 140 capital, 145
capitalize on, 214
capitol, 145
carded, 163
cardio, 46 care center, 151
carpentry, 151
carpool, 145 carry, 83
cash back, 75
cashier, 30
cash your check, 78
casket, 195
casual, 2 cataracts, 118
catch a movie, 163
catches your eye, 163

catch the bus or train, 11 catch the game, 42
catch up, 140
catch you later, 7 cat people, 134 caught fire, 97
CD, 75
cell phone, 97 cemetery, 195 central location, 128 change, 78
change your mind, 5
chaplain, 191 charity, 195 chart, 109 chartering, 57 chat, 23
chatting someone up, 163 cheating on, 172
check, 78 checked in, 128 checked out, 106 check in, 34
checking, 75
check out, 46, 128
checkup, 114
chicken, 48
chicken nuggets, 30 chillin', 7 chilly, 19
chip in together, 169 choking, 169 chronic, 191
chunk, 114
chunk of change, 65
cinema, 140 city person, 68 classifieds, 214
cleaning, 114
C-note, 78
cocktails, 163
code enforcement people, 128 coffin, 195
colic, 185
come across, 225 comes with the territory, 155 comfy, 114 committed, 120

communication, 203
commuter, 10, 128
compact, 21
compensation package, 214 competitively, 42 complex, 145 complicated, 10 compliment, 86 compliments of the house, 37 compose, 207 concerned, 118 concession stand, 42 concierge, 58
concourse, 145 condition, 109 condolences, 195 confident, 225 confusing, 134 congressional representative, 145 conscious, 100 conscious of, 30 conservative, 225 consider, 65
contractions, 180
contribution, 155 convenient, 19, 180
convertible, 21 convince, 214
cooped up, 185 cop, 23
co-pay, 109
corner, 128 correct, 37
couch, 140
couch potato, 43
cougars, 163 counseling, 172 counselor, 58
count me in, 48, 128 count me out, 48 count on, 172 country, 21, 68
coupon, 89 cover, 109
cover letter, 220
CPR, 100
crafts, 86, 134 crawling, 185

crazy, 7 crazy about, 13
creamy, 86 creature, 120
credit rating, 70 credit score, 70
cremation, 195
cringe, 163
critical, 97 critter, 53
crosswalk, 128
crunchy, 86 crush, 214 cul-de-sac, 225
cultural activities, 140 culture vulture, 140 cured, 191
current, 214
cutoff date, 134

D

damage, 21 dance numbers, 140
dance troupe, 140
date, 163
dating services, 163
dawn, 48
day trips, 53 deadline, 89
deal, 53 deal with, 109 deck, 128 decline, 214 deducted, 109 definitely, 180, 203 delivery, 180 delivery room, 180 demonstrate, 151
denominations, 78
department store, 83 depend on, 191
de-stress, 169 details, 120
diagnosis, 109, 191
dig in, 43
dilate, 118
dime, 78
dinner out, 34

dinosaur, 207
direct deposit, 75
disabilities, 134 discouraged, 140 dispatch, 15 dispatcher, 97 display, 97
divorce, 172
DMV, 19
DNR order, 192 document, 155 dog people, 134 dome, 145
don't hear anything, 232 door busters, 89
dorm, 164 dorm food, 164 dose, 110 do the trick, 229 double date, 164 double whammy, 75 download, 203
down payment, 65 downside, 58, 65
downsize, 220
do your homework, 214, 225 do your own thing, 46, 145 dozen, 86
dreaded, 70 dream, 30 dribbling, 185 drift, 48 drive-thru, 30 driving someone nuts, 5 drop by, 5, 46
drop in, 46 drop off, 128 drug, 110 drugstore, 83
dry run, 229
dude, 7
due, 70, 118
due date, 128, 180 dust bunnies, 185 dusty, 207 duty, 230
dying to, 145

E

early-bird special, 34
earpiece, 203 ears of corn, 86 eating for two, 180 economy, 21 efficient, 10 elect, 214 elements, 185 eliminated, 220
ellipticals, 46
elope, 169
employee, 110 employer, 106
employment agencies, 215 enclosed mall, 83
end-of-life issues, 192
end of the road, 172 end of your rope, 172 engaged, 169 engagement ring, 169 entered, 102 entertaining, 13 entitled to, 155
entrée, 34 equivalent, 65
ER, 97 errand, 65 errors, 220 essay, 207 essential, 97
ethnic cuisine, 30 etiquette, 203
euphemism, 195
exact change, 10 exchanging vows, 169
excluded, 214 excursion, 58 exhausted, 31 exhibit, 145 expectant mothers, 180 expiration date, 89 exposed, 114
Express Mail, 129
extra pair of eyes, 220

F

face it, 37

face-to-face, 203 fact of life, 86 fairy tale, 169 fallen for, 169 fancy, 58
fancy-schmancy, 58
farecard, 13, 15
farmers' market, 86
feather in one's cap, 225 features, 203
fed up, 19, 214
feedback, 232
feeding tube, 192 feel like, 48 fees, 75 felt bad, 220 feral cat, 134 ferry, 53 fertilizer, 86
fiancé, 169
fiancée, 169 field, 151 figure, 128 figured out, 120 fill in, 230 filling, 115 film buff, 140
film industry, 140
fine, 23
fine print, 46 firm, 155, 230
first appearances, 220
first impression, 225
first step, 214
first thing, 120
fit in, 145
fitness center, 58
five-star, 58
flashing, 23, 34 flat rate, 46 flexibility, 65 flexible, 230
flight plans, 128 flip phone, 203
floor plan, 145
flu, 106
fluently, 214
follow up, 225

food court, 83 food pantry, 151 foot, 145
foot in the door, 225
forceps, 180 form, 220 formula, 185 fortune, 78
Founding Fathers, 65 fragile, 145
frames, 118
free, 34
freebie, 115
free speech, 155
fruit cup, 31 frustrating, 19
full price, 140 function, 203 funds, 75 funeral, 195
funeral home, 195 furry, 121
fussy, 185
fuzzy, 118

G

gadget, 34
gear, 55
gender, 180
general practitioner, 106 generic drug, 110
get a good picture, 97 get around to, 145
get away from it all, 68
get back together, 172 get carried away, 75 get hitched, 169
get involved, 151
get one's affairs in order, 192 get out of the house, 185 get over, 172
get picked, 155 get the hang of, 155 getting back on one's feet, 151 getting paid peanuts, 214 get together, 164
get up to speed, 230 get you down, 214

gift card, 83
give it a shot, 220 give it your best shot, 172 give me, 53
give someone a hand, 128
giving back, 151
glaucoma, 118
glide, 48
glider, 48 globe, 214 glorious, 86
glum, 83
go-between, 151 go hungry, 134
go in different directions, 172 going all out, 164 going crazy, 5 gone under, 214 good, 140
good deal, 75 good deed, 151 good fit, 214 good old days, 207 goodwill, 230
go out, 164
go smoothly, 180 go solo, 169 gossip, 128
gotta, 220
gotta run, 7 gourmet, 31
GP, 106
GPA, 220
GPS, 19
grab, 185
grab a quick bite, 128
grace period, 70
grand, 78
gratuity, 58
great-grandmother, 192 grip, 46
groceries, 86 groom, 169
group number, 110 grow apart, 172
grunt work, 169
Gs, 78 guidance, 203

gym, 58

H

had a hard time, 102 had enough, 19
hail a cab, 15
half-price, 140
handheld device, 203 hand in your notice, 215 handle it, 48 hands-on, 180 handwritten, 207
handy, 65
hanging around, 19
hang out, 2
hang up, 97 hard-won, 155 hassle, 75
hatchback, 21
have a lot to offer, 230 have something checked out, 115 having an affair, 172 HDTV, 207 headache, 68
headed, 2
headhunters, 215 headlights, 195
head office, 225 health conscious, 31 health history, 110
health insurance, 110 health plan, 107
heavy rain, 134
he can really move, 43
heck, 43
hectic, 2 helping out, 151
hen, 169 herbs, 86
hey, 3
hi, 3
hidden extras, 53 high-class, 58
hilarious, 164
hint, 43
hip, 121 hiring manager, 230
hobby, 128

hogging, 43 hold, 34
homebound shut-ins, 151 homegrown, 86
homeless shelter, 152
homemade, 86
honeymoon, 169 honor, 152
hookup, 65
hook up, 207 hop into, 31 hop on, 13
hospice care, 192
hospitalization, 110 host, 5 hostess station, 34 hot air balloon, 48 hours, 140
housewares, 83 housewarming, 70
house wine, 34
how come, 215
how would you like it?, 34
HR, 215
huge, 3 hum, 207
humanely, 134
Human Resources, 215 human resources department, 110 husk, 86
hygienist, 115

I
ice cream cone, 121
ID, 75
I do, 169
I have no idea, 102
ill, 110
illegal, 203
I'm afraid, 115 immediately, 37 immunizations, 134
in advance, 15, 58
in a flash, 185
in ages, 186 in charge, 230
incision, 180 included, 215

incurable, 192 infant, 186 infected, 115 in heaven, 58 injury, 121
in-laws, 169 in lieu of, 195
in person, 23, 140
insider scoop, 140 instant, 207 instruments, 115 insufficient, 128
insurance claim, 110 insure, 128
interest, 75
interment, 195
interrupt, 203
interview, 220
in the know, 225 in the mood, 31
intimidating, 230 in touch, 203, 230
irresistible, 203
issue, 23
it's about time, 75

J

jam, 86
jet-lagged, 169
jogging trails, 134 joint, 215 joint account, 75 junk food, 43
junk mail, 70
jury, 155 jury duty, 155
just in time, 34
just to be on the safe side, 164
just what the doctor ordered, 31

K

K, 78
keep an eye on, 134
keep an eye open, 53 kick in, 102
kiddies, 134
kidding, 7
kid-friendly, 53

kids, 31
kind of stuff, 46
king-sized, 58
kiosk, 140 kittens, 134
knapsack, 55
knit, 152
knowledgeable, 110

L

labor, 180
Lamaze method, 180 land, 225
landscaping, 152
late fee, 71 later, 7
late senior years, 192 lawn, 146 layette, 186
layoff, 220
lease agreement, 65
legal process, 155 legitimate complaint, 37
let go, 215
let one's hair down, 164
let someone down, 172 let someone (or something) go, 204 lettuce, 78
librarian, 128 lifestyle, 68 like crazy, 115 limitless, 152
limo, 164
limps, 121 line, 78 lined up, 215 listings, 215 litter, 134
little while, 110
live music, 141
living will, 192 lizards, 146 lobby, 128 location, 97
longing for, 146 long-lost, 146 long-term disability, 215 look beyond, 215

look down, 173
looking at, 215 look over, 220 loss, 195
lots of, 5, 46, 65
lovely, 37
luxury, 21

M

main, 83 maintain, 75 major league, 43
make a donation, 195 make a fresh start, 215 make a right, 128
make-believe, 169 make no sense, 78
make up, 173
making arrangements, 195 mall, 3 mandatory, 134 manufacturer, 89
mass transit, 11 matter of life and death, 97 mayo, 31
M.D., 118
Meals-on-Wheels, 152 meaning to do something, 5 medication, 110, 115 medicine, 110 memorials, 146
memorial service, 195 mention, 37
mentioned, 86 merchandise, 215 middle of nowhere, 56
midsize, 21 midwife, 180 mind, 83 minimum, 75
mint, 78
miss, 129 missing, 134
mix-up, 37
mock, 225 molar, 115 mom-to-be, 180 monuments, 146

mooing and clucking, 68 morning sickness, 180 mountain lions, 163 movie times, 141
moving violation, 23
Mr. or Ms. Right, 164
multiplex, 164
multi-tap, 204
municipal building, 129
Murphy's Law, 71
music releases, 141
mutt, 134

N

nachos, 43 nail, 225
name brand, 110
nap, 48
Napa Valley, 34 nasty, 230 natural, 225 nature, 100
nature paths, 134
nerve-racking, 180, 232 network, 110 neutered, 134
new arrival, 180 newborn, 186
next door, 5 nickel, 78 nightmare, 15 night out, 186 9 to 5, 215
no kidding, 78
no-no, 230
not buying, 115
notice, 23, 155
nowadays, 180
nuke, 66 nursing home, 152 nutrients, 186 nutrition, 186

O

OB/GYN, 180
obituary, 195 observe, 204 offend, 115

offer someone a seat, 230 officer, 23
off the hook, 65
oh, come on, 115
OJ, 34
old-fashioned, 169
once, 129 on display, 146 on draft, 34
one of the family, 121
onesies, 186
only have eyes for someone, 169 on my way, 129
onomatopoeia, 68
on one's own, 192
on sale, 89 on tap, 34 on the ball, 220 on the house, 37 on the line, 97
on the other hand, 58 on the spot, 86 on the way, 97 on time, 71, 225 on trial, 155
open space, 68
open wide, 115
opera, 146 operations, 48 operator, 98 opportunities, 141 options, 65 orchestra, 141 ordinances, 129 organic, 86 organization, 152
organized sports, 43 original, 146 original plan, 169 or so, 186 out and about, 141 outdoors, 56
out of, 186 out of luck, 65 out of the blue, 232 outsmart, 78
overdo, 169
overdrawn, 75

overpack, 56

P

pacing back and forth, 181

pack, 181

pack up the kids, 53

pain in the neck, 155

pal, 134

panel, 230

paparazzi, 141

paperwork, 19

paramedics, 100

parasailing, 58

parcel, 129

parenthood, 186

part-time, 215

party, 34

passed, 195

passed away, 195

passed on, 195

patience, 186

patient, 107

patio, 68

pay as you go, 46

payday, 78

pay one's dues, 155

payroll, 78

peace and quiet, 68

pediatrician, 186

peers, 155

penny, 78

pension plan, 215

performances, 141

periodic, 215

permit, 129

personnel, 110

pesticide, 86

pesto, 86

pharmacist, 110

picking on, 215

pick up, 15, 129

pickup, 129

pickup game, 43

picky eaters, 31

picnic, 134

picture ID, 19

pie, 31

pigged out, 43 pitched, 56

PJs, 75
place setting, 38 plan, 204
Plan B, 146 plates, 204 platform, 13
play, 141 play date, 68 plug in, 215 plus, 215
poke, 115
poop, 134
pop the question, 169
post, 31
postage, 129
pothole, 134
pour, 56 precautions, 48 precinct, 102 pregnant, 181
pre-med, 118 prenatal, 181 prescribe, 110 prescription, 110 pressure, 118 pretty, 65 pretzels, 43
pricey, 141
primary care physician, 110 Priority Mail, 129 privileges, 155 procedure, 115 procedures, 192 procession, 195 produce, 86 professional, 141 prognosis, 192
prom night, 164 property line, 66 propose, 169
pros and cons, 66 provide, 11, 43 prowling, 164
puddle, 56
pull over, 23
pumas, 163
pupil, 118

puppies, 134
pureed, 186
purrs, 121
put all your eggs in one basket, 215 put aside, 75
put off, 173
put on, 141 put up, 129
put up with, 173

Q

qualities, 232 quality of life, 192 quarter, 79 queen-sized, 58
quilts, 87
quit, 215 quite a while, 225
QWERTY keyboard, 204

R

rain check, 89
range, 170 rapids, 48 rare, 34
rate, 15 reaction, 226 realtor, 66 rebate, 89 receipt, 89 reception, 170 reception desk, 107 recommend, 181
recommendation, 107, 220 recovered, 135, 181 recreation, 66
recreational, 87
recycling, 135 reduced, 87
reference, 215 referral, 107 register, 135
registration, 23 released, 135
reliable, 129
relied on, 181
relocating, 66
rely on, 192

remains, 195 renew, 19 rent, 21 reply, 170 representative, 75 required, 19
rescue, 98
research, 207 reserve, 129 residence, 75 residents, 135 resolve, 230
resolved, 98 resort, 58
responding, 100 responsibilities, 220 responsible for, 135 Restaurant Week, 34 restroom, 13
resume, 220 return address, 129 reviews, 141 ridiculous, 220 ring tone, 204
rites, 196
riverbanks, 56 road trip, 146 rocking, 7 roll-away cot, 58
rolling hills, 69 romantic, 164
root, 115
root canal, 115
round trip, 13
royalty, 58
R&R, 53
RSVP, 170
rude, 204 run, 11 run in, 83
run in the family, 181 running around, 152
running behind, 152
running the risk, 170 run out, 89
rush, 107
rush hour, 15
rushing off, 152

S

sacred, 155
sale, 3
salon, 58
same old, same old, 215 same old stuff, 215 sample, 83
sampling station, 87 satellite, 207
sautéed, 35 say!, 7 scatter, 196 schedule, 46
scoop, 129
scope out, 129
screen door, 102 scuba, 48 sculpture, 146 seafood, 35
second chance, 173
secondhand, 66
security deposit, 66 sedate, 121
sedative, 121
see the sights, 21
see what's going on, 121 Segway, 146 sell yourself, 220 seniors, 135 separate from, 146 separation, 173 server, 35, 38 services, 135 serving on a jury, 155
settle down, 69
settling down, 129 settling in, 129 severe, 207
shake one's confidence, 230 share the driving, 146 shift work, 215 shoot hoops, 43
short-staffed, 38
short term, 66
short-term disability, 215 shoulder, 23
show someone around, 141

shuck, 86
sick leave, 215 sick of, 164 side salad, 35 signal, 129, 207
signed on the dotted line, 216 sign-ups, 43 similar, 186
siren, 98
sit-down restaurant, 35 skill, 152
skills, 216
skip, 19
skunk, 53 skydiving, 49
skyline, 170 slapped with, 70 sleeping bag, 56
slip, 170 slot, 129
smackers, 79
smashed, 102 smudge, 38 snail mail, 207 sneezing, 107 sniffing, 207 snowstorm, 207
snuggled, 121
soothe, 186
sore, 107 soup kitchen, 152 source, 207 sources, 164
souvenir, 58, 83
spa, 58
spayed, 135
speak highly of, 230 speaking of, 79
special exhibition, 141 specialized, 110 specialty store, 83 specific, 69
specifically, 110 spectacular, 53 speeding, 23 speedy, 129
split the gas, 146 split up, 173

splurge, 35
spotless, 38, 186
spouse, 173 spread out, 58
spreadsheets, 230
squeeze someone in, 107 stadium, 43
staff member, 110
stag, 170 staged, 226
stages of labor, 181 stamps, 129
stand out, 232 star, 152
Stars and Stripes, 129 starting a family, 181
stash, 75
state trooper, 23
staycation, 53 stay connected, 152 stay in shape, 46 stay tuned, 13 steal, 89
stepparents, 170
stepped up to the plate, 155
stereotype, 83
stiff, 121, 129
Story Hour, 129 strategy, 226
stray, 135 strength, 230 stress, 118 strip mall, 83
stroll, 164
stroller, 83
stuck with, 19 stuff, 46
stuffy nose, 107 stunner, 164
stylin', 7 submitting, 216 substitute, 110 suburbs, 5 subway, 11
sugar daddy, 164
suit any pocketbook, 53
suite, 58
suit jacket, 226

sunburn, 53
sunroof, 21
sunscreen, 53
supervise, 192 supervisor, 220 support system, 192 surf, 53
surgery, 181 sympathy, 196 symptoms, 107

T taboo, 196 tags, 204 tail, 121 take advantage of, 155 take forever, 66

take for granted, 155 takeout, 31
takes me back, 170
take some getting used to, 79 take someone up on something, 232 take the bus or train, 11 talent, 152
tame, 49 tantrum, 186 team, 192 team player, 230 teenagers, 7 template, 220 temporary, 115
tempting, 66
tent, 56
Terrible Twos, 186
texting, 204
the arts, 140
theater group, 141
the big day, 168
the old days, 180 therapist, 173 thorough, 118 thrilled, 221
throbbing, 115
throw in, 46, 230 throw up, 49 throw you, 230
thru, 31 ticket, 23

tie the knot, 170 tight budget, 53 time off, 3 timer, 71
time your visit, 146
TLC, 121
to be honest with you, 102
toddler, 186
to fix the food to order, 31 token, 13
token booth, 14 tongue twister, 121 tons, 135 top priority, 38 toss, 207
tote, 56
tot lot, 135
touchdown, 43 touch screen, 204 tough, 24
town hall, 129
trade, 216 traffic, 24 trail mix, 56 transcript, 221 tray, 152
treadmills, 46 treatment, 110 treat to, 141 trial, 155
tricky, 3 trophy wife, 164 tubing, 49
tuition reimbursement, 216 tune, 207 turns out, 181
turnstile, 14
tutor, 152
tweak, 221
24-7, 75 twice, 152 twinkling, 170 twins, 181 typically, 66

U ultrasound, 181

unconscious, 100

underlying, 118
under the stars, 56
unwind, 226 up for, 48
updates, 216
upbeat, 192
upscale, 35 upside, 66
urban, 69
urn, 196
U.S. Constitution, 155 utensils, 56 utilities, 66

V

vacation time, 216 vaginal birth, 181 value, 5 van, 21 various, 43 vary, 135 vegetarian, 31
vendor, 87 ventilator, 192 version, 98 veterinarian, 121
vibrate, 230
victim, 98
viewing, 196 vision test, 19 visit, 181 visiting times, 196 vital, 97
vital signs, 110 vocal, 181
voice mail, 204 volunteerism, 152
voting district, 146

W

wacky, 14
wags, 121
wake, 196
walk out, 216
warning, 207 wassup, 7
waste of time, 221
watch one's weight, 43

way too many/much, 216 wealthy, 121 weapon, 102
we'd better, 115
wedded bliss, 173
wedding planner, 170
weigh one's options, 66 weird, 115
what're you up to, 7
where on earth, 226 whining, 186 whirlwind, 170
white picket fence, 66
whitewater rafting, 49 whole bunch, 46
whole grains, 31 will, 121 window-shopping, 83 windshield, 35
within walking distance, 69 witness, 100
wondering, 186
word of mouth, 216 work out, 46
work things out, 173 worth, 221
write home, 129 written test, 19

Y

yak, 204 yards, 5 yoga, 135
you can't miss it, 129
you're on your own, 66 your loss, 49
YouTube, 207

Z

zap, 66 zipline, 49
zoning requirements, 130

How to Use the Audio

Listen Everywhere!

To improve your pronunciation, listen to the audio that accompanies this e-book. The audio contains all the dialogues and pronunciation pointers found in the book.

Listen along as you read by pressing the play button seen throughout the book.

Want to listen to the audio on your computer or mobile devices? Head to www.rea.com/etaw for the audio content. After a quick download of the audio content (follow your media player's guide for instructions), you can hear all of the dialogues and pronunciation pointers. Then, practice, practice, practice!

As you listen, pay special attention to the way the speakers... well, speak. You'll notice that words and phrases join together, rather than always being pronounced as separate sounds. Stop the audio as you listen, and try to copy the rhythm and stress of the speakers. You'll find that your own pronunciation will improve.

You know what we say in English: Practice makes perfect. Have fun!